REAL ESTATE

To Marble or Granite Men, Workers and Builders.

Within thirty miles of New York City, on the Harlem Railroad, is a large, inexhaustible Marble or White Granite quarry, well adapted to building or cemetery work. It is covered by a farm of 132 acres. It is the most beautiful material now in use in the United States; weighs 180 pounds to the square foot and stands a fire test of 900° F. It has a mill, limekilns burning 40,000 barrels a year, and is in active and successful operation. It is connected with the Harlem Railroad by side tracks and switches, by which the cars are run directly to the quarry and mill, and loaded without hauling or handling, and everything convenient for cheap work. The entire property or a controlling interest will be sold for purely personal reasons, which will be given. It is well calculated for a pleasant, permanent, paying business, and its possibilities are large and promising. A close examination is asked and every information given. Principals only dealt with. OCTOBER 4, 1884.

Our readers would do well to carefully peruse the new department in this paper, headed the "World of Business." The financial discussions in our city journals are of very little value. That department of our daily and weekly press is not distinguished by solid judgment or wide information. A perusal of the extracts we give from the papers of other cities shows how much superior they are in this respect to the so-called metropolitan press. It will be observed that all these financial authorities are deploring the condition of general business. The world is full of food and goods. The barns, the elevators, warehouses and wholesale stores are overflowing; but there is a grievous blight on trade the world over. The general impression is that the trouble is due to over-production, yet all the nations swarm with hungry and half-naked people. May not the difficulty be under-consumption, due to lack of money? In various epochs of the past there were great discoveries of gold and silver, which always stimulated the trade of the world; but the yield of precious metals, especially of gold, has largely fallen off during late years, and then the commercial nations have combined to discredit silver and thus lessen by one half the specie reserve of mankind. Hence the blow at prices, the declining markets, the distress of borrowers and all engaged in trade transactions in spite of the gifts of nature and Providence, in the way of great crops of food and the raw materials for clothing.

All accounts from the West agree that the farmers will plant less wheat this year than last. They will turn their attention to corn, grass growing and the breeding of animals. There seems to be no step backward in the price of meat whether the times are good or bad. A writer in the Louisville Courier-Journal, whose article we copy, urges farmers not to abandon wheat growing. It is an easy crop to raise, requires little labor, and then he urges with much force that next year may probably see relatively high prices for that grain. The cheapness of wheat for the last two years has discouraged European growers and made the distant wheat fields, especially those of India and Australia, unprofitable. "Sir Oracle," in this paper, takes the same view. From the outlook at present, even if there should be a good season, it is doubtful if we will grow 400,000,000 bushels of wheat next year, that is 100,000,000 less than this year.

The Tammany county nominations are unexpectedly good. Indeed, no serious objection can be urged against any of the nominees, except, perhaps, that the two who head the ticket are young men and not as well known as some other citizens. But Messrs. Grant and Dugro are by no means inexperienced, they bear good characters and are each largely interested in city real estate. If the Republicans would now nominate Theodore Roosevelt for Mayor and the County Democrats should put up Franklin B. Edson, Andrew H. Green, ex-Mayor Cooper, E. H. Ludlow or any other citizen of equally high standing, New York would be pretty sure to have an excellent chief magistrate, no matter which party was successful. It does not seem likely that Tammany can, unassisted, elect its local ticket. The total vote of New York may run as high as 230,000 at the next election. When John Kelly ran for Governor he received 43,047 votes. Allowing for the increase of the population, it is not likely that through its own unassisted efforts that Tammany could poll more than 55,000 votes. In 1880 the Republican electoral ticket polled 81,730 votes, and the Democratic ticket 123,013 votes. Blaine, the Republican canvassers assert, will poll the largest vote ever given to a Republican Presidential candidate in this city, due to the increase in population as well as to a certain percentage of the Irish vote heretofore Democratic. Calling it 85,000, this would leave 90,000 votes for the County Democracy and the chances, therefore, would be in favor of the latter's nominees for the county ticket. But the canvass of Gen. Butler and St. John will doubtless take city votes which would otherwise go for Blaine and Cleveland, but on local candidates these disturbing influences will not be felt. There may be something in the stories extant that Mr. John Kelly does not intend to run a straight Tammany ticket, but will be open to negotiations from the Republicans as well as the County Democracy. In the meantime the fact remains that the Tammany ticket is a very creditable one.

The old gas companies of New York are to be consolidated into one corporation. This has been rendered necessary by the progress of the Equitable Gas Company, which is understood to be in alliance with the famous Standard Oil Company, whose charter requires it to furnish gas for $1.75 per thousand, while the old companies have been charging $2.25 per thousand. It was the last Legislature which passed the enactment permitting these gas companies to combine. Hereafter they will have a complete monopoly, as a law has also been passed forbidding rival companies from tearing up the street pavements. This last law was conceived in the interest of the gas as well as the steam companies. All the daily papers clamored for it, ostensibly in the interests of the city, and to prevent the pavements from being disturbed. The Governor's attention was called to the immense corporation axe which these enactments were intended to grind, but he approved them nevertheless. After all, perhaps it is better that the community should deal with one or two gas corporations rather than with a dozen. There can be no competition in the gas service any more than in railroading or telegraphy. The municipality itself should furnish gas as it does water, but as we cannot have city ownership at present, the next best thing is to have the gas furnished by one corporation. Less plant is required, the gas can be furnished cheaper, and one organization is more amenable to public opinion than would be a dozen.

Limiting Local Taxation.

The voters of this city and State will be asked to cast their ballots at the election in November next for a constitutional amendment restricting counties, cities, towns and villages from incurring excessive indebtedness for any cause whatsoever. Constitutional amendments of the same tenor have been passed in Missouri, Illinois and other Western States and they have not only worked well but have been found necessary to save local communities from the effects of their own improvidence and lack of foresight. Local government is an excellent thing in itself but in practice it has not been perfect. Boards of Aldermen and Supervisors representing tax-payers have not scrupled to impose debts upon their respective localities which the owners of realty not only found burdensome but impossible to pay. The following is the law which was proposed in 1882, and having the endorsement of two Legislatures is to be voted upon at the next general election:

Whereas, At the annual session of the Legislature for the year eighteen hundred and eighty-two, the following amendment to the constitution was proposed in Senate and Assembly, viz.:

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That section eleven of article eight of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows:

§ 11. No county, city, town or village shall hereafter give any money or property, or loan its money or credit to or in aid of any individual, association or corporation, or become directly or indirectly the owner of stock in, or bonds of, any association or corporation; nor shall any such county, city, town or village be allowed to incur any indebtedness, except for county, city, town or village purposes. This section shall not prevent such county, city, town or village from making such provision for the aid or support of its poor as may be authorized by law. No county containing a city of over one hundred thousand inhabitants, or any such city, shall be allowed to become indebted for any purpose or in any manner to an amount which, including existing indebtedness, shall exceed 10 per centum of the assessed valuation of the real estate of such county or city subject to taxation, as it appeared by the assessment rolls of said county or city on the last assessment for State or county taxes prior to the incurring of such indebtedness; and all indebtedness in excess of such limitation, except such as may now exist, shall be absolutely void except as herein otherwise provided. No such county or such city whose present indebtedness exceeds 10 per centum of the assessed valuation of its real estate, subject to taxation, shall be allowed to become indebted in any further amount until such indebtedness shall be reduced within such limit. This section shall not be construed to prevent the issue of certificates of indebtedness, or revenue bonds issued in anticipation of the collection of taxes, for amounts actually contained, or to be contained, in the taxes for the year when such certificates or revenue bonds are issued and payable out of such taxes. Nor shall this section be construed to prevent the issue of bonds to provide for the water supply, but the term of the bonds issued to provide for the supply of water shall not exceed twenty years, and a sinking fund shall be created on the issuing of the said bonds for their redemption, by raising annually a sum which will produce an amount equal to the sum of the principal and interest of said bonds at their maturity. The amount hereafter to be raised by tax for county or city purposes in any county containing a city of over one hundred thousand inhabitants, or any such city of this State, in addition to providing for the principal and interest of existing debt, shall not in the aggregate exceed in any one year 2 per centum of the assessed valuation of the real and personal estate of such county or city to be ascertained as prescribed in this section in respect to county or city debt.

And, whereas, The said proposed amendment was agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each of the two Houses of the said Legislature, entered in their journals with the yeas and nays taken thereon and referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the then next general election of Senators;

And, whereas, Such election has taken place, and said proposed amendment was duly published for three months previous to the time of making such choice, in pursuance of the provisions of section 1, of article 13, of the constitution, therefore Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be submitted to the people of the State of New York at the next general election.

The adoption of the above amendment is of much more importance to property-holders than the result of the national, State or city elections. The unprecedented increase of local indebtedness is one of the most disquieting signs of the times. We have recently given figures on this subject which are really startling. From these it appears that while from 1870 to 1880 our national debt had decreased from $2,480,000,000 to $1,942,000,000, our city debts had increased from $328,000,000 in 1870 to $698,000,000 in 1880. Our own local debt has been increasing enormously. In 1860 the net debt of New York was $18,194,349, and the ratio of debt to valuation in that year was 3.1553; in 1870 the net debt was $61,840,783, and the ratio to valuation was 5.9044. In 1880 the net debt was $101,549,455, and its ratio to valuation was 8.8181. Even this was a reduction from 1876, when our net debt was $114,944,100, and its ratio to valuation 10.3455. We are now paying a yearly interest amounting to $10,167,564 on the debt that is $111 per capita of this population. In forty years our population increased 370 per cent., the value of property 500 per cent., and the debt 12,700 per cent.

It will be noticed that the amendment permits the creation of new debt for water, and thus will not interfere with the new Croton aqueduct. Should the amendment pass, it will add a new value to real estate, for purchases will then have an assurance that a limit has been fixed to the burdens upon realty; not only so, but that with the increase of population and wealth, taxes will become lighter and municipal burdens less oppressive. Were the metropolis rid of debt and economically governed our taxes would not be more than fifty cents on the hundred dollars, but we are now forced to pay nearly 3 per cent. on the valuation. By all means vote for the amendment.

W. H. V. on Real Estate.

Mr. Wm. H. Vanderbilt in a recent interview talks quite bearishly. He was bullish in all his outgivings while the great railroad liquidation was under way. He and Jay Gould "pegged" their stocks in the spring of 1883, and as late as last February he predicted that those "mean fellows, the bears," would be climbing for stocks in the early spring. It was when he was in this buoyant state of mind that his friend and then ally, Jay Gould, loaded him up with Union Pacifics in the eighties, and with other stocks which subsequently sold at a heavy loss. Since then Mr. Vanderbilt and his followers have broken with Jay Gould, and have become bears on market values. Mr. Vanderbilt is also a bear on other things. He said to the Times reporter:

"Now there are labor and real estate. They have both got to be reduced. They are the last to come down to the lower level, and when things go up they will be the last to advance. I believe the laborer is worthy of his hire, but we must take all things into consideration. Now, if an employer gets $5 for a laborer's work he can't afford to pay the laborer $6, can he? Instead of reducing the public debt we ought to increase it. And, as I have said before, we ought to encourage investment by the people in government securities. It would strengthen the government. Investment by the people would make loyal citizens of them, perhaps, if other things would not. I like the way it is done in France. It would be well to have bonds of the denomination of $50 and $100, into which the people could put their savings. They would then be nterested in the government itself."

There is some sense in this. Labor has got to become cheaper, and the government would do better to increase its debt rather than diminish it. But what warrant has the great millionaire for believing that real estate will go down in value? He admits that he was mistaken about the stock market for over two years. The mass of the community have a wholesome dread of Wall street and of corporate enterprises, and hence the surplus earnings of the country naturally go into real estate, as there are no new government bonds to absorb them.

The bricklayers and stonecutters by their unwise strikes have helped with other disturbing influences to kill the goose which was laying the golden eggs for them. There were very few new building enterprises projected during September, and not half the money is now being laid out by capitalists for new structures which they were willing to spend this time last year. It was folly unspeakable for the work-people to strike at a time when the business of the country was in process of liquidation. The prospect now is that they need not clamor for fewer hours of labor. There will be weeks and months in which they will have no work whatever—a state of things which will in the end force a reduction of the rate of wages which they deemed too low already.

Brooklyn Instructs New York.

On January 1st, 1879, the amount of delinquent taxes, assessments and water rates in Brooklyn aggregated nearly fourteen million dollars. How to get this money was the problem, and to solve it Mayor Low and his friends secured the passage of a law by the Legislature of 1883, a very full synopsis of which we give herewith. The matter was a difficult one to handle. Many of the unpaid assessments and taxes were upon property that had not been benefited by the so-called city improvements during periods of speculative excitement. But in practice all cities find it difficult to enforce their claims against delinquents. Titles given for property seized by a municipality for unpaid assessments have not been regarded as valid heretofore; but, under the law of 1883, no less authority than Wm. M. Evarts is quoted as saying that Brooklyn can give a deed conveying a fee simple right to a purchaser of realty at a delinquent tax sale. Under this law everything is done to satisfy the original owner of the property. The Board of Assessors are empowered to inquire into the merits of each case, and to fix a sum upon the property which shall be fair to the original owner. All interests are protected. If, however, the delinquent still persists in refusing to accept the compromise offered, the property is to be sold at public auction, and the purchaser gets a guarantee from the city that it will stand by him should the courts finally decide that his title is void. He is not to get his deed until a year is passed after the sale. The preliminaries to the sale also require a year in time. Under this law there will soon be a sale of Brooklyn delinquent property, and the validity of the title to be given to the city will doubtless be tested in the courts, probably by a friendly suit.

This is a matter of the utmost importance to New York. Our unpaid taxes and assessments aggregate at present $13,730,493.91, and there are large amounts of property which practically pay no taxes, and to which the city or nobody else can give a valid title. The law has been so far successful in Brooklyn that only six millions are due from the delinquents out of fourteen millions, and this deficiency will be largely decreased before the day of sale comes around. Mayor Low and his friends will have solved a serious municipal problem if they can maintain the validity of an enactment which will force delinquents to pay up or to lose their property for good, the city being able to give a valid title. The following is a very full synopsis of the law of 1883, which the real estate interest of this city should see is extended so as to cover New York's delinquent taxes:

Section I. empowers the Board of Assessors in all cases of arrears on taxes, assessments or water rents levied on property prior to July 1, 1882, to determine what commutation should in fairness be charged on such property. The Board should within thirty days of the passage of the act publish in the newspapers a general notice requiring the owners of such property and others having any claim against it to present in writing any objections they may have to any taxes imposed by the city so in arrears, and state their reasons for any reduction. This notice is to be signed by the president of the Board and published at least three times a week for four weeks. It is provided that all persons giving such notice may be heard before the Board, either in person or by counsel, a majority of the members of the Board to constitute a quorum for the hearing of such objections. In cases where one or more installments have been paid under the provisions of Chapter 572, 1881, or of Section 1 of Chapter 348, 1882, or Section 2, Chapter 443, 1881, or where no default has been made in the payment of any subsequent installment required by those sections, the amount yet to be paid on such property shall not be deemed to be in arrears within the meaning of this section. All taxes and water rates for which certificates of sale have been given by the city, and all such taxes unpaid, for which sales have been made and which are invalid, shall be deemed to be in arrears from the date when they were levied or confirmed or attempted to be levied or confirmed.

Section II. provides that the Board shall keep a record of their proceedings under this act, in which shall be entered their decision as to the amount to be charged upon each parcel of land, such decision to be final upon all persons owing or having interest in or liens thereon, and that this shall be a valid and binding tax in lieu of all outstanding claims of the city for arrearages prior to July 1, 1882, and shall have priority over all other claims, except taxes levied after that date. It shall be competent for the Board to include in any certificate their several decisions respecting as many parcels of land as they may think proper, provided, however, that the installments on the assessment for Prospect Park not yet levied shall not be included in any of the provisions of this act.

Section III. declares that upon delivery by the Board of their certificate to the Registrar of Arrears the latter shall proceed to collect the sum payable, without interest, if paid within sixty days, and if not so paid, with interest from the date of filing the certificate at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, and if not paid within six months at 12 per cent. per annum. If not paid within twelve months the Registrar, after giving notice by advertisement as hereinafter required, shall sell the parcels affected at public auction to the highest bidder for a sum not less than the amount unpaid and all interest accrued thereon. Such advertisement shall appear in the local papers once a week for four weeks prior to the sale, but it shall not be necessary to publish notices of any adjournment of continuation of such sales.

Section IV. directs that the Registrar shall, on receipt of the purchase money on any sale, deliver to the purchaser a certificate of such sale binding the city to refund the amount paid, with interest at the rate o

4 per cent. per annum, in case the title should prove invalid. On presenting such certificate and proof of the service of the notice of such sale upon the owner and mortgagee the Registrar shall, one year from the date of such notice, deliver to the purchaser or his representatives a deed for the property purchased, which shall be presumptive evidence of a sufficient title in fee simple to such property, and in the event of any action being taken by the purchaser for the recovery of property, or defence made by him against a restoration thereof, such title shall not fail or be defeated in consequence of any irregularity or formal defect in the procedure under which the property shall have been conveyed. The city may become a purchaser under the same conditions.

Section V. provides that all persons having an interest in property sold may at any time within one year after notice is given him of such sale, or before a deed is delivered, redeem such property by paying to the Registrar the purchase money, with 10 per cent. per annum on the amount and 15 per cent. per annum on the aggregate amount, and one dollar for every notice served on him, provided that any decedent or his heirs shall be entitled to redeem whose mortgage or lease may be recorded in the County of Kings.

Section VI. states that in case of default of payment of taxes due six months, the city has power to bring action against the owners and mortgagees and procure a sell of any premises, and give a title deed as provided in Section IV.

Section VII. declares that any surplus upon sales of property over and above taxes and expenses shall be paid over to the person legally entitled thereto.

Section VIII. provides that any persons owning or having any interest in property upon which the unpaid taxes were imposed before July 1, 1882, may extinguish such taxes by paying to the Registrar before October 1, 1883, an amount equal to sixty per cent. of the assessed valuation as fixed in 1881, with interest thereon at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum from the passage of this act.

Section IX. provides that owners of lands in arrear for more than four years before the passage of this act may extinguish their assessments by payment of the amount thereof, with interest only from June 1, 1882, at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, provided the amount so due be paid before October 1, 1883.

Section X. declares that any person owing taxes imposed before July 1, 1882, upon which certificates of sale have been given, may pay the same, with interest at 6 per cent. per annum, only from the date of the original confirmation of such tax, provided it be paid before October 1, 1883.

Section XI. gives the Board access to all the records and documents in the public departments and authorizes a salary of $500 to each assessor for his services.

Section XII. provides that the Board shall, upon the application of any owner or person interested in any land upon which the Board shall have fixed the tax, at any time before the payment of such amount or before the sale, equitably apportion the said amount upon and between such subdivisions of the said parcel as they may judge to be proper, and shall cause the assessment map to be altered accordingly, and inform the Registrar and Comptroller of the tax determined by them thereupon, which shall stand in place of the amount originally fixed.

Mayor Low informed a representative of THE RECORD AND GUIDE that the amount of arrears on taxes paid thus far this year amounts to about $612,000. As instances of the reductions made he might mention that in the First Ward the number of parcels on which there were arrearages on October 24, 1883, was 279, the aggregate amount being $131,963. On August 1, 1884, the number was reduced to 74 and the amount $70,397. In the Second Ward the number had been reduced from 117 to 42 and the amount from $48,292 to $29,849, and in the Third Ward from 320 to 151 and $86,037 to $57,332 respectively. Mayor Low further added that everything was done to carry out the act with leniency, and if they erred at all it was always on the side of forbearance. They had taken great pains to find out the owners and others interested in every parcel so as to be able to bring to their notice the very equitable decisions made in their favor under the act, and he was pleased to say that these efforts had met with success, as a great many of the persons affected had paid up their obligations to the city and thus been enabled to retain their property.

Where is the Danger?

To show the danger of the continued coinage of the silver dollar an evening paper publishes the following table, indicating the exports and imports of specie since 1871 :

Year.	Exports.	Year.	Imports.
1884	$48,153,250	1884	$18,461,765
1883	11,532,189	1883	12,108,200
1882	43,933,601	1882	2,701,646
1881	8,388,702	1881	45,866,667
1880	5,521,202	1880	30,058,724
1879	12,588,292	1879	39,709,086
1878	10,5 6,200	1878	15,482,204
1877	22,800,810	1877	1,6 3,529
1876	49,587,068	1876	4,372,508
1875	65,243,974	1875	9,334,904
1874	42,062,093	1874	4,867,565
1872	7,974,805	1872	4,974,009

In view of this exhibit the Mail and Express calls upon Congress to repeal the law requiring the coinage of two million dollars per month in standard silver dollars; for, if this is not done, the alarmed editor declares that sooner or later there will be a suspension of gold payments. An examination of the table, however, proves very conclusively that the silver dollar law has increased our imports and diminished our exports of gold. The Bland law was passed in April, 1878, and if the reader scans the above figures he will see that the heavy exports of specie were previous to that year and the heavy imports since then. But this table does not tell the whole story, for our exports are largely made up of silver and our imports almost exclusively of gold. This has been true of every year since the Bland silver law was passed. It is a curious fact that in all the direful warnings about the dangers of the silver coinage which have appeared in the Times, Tribune, Herald, Evening Post and the financial papers, not one solitary fact has been given to warrant their dismal forebodings.

Our Prophetic Department.

MR. BRUIN—In your conversation with my sanguine friend, Mr. Bovine, last week, you pointed out the fact that our wheat crop, if the Agricultural Department is correct, which put the figure at 500,000,000 bushels, is relatively a small one compared with the increase of inhabitants, and more particularly the additions to our railway mileage. I understood you to say that if the crop had increased since 1879 in proportion to population it would be 538,000,000 bushels this year, and, if in proportion to railroad mileage, 736,000,000 bushels.

SIR ORACLE—Those were the figures of the Railroad Gazette and were slightly misleading, for I think that publication underestimates the increase in population. I have been doing a little figuring myself, and am rather surprised at the great development of our railway system. In 1879 we had 86,904 miles of road, or a mile of road to every 558 persons in the country; in 1884 we have probably 125,000 miles of road or one mile for every 314 inhabitants, counting our population at 56,000,000. My own impression is that our population to-day is 57,000,000, which would make a better showing.

MR. BRUIN—How would our corn crop compare with former years in its relation to the population and the railroad mileage?

SIR O.—The following is an estimate based upon population and railroad mileage for the last six years :

	Estimated population.	Corn crop, bushels.	Estimated railroad mileage.	Bush. corn per 1,000 inhabitants.	Bush. corn per mile of railroad.
1879	48,500,000	1,547,901,730	86,904	31,917	17,823
1880	50,000,000	1,717,434,543	93,860	34,348	18,297
1881	51,500,000	1,194,916,000	103,649	23,208	11,528
1882	53,000,000	1,685,000,000	115,245	31,792	14,621
1884	56,000,000	1,800,000,000	125,000	32.142	14,720

MR. BRUIN—A pretty bad showing that, Sir Oracle. Some of the bull organs, I see, claim that there will not be rolling stock enough to carry the corn when it begins to move, yet we will have only 14,720 bushels per mile of corn in 1884 whereas we had 17,823 in 1879 and 18,297 in 1880. The railroads experienced no difficulty in carrying the corn those years. As the South grows more corn relatively now than then and as whiskey distilling has been overdone there will not be so much transporting of corn, which will probably be fed to hogs near where it is grown.

SIR O.—What you say is worth considering, and over-sanguine people would do well to bear it in mind; but in 1879 the railroads did not have rolling stock to do the business. They added largely to their cars and had too many of the latter after the corn failure of 1881. I think the Agricultural Department have underestimated the corn crop. Their report was for the first of September. Since then we have had an exceptionally good month for corn. The warm weather which prevailed throughout the month has utilized every corn stalk which was in the ground; the grain was never so well developed. I think that the crop will reach nearly 2,000,000,000 bushels and will average a greater weight than a larger crop grown under ordinary conditions, but injured here and there by backward or unfavorable weather. Then there are other factors which should be taken into account. Wheat and corn are only two of the grains. We have an exceptionally large crop of oats, barley, rye and tobacco. These will, I think, more than make up for the difference in our railway mileage. Then the more miles of road there are the larger is the relative travel. More freight is transported as roads pass through new regions. What I mean is that the multiplication of railways increases business absolutely as well as relatively. But of course railroad building has been overdone, and we have stopped new railway construction until population and business can catch up to the present mileage, and that will not take many years.

MR. BRUIN—But are there not any troubles ahead? Has the country seen the end of its commercial disasters?

SIR O.—I am afraid not. I think the worst is over in the stock market; there is no danger of stock panics, and before the corn crop moves you will see better prices; but the liquidation in the business world is not yet over. I expect to hear of a great many failures, and perhaps something of a catastrophe among merchants and manufacturers; and, later on, I think that there will be a liquidation in real estate values.

MR. BRUIN—I see that Platt K. Dickinson's seat in the Stock Exchange sold for $21,000. Does not this and other signs of the times show that the business in Wall street is not as hopeful in the outlook as in times past? I see also that THE RECORD AND GUIDE of last week ventured the assertion that "Jay Gould's star had passed its zenith." What evidence is there of that?

SIR O.—I suppose that the editor had in mind some very obvious facts. Jay Gould has retired from the Mercantile Trust Company, he is no longer president of the Wabash Road, he has made his son vice-president of the Western Union Telegraph Company, he is no longer in the Rock Island directory, and he was "fired out" of the Northwestern directory by the Vanderbilt people. Then there are other ominous circumstances respecting Jay Gould's business associates. He has been noted from the beginning of his career for his ability to secure the co-operation of the longest-headed and most enterprising financiers in the country. In this he differs from Wm. H. Vanderbilt and James R. Keane. The latter never had a reputable Wall street man associated with him. He was surrounded by dead-beats and financial bummers. Keane had an extraordinary genius as a trader, but he made no reputable friends. His habits of life were disorderly and he had no following outside of the disreputable newspaper hangers-on about him. Wm. H. Vanderbilt also "paddled his own canoe." He made no friends among influential men in Wall street. Jay Gould had the rare art of attracting the ablest men in financial circles into his schemes. Look at the names on the Western Union and the other directories of other companies he controls and you will at once see one secret of his strength in the railway world. But his associates are passing away. E. D. Morgan is dead; Russell Sage and Sidney Dillon might as well be dead, as their usefulness is gone forever; John H. Humphries has been alienated; even Morosini is about to leave for Europe. There is doubtless a world of power in the little man yet, but I do not see that there are any more railway consolidations for him to effect. It was in these enterprises that he made his money and not in the stock market.

MR. BRUIN—Are there any new men coming to the front that are likely to cut a large figure in the future history of the street?

SIR O.—No, not any new men, but I judge that we will hear a great deal of Wm. K. Vanderbilt from this time forth. His father is really retiring from active business, and you will notice that William K. is either president or chairman of the executive committees in the various Vanderbilt properties. When the old Commodore died his will showed that he regarded his grandson Cornelius with special favor. The latter is a most estimable gentleman. He is high-toned, scrupulously honest and with a more religious fervor than any other member of the family. But Wm. K. is and always has been his father's favorite son. He is industrious, enterprising and fired with an ambition to make himself recognized as a leader in the railway world. He begins his career under the best of auspices and with experiences which ought to qualify him for the work which he has cut out for himself. My word for it, Wm. K. Vanderbilt is the rising sun in the Wall street world.

MR. BRUIN—How about George I. Gould? Some of the lower order of newspapers are disposed to hint at his want of financial faculty and his fondness for pretty actresses.

SIR O.—I take no stock in these stories. The son of every millionaire is suspected of the same weakness. He has so far kept away from the turf and his name has been associated with no scandal. He is at his office every day and his father has just made him vice-president of the Western Union. Henry Hart told me that Jay Gould in time intended to make George president of the Pacific Mail Steamship Line, but neither the street nor the public have as yet any data by which to judge of young Gould's ability to cut a figure in Wall street.

Financial Points.

There is a mistaken idea that the western farmers are withholding their wheat. On the contrary, they have never sold it more freely than for the seven weeks ending September 20th. The receipts of wheat for that period at the northwestern markets, including St. Louis, Peoria, Chicago, Milwaukee, Duluth, Detroit, Toledo and Cleveland were as follows, the flour being reduced to wheat:

1878.	1879.	1880.	1882.	1883.	1884.

The falling off in the receipts of the roads was due to the decrease in miscellaneous business.

An ex-president of one of the "L" road companies is authority for the statement that the Manhattan consolidated company is earning more than 8 per cent. on its capital stock, and could easily pay that dividend and have sufficient surplus in addition to meet all possible contingencies. He says that were Jay Gould and Cyrus W. Field to die or sell out to the corporation its stock would at once go to par; but the financial reputation of both these gentlemen is so bad that every corporation in which they have a large interest sells below its true value.

Jay Gould is authority for the statement that Missouri Pacific will soon sell above par, while Western Union will be quoted in the seventies, but the interest is to be reduced to 6 per cent.

Iron clocks are the latest importation, the hands are of gilt and the numbers in burnished steel; these clocks are very effective and beautiful for halls and dining rooms.

Home Decorative Notes.

—The high Queen Anne stands are brightened and their stiffness relieved by having scarfs for the top and the under shelf also; very pretty scarfs are made of blue turquoise silk with ends embroidered with the pear design in applique; the ends should be fringed or finished with soft lace.

—A handsome sofa pillow is covered with dark blue satin, and in one corner are yellow daisies with black hearts and green stems, they are placed very closely together, so that they appear in a solid mass; finish the edge of the pillow with a very heavy silk cord.

—Ample scope is given for the production of graceful and artistic effects in draperies and hangings; when rich and delicate in color, and made of materials which hang in soft folds, they give the required touches which blend the decorations of the room into one harmonious whole; rich damasks, brocades, tapestries and velvets for wall hangings and draperies of the most exquisite colorings and unique designs are produced by Morris & Co., of London, and introduced in this city by Elliot & Goodwin, of 42 East Fourteenth street.

—A parlor now is lighted by shaded lamps, and the dinner table has its rose shaded candles.

—Very broad friezes are at present popular.

—Tussah silk, an imperishable material from China and India, is very extensively used as a foundation for embroidery.

—A novel table has three silver spears crossed and supporting a shield, which is covered with garnet silk plush.

—Pompadour slippers of Austrian glass in bright green and rich red are in favor for flower holders.

—Delicate cream pitchers are of egg-shell china, decorated with tea and blush roses; the stem of the rose forms the handle of the pitcher, while the rose and buds droop gracefully over one side.

—Brass is used now in every available place and manner, and its apparent richness adds very largely to the general effect, if its surroundings correspond in any degree. In India, brass is the favorite metal and is worked with great skill; Benares is the headquarters of the industry. Many capital examples of this ware are produced in the way of jewel cases, vases, lamps, salvers, and trays of all sizes and shapes, serviceable as decorations for sideboard or card-receiver in the hall, and would be effective in the most elegant of our modern mansions. Numerous fine specimens of these beautiful goods are shown by Theo. R. Starr, of No. 206 Fifth avenue.

—In preparing table-covers for square or round tables there is abundance of room for the display of taste; a fancy at present prevails for the stamped velvets of German production—they may be procured in various colors and designs; the most popular shades are peacock blue, old gold and rich red.

—Much comfort may be derived from the knowledge that nails and screws if rubbed with a little soap are easily driven into hard wood.

—Tea-cups are made to represent roses, petals and all very natural; the accompanying saucers imitate the leaves.

—An extremely attractive and showy bureau set has a bureau scarf of bright yellow satin, each end of which is embroidered with a spray of forget-me-nots, in very fine chenille; the cushion is also of satin and decorated in like manner; around the cushion is a full quilling of satin ribbon about two inches wide, and at each corner is fastened yellow silk pompons.

—Very elegant English dressing cases have the toilet-brushes set in ivory, with the monogram in cut silver inlaid.

—In upholstery the squab cushions are much used in new designs; one great advantage to be considered in this style of cushions is that they may be easily kept free from dust, which is not the case with stuffed slats and backs.

—Lemon yellow and hop green are the new and favorite colors, both in china and draperies.

—A very pretty contribution to a baby's layette is a Turkish satin covered trunk large enough to contain about one dozen dresses; the foundation is a box of pine wood with a cover attached by hinges, the whole box is covered with blue Turkish satin, small brass handles are added to the ends, a full plaiting of cream colored lace edges the cover where it opens, and the trunk is lined with plain blue satin, the top of the outside of the trunk cover is decorated with bunches of daises wrought in ribbon work, and leaves are in embroidery silk.

—A novel picture frame, and one peculiarly adapted to an engraving, Japanese in sentiment, has the frame of bamboo in bronzed effect; the mat is in imitation of fine rattan, it is also bronzed, and has tiny Japanese figures fastened irregularly upon the surface, the whole effect is indeed quite unique.

—Ink stains may be removed by washing carefully in water, then applying oxalic acid.

—Mosquito nettings in brass with thin brass frames are quite attractive in appearance.

—Shelves made of rattan which may hang on the wall, and have ribbons run in, are very attractive when filled with odd pieces of porcelain.

—Many novel and beautiful effects are displayed this season in embroideries; the modelled decoration still holds its popularity; the pansy remains a favorite ornament, and the Martha Washington geranium is reproduced in all its delicacy of form and tint; a very lovely sofa pillow noticed at Bentley's, No. 1152 Broadway, has cream colored plush made in the form of a coffee sack and decorated with the Martha Washington geranium in relief embroidery; the sack is tied about ten inches from the top, with very wide pink satin ribbon; the part which falls over the top of the pillow displays a pink satin lining.

Concerning Men and Things.

The greatest actress in her line which the United States has yet produced is undoubtedly Clara Morris. She has more native genius than any histrionic artist, male or female, though her range is limited to parts expressive of emotion, especially pathetic emotion. She appeared last Monday at an east side theatre, and not a paper gave her a line; yet she always has crowded audiences. She suffers and will always suffer from ill health; but her bodily powers have been injured more by drugs than by disease. Physicians in her case have not only been in vain, but they have impaired her powers and blighted her life.

The Madison Square Theatre took a new departure in the production of the "Private Secretary." The piece is not at all in the line of the former productions of this house; but it is wonderfully amusing. The audience is kept in a hilarious mood from the opening scene to the fall of the curtain. The English actor who enacts the feeble-minded secretary took most of the honors; but the whole performance was exceedingly droll. The plagiarized edition of this piece at the Comedy Theatre was a poor affair, and will do Mr. A. M. Palmer's property no harm.

"For one," said Mr. E. H. Ludlow, "I am in favor of an 'L' road on Broadway; a surface road would only add to the present confusion, and it would not satisfy the reasonable demand for swift conveyance. The thoroughfare is so wide that an 'L' road, after the original Gilbert plan, would give swift and cheap conveyance; and, as the experience of Sixth avenue shows, would increase the value of property. As for the various underground schemes, they would I fear prove too costly; and then many of us old fellows would be dead before we could be advantaged by them. But an 'L' road on Broadway, from the Battery to Central Park, could be in operation before the close of the year 1885."

All lovers of the drama will regret to hear of the misfortune which has overtaken John McCullough. He was not a tragedian of the first class, but he preserved for the present generation the traditions and style of Edwin Forrest, at once the greatest and the best abused of American actors. McCullough was originally an illiterate Irish boy, and he always lacked that certain something which only a good education can give; but he had dramatic force and an ability to express passion. He played with Forrest for many years, and at his best was only a rather weak imitation of that very original genius.

The death of F. S. Chanfrau, the actor, will be a matter of regret to old New York theatre goers. When he first appeared before a New York audience at the Olympic Theatre thirty-five years ago it was as a mimic. His reproduction of the peculiarities of Forrest, the younger Keane, the elder Booth and the other theatrical celebrities of his time was very successful. His first success was in the character of Mose, a type of New York rowdy which has since died out. Had he been attached to a first-class New York company he would be a fine character actor. He made money, however, as a minor star in the rural theatres.

"It is quite true," said Mr. George G. Sickles to our reporter, "that the good people of New Rochelle objected to my building workmen's cottages on North street. It is high time, however, that those of us who own large tracts of land at that place should begin to improve our property. In no other way can we expect to attract population there, and so increase the value of our estates. With me it was a question as to whether I should build a fine row of houses which I might rent, perhaps not without great difficulty, or whether I should erect cheap structures which I knew I could rent very easily. I chose the latter course, and put up nine two-story and basement cottages, which cost me about $15,000. They contain from seven to nine rooms each, and have hot and cold water and gas. They are only ten minutes' walk from the depot, which is thirty-seven minutes' distance from the Grand Central Depot on Forty-second street. I am pleased to say that all the cottages were rented before they were completed, the smaller ones at $12.50 and the larger ones at $16 per month. This shows a demand for that kind of houses, and I propose to build more. I own 180 acres at New Rochelle. I may add that the commutation fare between that place and New York is $25 for the first quarter, $18 for the second and $12 for the third and fourth."

A new departure in building lot sales is about to be made which will utilize in a very important direction the principle of real estate title insurance and the new title company. At the sale of lots out of the recently-partitioned Fox estate, to take place October 14th, it has been arranged that the Title Insurance and Trust Company shall insure the title to each purchaser, and that its policy to the amount of the purchase price of the lots shall be delivered with each deed without additional cost. This is intended to obviate the expense, annoyance and delay of separate examinations of title, will give purchasers the strongest possible guarantee against defects of every kind, and will enable them to know at the outset just what the total cost of the purchase will be. It is believed that this arrangement will be of great advantage to both seller and buyer. The large amount saved by having one complete examination and set of searches, instead of perhaps fifty, will be divided between them, the buyer bidding more for his lots because he gets them with title insured and knows that there is no indefinite further expense for examination, and that they cost him less in the end, and the seller getting a much greater advance on his lots than will pay for the previous examination and insurance. The field for real estate title insurance in this direction is very great, and its influence on future transactions will undoubtedly be very marked. Not only will it prove a great saving to sellers and buyers but will avoid all manner of delays in closing such transactions and give confidence and certainty to both sides. The progress of the movement will be watched with great interest, and it is hoped that it will break another of the fetters of real estate dealings.

All About Bricks.

THE PROSPECT FOR THEIR MANUFACTURE, SALE AND PRICE.

"The manufacture of bricks this year," said William K. Hammond, "has been very large, and will continue good until the middle of October or the beginning of November, when the frost puts an end to further work. The sales of brick this year have been very fair, and the prospect for sales continues good. There is at present an unexpectedly large demand, due apparently to the fact that consumers believe brick to be extremely cheap. Prices are undoubtedly in buyers' favor, and business is now being done on a very close margin of profit. The quantity of bricks manufactured this season, though large, has been in excess of the demand, the result being that the price of bricks this year has been lower than last. In order to regulate this the Hudson River manufacturers held a meeting during the summer to fix a date for the cessation of work this year, and it was proposed to stop manufacturing brick on September 20, but the majority were in favor of manufacturing as long as the weather enabled them to do so, with the proviso that the output should in every instance be 25 per cent. less than last year. This was done with the object of maintaining prices, as it would have been impossible to to do business except at a loss had the market become flooded with stock. It was resolved to manufacture 25 per cent. less, because it was calculated that the demand would be 25 per cent. less, the object being to keep up the supply with the demand if possible and not manufacture ad libitum. In saying that the demand is unexpectedly large at present I said it in the light of the building strikes and the depression of trade generally. As to the exportation of bricks I do not think we shall become exporters to any large extent. We send brick to the South, to Florida and Central America, but in the former State and in Georgia they are manufacturing brick extensively, so that this source will be cut off after a while. We have, it is true, exported to Cuba, but only to a very small extent, owing to the exorbitant tariff in that country on imported brick. The duty there is charged per thousand, and the way we get over the difficulty is to make a very large brick, about three or four times the size of the ordinary brick, but little has been exported during recent years. I think this is a good time for the public to buy. Bricks are now selling almost at cost. Prices won't go ower, excepting perhaps fractionally, but should a demand arise there will be an advance, especially when the strikes are ended, though I don't believe the advance will be very great."

"As near as I can calculate," said George S. Schultz, "we shall turn out as large a quantity of brick this year or more than we did last. Our sales have been about the same as they were in 1883, though at the present time the demand is not so great. Our stock on hand is probably 25 per cent. larger than it was at this time last year. The strike has greatly interfered with sales, and when it ends we expect a very fair demand, but little or no advance in prices. At present quotations the manufacturer was not making money. He had just sufficient margin to enable him to pay his expenses. Brick was on the whole fifty cents a thousand cheaper than last year, and in his opinion ought to be from forty to forty-five cents higher than it was at present."

"The arrivals of brick," said E. D. Knapp, "are very moderate. Prices are not satisfactory to the manufacturers. Owing to the strikes at this point there has been almost an entire cessation of building in Harlem, which has been a large consumer for several years past. Though holding a full stock, manufacturers are very sanguine as to the future of prices. There is a good deal of building outside of New York city, and in a good many towns along the Hudson and in the interior of the State there was quite a little 'boom' Manufacturers were now restricting production, and were not turning out a full quantity of brick, which there was no necessity of doing as the stock now on hand would last during the cold season. Manufacturers will not sell at lower figures than now exist. They are almost entirely in good financial position, and would, therefore, rather hold their stock than sell it out at a loss. Haverstraws were bringing the best prices, though it is claimed they cost more to produce owing to the high rent, the slightly greater cost of labor and the good freights paid by the manufacturers. Haverstraw men own their own boats and put artificial prices on the freights. Scows were now used for transporting bricks on which 200,000 could be stored, while the sailing vessel could not carry on an average more than 60,000. This tended to cheapen the price of bricks, as transportation cost less. The policy adopted by the manufacturers in curtailing the production had not advanced prices, but kept them where they were. If the strikes were ended there would probably be an advance, but not much. The manufacture of brick in New Jersey this year had increased and was largely in excess of previous years. That State competes materially with the Hudson River trade and undersells the latter. Brooklyn at present was largely supplied by New Jersey. I expect a moderate business this fall, though the outlook is not good for high prices."

"The immediate prospect for sales," said R. L. Walker, "is rather slim." Mr. Walker represents Underhill & Co. (Croton Point fronts). "The demand," he said, "for front brick was very good in the spring, and we were consequently led to anticipate a large demand throughout the year. We therefore turned out more bricks than last year. Our sales have been very large, though they have hitherto not been as big as in 1883, when we sold 3,000,000 bricks to one firm. We have a larger stock on hand at present than we had last season. Our prices are the same as they were a year ago. We are holding our brick and do not mean to sell at lower figures."

A question of considerable interest to factory owners was determined in the Fourth District of the Supreme Court of this State at General Term, by Judges Smith and Hardin, in the case of Schwandner vs. Birge, where a lad nineteen years old was employed in a paper factory, and his duties took him all over the five-story building, where there was no ladder provided to the scuttle, which was eleven feet above the fifth floor

A fire broke out, the boy was caught on the fifth floor, could not get out, and was burned to death. The Court say that it should be left to a jury to say whether the owners of the factory were negligent or not and liable for his death, and that it was wrong for the judge who tried the case in the court below to dismiss the suit that was brought for damages for his death, without having the jury pass on that question.

Assessment and Tax Lists in New York.

Very little public attention has been paid to the sales of realty for unpaid assessments, taxes and arrears. These sales are practically controlled by a few expert buyers, although the outside public is nominally there by advertisements. Among the few who attend is ex-Mayor Ely, who is a large buyer at these sales. The owners have the privilege to redeem property so sold any time within two and a-half years from date of sale, by payment of principal, with interest at the rate of 14 per cent. per annum.

There will be an assessment sale on Monday next, October 6th, and another on November 24th next. The tax sale takes place in December.

The following is a summary of the sums due on arrears to date:

Arrears of taxes to September 1st, 1884	$7,212,673 52
Arrears of Croton water rent to September 1st, 1884	131,006 18
Arrears of assessments to September 1st, 1884	6,386,741 21

The following is a detailed list of taxes in arrears since 1841:

1841 to 1865	$58,177 39	1872	$41,072 72	1879	$420,614 46
1867	8,510 33	1874	50,750 91	1881	1,200,463 51
1868	3,731 10	1875	69,202 58	1882	1,519,670 71
1869	19,589 13	1876	54,046 45	1883	2,454,452 10
1870	28,085 12	1877	126,343 70

Following is a detailed list of Croton water rent arrears since 1852:

1867	502 39	1874	992 79	1881	32,780 25
1868	827 80	1875	1,703 02	1882	52,012 64
1869	243 48	1876	2,020 04
1870	289 16	1877	3,300 00	Total	$131,006 18

No detailed list per year has been made up by the Bureau of Arrears for assessments.

The Cotton Prospect.

"I do not look for much activity in the cotton market," said Mr. R. P. Salter to the writer, "for some months to come. The market was never so dull. Statistically, the situation favors cotton. There is not much raw material unused in spinners' hands, and indeed no great quantity in sight; but somehow the demand has fallen off. I judge that the cheap cotton of two years ago tempted the spinners and manufacturers to produce more cotton goods than the trade of the world could absorb. As a consequence, they find their warehouses filled to repletion with goods for which there is little or no demand. The manufacturers must have had heavy losses, but jobbers have no stocks on hand, while the retailers have been buying for a year past from hand to mouth. Everyone is waiting for an improvement in trade which does not come. Should buying be stimulated we would soon enjoy prosperous times, for the country is bare of goods and the manufacturers surplus would not take long to work off. The market for cotton can neither be called bull nor bear; it is simply extraordinarily dull."

Several Widows to One Man.

By the decision of the General Term of the Supreme Court in this city in the case of Price vs. Price, it appears that a man may leave two widows, or for that matter half a dozen widows, each of whom might be entitled to her dower right in his real estate, though if there were more than three we do not know how the court would settle the arithmetical problem, as each would be entitled to the income of one-third of his real property. In Price vs. Price, Mr. Price had been previously married, but had not heard that his wife was living for five successive years, so he got married the second time. It was afterwards discovered that his first wife was living, and his second wife brought a suit and had the second marriage declared void, not from the time of the second marriage but from the time of the entering the judgment in that suit. Mr. Price afterwards died, and the Court say that this second wife is entitled to dower in the real estate which belonged to him between the second marriage and the time of the entry of that judgment, and that the first wife is also entitled to dower, that a wife might get a divorce from her husband in this State and be entitled to dower if she outlived him and so would another who might survive him who should marry him afterwards in some other State, and the number of wives might be still further increased in a similar manner and each would have the same claim.

We are certainly getting many common sense decisions from the General Term of our Supreme Court in this city. Judge Daniels has just written an opinion of this character, which is concurred in by Judges Davis and Brady, in the case of Fulton vs. Edgar, where real estate was left by will in trust to the executors to support the testator's widow, and after her death to sell it and invest the proceeds and pay over the interest to certain parties. The executors did not sell the real estate, but held it and managed it for the benefit of all parties until after the time fixed by the will for its final distribution; and then, with the consent of all parties interested, they divided the real estate up and deeded it directly to the different parties in interest, without selling it at all. One of these parties afterwards agreed to sell his share in that real estate, and the purchaser refused to take the title, on the ground that the executors could only do exactly as the will said, that is, sell the property and divide the proceeds. But the Court say, in effect, that that is all nonsense, and that he must pay his money and take his deed. But there was a case in the Court of Appeals, Morse vs. Morse, which is very much against this view, and if this suit should be appealed there is no telling how the Court of Appeals might decide.

The World of Business.

August Earnings of Railroads.

Our table of railroad earnings in August, published on another page, has reports from 72 railroads, whose aggregate mileage and earnings and average earnings per mile were:

	1884.	1883.	Inc. or Dec.	P. c.
Miles	49,353	46,532	Inc. 2,821	6.1
Earnings per mile	589	670	81	12.1

Thus with an addition of 2,821 miles of road, these railroads had $2,122,111 less earnings this year, and their decrease in earnings per mile was no less than 12 per cent. Of the 72 roads, no less than 54 had a decrease in total earnings and 55 a decrease in earnings per mile—a much more general decrease than in any other month.—Railway Gazette.

Chicago Speculators in Wall Street.

On the Chicago Board of Trade are many shrewd men who have enriched themselves solely by speculation in Wall street. During the past year the grain business has been dull and unprofitable, and many of these men have turned to the stock market for recreation and profit. They have been so successful in their operations as to open the eyes of the Wall street brokers with wonder, and their deals have grown to be of such magnitude as to be a most important factor in influencing the prices of stocks. There are several stock commission houses around the Chamber of Commerce whose business averages from 15,000 to 20,000 shares daily, often running up to 30,000 in periods of special activity. There are customers in these offices who never buy or sell less than 1,000 shares at a time, and who frequently have out long or short lines of 10,000 to 20,000 shares. During the late lamented bull market several of these operators took out big profits. Henry Foreman is credited with having cleared $50,000, the Bloom Brothers $150,000, E. Partridge $75,000, W. W. Boynton, after making $90,000 on the short side last spring, is said to have taken out $60,000 on the long side since then. These and a score of others seem to have a faculty in making money out of Wall street. Gould does not catch them asleep. The importance of Chicago as a factor in the stock market can be seen from the fact that during last week about one-third of the total transactions on the Exchange were made on orders from this city. In ordinary times the Chicago business averages fully one-fifth of the whole amount. New York brokers are beginning to recognize the importance of Chicago in this respect, and it is probable that several more branch houses will be established here soon. This is also the central point for all railroad news, and New Yorkers look to the Chicago brokers constantly for information that is likely to affect the course of prices. —Chicago Herald.

The Area of Depression.

A dispatch from Paris states that an appeal has been sent to Prime Minister Ferry by the workingmen of Lyons, urging that the government ship-yards shall be opened in order to provide work for the starving laborers. Thousands of workingmen, says the dispatch, are out of work, and fears are entertained that disorder may result. Yesterday's newspapers which contained that dispatch also contained another from Atlanta, Ga., stating that the owners of the cotton mills there, which give employment and wages to one-third of the laboring population, have agreed to a partial suspension of operations by reason of the general depression of the trade. A few days ago we commented upon the reduction of wages by the operators of the Johnstown Iron Works in this State—works in which five thousand men are employed. From Fall River and other eastern centres of textile manufactures comes the same story of restricted operations and decreased wages. In April last, out of the 228 anthracite iron furnaces of the country, only 107 were in blast and 121 out of blast. With cotton and woolen mills and iron furnaces, so in less degree are other industries adversely affected. The railroads, the business of which at this season of the year, and especially this year when the cereal crops are so great, should be active and profitable, is dull and unprofitable. The depression of the iron trade has affected the trade of the coal roads, and the general traffic lines are striving for business throughout the West by recklessly cutting both freight and passenger rates. As a natural and inevitable result their securities are depreciated in the stock market, to which there is apparently no attainable bottom. These facts give a very fair idea of the condition of business in the United States and France, both of which are, in their respective degrees, sustainers of the policy of protecting by duties their domestic industries. It is true there are no starving workmen in this country, as it is alleged there are in France. Indeed, we do not believe that any one here, able and willing to work, cannot get work at very much better than mere living wages. If it were not so, strikes and threats of strikes would be less common, and the power of the trades unions in shops and factories would dwindle away to nothing. Strikes are common, and have recently been almost invariably successful, and the power of the trade organizations was apparently never stronger. Not only that, but since 1880 the official report of the government shows that the increase of deposits in the State and savings banks of the country has been nearly $500,000,000. In England depression is rather worse than it is here. The London Times recently said that nowhere in England "is there real prosperity," and it states, "In the summer of 1879 the revival of trade set in; but already slackness had begun in 1881, and for the past two years depression has been increasing." It will be remembered that the new era of prosperity set in in this country about the same time or a little earlier, as it was declared by many that the putting into operation of the Resumption act in January of 1879 had the effect of restoring confidence and reviving trade. It is probable, however, that revived trade made the operation of the Resumption act at that time possible; for it came after the almost total failure of the wheat crop of Europe and an extraordinarily bountiful crop here, with great exports and the return of the balance of trade in our favor. But while the new era of trade actively began earlier here than in England, the new era of depression began almost at the same time, and at present it is confined to no country or place whatever. There is one very remarkable difference, however, between the situation here and the situation as it is reported to be in England by the Times. That journal says that while the cotton and woolen manufacturers are reducing wages in order to keep their looms going, that while shipbuilding has come to an end, and that while the iron trade is slack and general business depressed, the amount of trade done is still considerable, as the "railroad traffic shows there is no falling off, and that their revenues are fairly maintained." Here the railroads are the first and worst sufferers. Our manufacturers say that depression here is caused by the tariff on raw materials, and our free traders aver that it is caused by the tariff generally; but how about the depression in England, where there is no tariff on either raw materials or manufactures? The area of depression is as broad as the civilized world, and it is not owing to the tariff, nor to free trade either. There are two other causes to which it may be ascribed, for they prevail everywhere, and are over-production and over-speculation. Depression is the result of a supply beyond the demand, and of the depreciation of real values through the rebound from unreal prices run up by speculation.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Cotton Industries Depressed the World Over.

The cotton factories of the United States are not now making money. Many of them are losing it and some have abandoned work. Some persons hastily ascribe this unfortunate condition to protection, forgetful that not so long ago prosperity existed, and that bad as the situation is it might be made much worse if our home market were not secured to us. England is no better off, in spite of free trade. Our cable dispatches from London on Sunday morning stated that "the cotton industry in Lancashire is suffering the severest depression for many years. Working on short time and only four days in the week is general, while many mills have closed altogether. In Rochdale district thirty mills have shut down." So it would appear that neither protection nor free trade here or abroad has prevented a temporary paralysis of this branch of industry. There must be some general reason for the trouble outside the tariff. The financial editor of the London Times describes the business condition of Great Britain as "very inactive," especially in the iron trade, with slack industrial activity, low prices and wages and decrease of work. From all accounts, therefore, the condition of industry and labor in England is worse than in the United States. The number of cotton mills in the South is computed to be 211; the number of spindles 1,018,688, and bales of cotton consumed annually 339,517. The New Orleans Picayune estimates that there are some sixty mills that are idle, not having been run for several years or not quite completed, making the total spindles in the South about 1,260,000, with a consumptive capacity, if run full time, of about 375,000 bales yearly. It is certain that cotton mills are not, as a rule, paying anything as an investment just now, and that this depression is common to Old England, New England and the South. We have an abiding faith in the return of better days and that the South will first feel the prosperous change. But we may as well make up our minds that competition abroad and at home will be vigorous, and that there will be in this industry, as in everything else, what is called the survival of the fittest.—Augusta Chronicle, Ga.

Plant More Wheat.

The particular object of this article is to urge upon the attention of American farmers a view of the situation of great and immediate interest. The very low price of wheat which is at present ruling for average grades below the cost of production constitutes a situation so discouraging as to render it probable in the opinion of many that a materially reduced acreage will be seeded in the United States this fall. This policy would be a fatal blunder. The situation, in fact, forbidding as its present aspects are, affords the American farmer the greatest opportunity that he has had for many years. It means, if the opportunity be wisely utilized, the the conquest of the European grain market to an extent never before realized. If the American farmer can be brought by the price of wheat seriously to hesitate, as thousands are doing to-day, whether he can afford to occupy his land again with this, the least laborious of all the staple and food crops, what must be the situation of the European farmer, whose rent for one year costs him more than the total value of an average American wheat farm? It means for him prohibition. It means ruin. It means as an inevitable necessity the greatest reduction in wheat cultivation in Europe that has been witnessed in a quarter of a century. The present prices of wheat in Europe are lower than they have been since 1778. The market has been working adversely to foreign producers for many years, but latterly the declining tendency has been greatly strengthened, chiefly through the low prices at which American wheat could be laid down in foreign ports. The charges of transportation to Europe are 65 per cent. less than twenty years ago, and are still inclining to depreciate. It costs less than half as much to deliver Western wheat in Liverpool or Antwerp than the cost of shipment to New York ten years ago. The consequences of these developments have been most marked in England, which imports $275,000,000 to $300,000,000 of foreign breadstuffs, chiefly from the United States. The area of wheat cultivation in England has steadily contracted. In 1872, 3,598,957 acres were cultivated in wheat in the United Kingdom, and the average in 1884 shows a reduction from that figure of about one-third, and a reduction in the last two years of 15 per cent. The present price of wheat in England is 13 to 14 shillings per quarter, or say 45 cents per bushel lower than the average of three years ago. Even then it was generally confessed that English farmers were losing money, and it is not improbable that present prices mean a loss of 40 to 50 cents per bushel on all the wheat raised in England. Much ado has been made about the big crop of 1884 in England. The average yield there, according to the Department of State, is 29⅕ bushels per acre; the yield this year is about 30⅕ bushels, but the increased percentage was on a reduced acreage, and the two factors about balance each other. In the meanwhile prices to English farmers are about 30 cents per bushel less than last year, though in that year, as we have shown above, they were so unsatisfactory as to reduce the acreage 15 per cent. below that of 1882. In the meanwhile all other staple food crops have yielded sparingly in England, and it is now intimated that the foreign requirements of the crop year will exceed the average, amounting to 128,000,000 bushels. The fact that market stocks were remarkably small at harvest is of course considered in this computation. In 1874 the yield of wheat in England was 118,823,000 bushels, and the crop of 1884 is estimated at 80,000,000 bushels, or about the late average. The developments in England in breadstuff interest have been precisely similar to those in other European nations, as the conditions of high rents and comparatively settled economies have been practically the same. Cheap Western cultivation, and a reduction of 65 per cent. in the cost of carriage, have for some years left no margin except in peculiar situations, and the fall of 30 cents which has occurred since the summer of 1883, involves the average European farmer in a loss which must force him into other crops. If we assume that only a moderate contingent of European farmers discontinue wheat cultivation, and that the yield in 1885 will be reduced only 15 per cent., the requirements of Europe would be 100 per cent. greater than they are estimated for the current crop year. It is not unreasonable to anticipate a result even greater than this, and if it be realized the capacity of all nations producing a surplus will be taxed to the uttermost. Such a demand would necessarily enhance prices very greatly and render American farmers a handsome return for their forecast. That the fluctuations of production in Europe are a factor of vastly more importance than the supplies obtained from India and Australia, about which so much is said and written, is easily demonstrated. In 1882 the wheat crop of Europe was about 130,000,000 bushels greater than the late average. In 1883 the production was 204,000,000 bushels less than in 1882, our figures being obtained from official reports to the Department of State. Now, the entire exportable surplus of India and Australia combined has never exceeded 45,000,000 bushels, being less than one-half to one-fifth the amount of the annual variations in European production. Another important consideration is the difference between the cost of transportation from the interior of India and from the interior of the United States to Europe, the former being 45 to 52 cents and the latter 12½ cents per bushel. In the meanwhile if the situation should have the effect on European wheat cultivation of reducing the acreage materially, that fact will soon be known, and will become an element in controlling values before Christmas. This will probably be the signal for the appreciation of prices so anxiously watched for by farmers. We submit, therefore, that in the midst of the most unsatisfactory trade known for many years the essential conditions of the situation demonstrate exclusively that American farmers should sow this fall the largest acreage of wheat that they possibly can, as everything points to a great expansion of the foreign demand for our cereals. The issue should be pressed home upon foreign producers while they are at the greatest disadvantage.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Outlook for Wool Growers.

The depression that characterizes the present condition of the wool market has begun to show its effects upon the courage and confidence of the flock owners of the country. The one is weakening, the other is fast giving place to a desire to reduce the number of sheep now held, or abandon them altogether, and supply their places with animals that make a better showing in the market reports. In common with all true friends of this great industry, the Gazette commiserates flock owners in view of the discouragements by which they are environed; and because of its friendship, does it feel impelled to counsel against a repetition of the mistakes that have too often manifested themselves under similar conditions of the wool market. For it must be remembered that this is by no means the first time that crop products have been selling on or below the dead level of actual cost of production. Men are now living and owning sheep who can recall eras of discouragement to their business fully equaling in intensity that now confronting them. Experience has taught these men how best to recoup themselves against the misfortune of temporary low prices and delayed sales, and it may be confidently predicted that but few of them will fail to profit by the lessons of the past. Men who, as late as 1869—more than two years after the wool tariff of 1867 went into effect—saw thousands of good Merinos sold at $1 per head, and who shortly afterwards saw the same animals and their progeny bringing more than double that sum, are not likely to fail in calling those experiences to their aid just now when the owners of sheep find less encouragement in the markets of the country than some to be held out before their contemporaries in other live stock interests. A careful survey of sheep husbandry in the chief wool producing localities of the world discloses a condition by no means encouraging to those who would be glad to see in the near future a materially advanced wool market. Diminished consumption has resulted not alone in lowering prices, which of itself is unfortunate, but the same influence has brought about an undue accumulation of wool, as is attested by a glance through the warehouses at the points of concentration, and reports from those farms and ranches on which the clip is retained. In an ordinary condition of monetary affairs this condition of the wool market would invite investments by capitalists seeking profits in the rise that is sure to follow. But speculators are more than usually conservative, and the most tempting opportunities for investment are permitted to pass unimproved. Banks and professional money lenders prefer to hold such of their funds as they have on hand, and thus the facilities for laying in stocks ordinarily within the reach of manufacturers are unavailable, while there is nothing in the market for woolen goods to encourage them to make large purchases if the necessary funds could be procured. Quotations of woolen fabrics offer little or no profit on their manufacture from wool at present prices, while the prospect for an advancing goods market is by no means brilliant. In the line of still further assisting the wool growing industry, the Gazette calls attention to the mistake that has invariably accompanied similar depressions in wool production—that of sacrificing good stock, which would pay itself out, and bring a profit in the near future, if held and properly handled. The United States has not yet as many good sheep as are necessary for the convenience and comfort of the people, and that independence of other countries for the means of clothing its people, short of which there is no national safety. The peculiar combination of circumstances that have contributed to bring down and hold down the price of flock products must, in the nature of things, be ere long changed. Even at present prices wool promises as much encouragement to the producer as the grain farmer finds in wheat at 75 cents per bushel, oats at 20 to 24 cents per bushel, and corn at the low figure which begins to loom up behind a heavy crop and moderate demand. Mutton is in fair request, at prices as good as the average for ten years between 1870 and 1880, and the demand is more likely to increase than to diminish while the prices of other meat-producing animals keep up to anything like their present figures. Don't sacrifice your sheep. If you have a surplus, cull them carefully, keeping the best, and put the remainder in good condition for bringing the best price the market affords. The wisdom of such a course has been vindicated in times of similar depression in the near future of those who, by economy and prudence, tide themselves over the shoals of the present situation.—Chicago Breeders' Gazette.

Beet Sugar---A Foolish Fiscal Policy.

The phenomenal nature of the development of beetroot sugar in Europe is the most remarkable feature of the present commercial situation, but does not afford any occasion of serious alarm. The output has been forced up by the bounty system from 1,150,000 tons of 2,240 pounds each in the season of 1884–5 to 2,330,000 tons for the season of 1883–4 against a cane sugar output for the latter season of only 2,150,000 tons from exporting countries. It is supposed that non-exporting countries raised about 1,600,000 tons cane sugar, making the entire crop of the past year 3,750,000 tons; but it is not much use to take non-exporting countries into any calculation on the subject. The immediate cause of the beet sugar increase is the competition of France and Germany. As long as these nations choose to indulge in the costly national game of bluff, which they are playing at great cost to their respective treasuries, we must keep still and wait for the stop which is sure to be eventually put to every such playing. The interval will be useful to us if it teaches us practical lessons of economy, but whether we choose to learn by our enforced experience or not, we cannot escape from the necessity of submitting while the European conflict goes on. Under the injudicious stimulation, the beet crop, according to telegraphic information from Europe, is very large, and unless the roots are largely fed to cattle or used in distilling (which the bewitched owners are not over-likely to permit, anticipating heavy returns from bounty-fed sugars and needing the instruction which they will derive from a little harsh experience) the output of beet sugar will be the largest yet recorded. Cut loaf sells in New York in small lots to retailers now at seven cents; in England, where consumers are close to the cut-throat game of beet export, fine loaf retails at five cents. But the poor German people, whose government is robbing them to forward the assumed desideratum of exportation, have to pay nine cents a pound for a very poor quality indeed. The trouble is in the doctrine of bounties. No other fiscal system is so bad as that which endeavors to promote production by the payment of bounties immediately from the public purse. —New Orleans Picayune.

The Copper Situation.

The recent sale of 12,000,000 pounds of copper by the Calumet and Hecla Company to a pool of manufacturers, at 13 cents, shows that there is no hope of an advance for the rest of the year. It may be put down that the prevailing figures will be 13 cents for Lake, and from 12 to 12½ cents for other known outside brands. An estimate of the output of copper for this year is as follows: Lake, 70,000,000 pounds; Montana, 42,000,000; Arizona, 24,000,000; Colorado, Missouri, etc., 4,000,000, making an aggregate of 140,000,000 pounds. The Engineering and Mining Journal urges in the most emphatic manner that "every lake mine that cannot lay down copper in New York for less than 13 cents close down immediately. It is a useless exhaustion of reserves and of balances to continue at the present rate. Nor should any mine in the Rocky Mountains that cannot lay down copper in New York at 12 cents go on with a hopeless fight, unless it can secure reduction in freights on fuel and product to offset lower prices."—St. Louis Age of Steel.

The Building Strikes.

The architects say that the bricklayers' strike is practically over, and that they can get as many men as they want at ten hours a day. Notwithstanding the fact that hundreds of bricklayers have secured work at nine hours per diem, it is believed that had the owners stopped work entirely during the past month or two the men would have been forced to succumb from sheer necessity. Even as it stands they are getting into bad financial straits, and were it not for the material assistance afforded by the stoppage of the stonecutters, the strike would probably have been over ere this. A great many builders have proceeded with the walls of their structures, being of course unable to get any stone set, the result being that in many parts of the city the curious sight is to be seen of buildings three, four and five stories high devoid of their fronts. The stonecutters' strike does not seem to make much headway. The working stonecutters receive $6 one week and $6 every subsequent two weeks—that is an average of $4 per week from their organization. Is this, it might well be asked, sufficient compensation when their regular wages amount to $4.50 per day? Numbers of the men don't think it is, and there is a good deal of grumbling and internal dissension among them. The fact is, there is no principle at stake with them. They are contending neither for an increase of wages nor a decrease in the hours of labor. They are fighting in the interests of the bricklayers, who have confessedly lost the day or are on the verge of losing it. There has been some talk of submitting the whole matter to the arbitration of several influential citizens, but nothing has yet been accomplished in this direction. Such action would be in the highest degree welcome if it would put an end to a condition of things which is not only hurtful to the entire building interests but which promises to rebound very severely on the heads of the workmen and their families during the approaching winter.

The stone piers, five in number, of the new Harlem Bridge will be finished within a week or two. These piers are about 60 feet high, and are founded on timber platforms resting on the gravel which underlies the river bed. At the site of one of the piers, the dredging developed a bed of quicksand, rendering it necessary to pile the foundation. The bridge will have two railroad tracks and two footwalks, and there will be a clear headroom for boats of 28.7 feet at mean high water. The railway will connect at One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street with the Manhattan Elevated Railway at Second and Third avenues, north of the river; it will cross the depot grounds of the New Haven Railroad on iron trestle work, and proceeding northward, traverse the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth Wards to Jerome Park on one side and the Bronx River on the other. The routes and grades are so established as not to occupy any streets nor to cross any at grade. Mr. J. J. Croes is the engineer in charge. As far back as 1877, when engineer of the Park Department, Mr. Croes laid out the streets in the annexed district with a view to the construction of a rapid transit road. The plans of the Suburban Rapid Transit Company have been prepared by him. The iron structures and approaches to the bridge are expected to represent the latest and best practice in iron bridge construction. H. W. B. Phinney is the resident engineer. The bridge will not be completed until some time in 1885, but when in a condition to be used will mark a new era for the "L" road system and the property of the annexed district.

The Mining Record and the Real Estate Chronicle have been calling the attention of architects, builders and plumbers to the desirability of using copper instead of tin and lead for roofing, stove and all cylindrical piping. Copper is now very cheap, with no prospect of becoming dearer. It is practically indestructible, and in the long run, at present prices, it is cheaper to use than either tin or lead. We are fast becoming the greatest copper producing country in the world, and it is very desirable that some new uses should be found for that very valuable metal.

According to the Tribune's Chicago correspondent the discovery was made last week that a complete copy had been made of the abstract of title books in the possession of the County Recorder. In the great fire all the county records were burned, and, following that catastrophe, the county purchased from a private abstract firm their set of books at an expenditure of $40,000, and has since expended many additional thousands to complete the records. It now transpires that an employe in the Recorder's office has, with the aid of a corps of stenographers, made an absolute copy of all the records by working at night and oftentimes taking record books away from the office over night. It has been claimed that the Recorder was cognizant of all these facts, and that he had an interest in the new set of books. This, however, he denies. The question is now raised whether the act was in any way criminal, the claim being put forward that the records are public property. The disclosure has had the effect of causing the Recorder to decline a renomination for office. The value of the new set of books is claimed to be fully $150,000. The claim that it was in any way criminal for the Recorder to allow these copies to be taken is absurd. It is a great pity that there are not in existence such copies of the records of New York city, to lessen the charges and expenses with which the transfer of real estate is burdened.

There is a common tradition that the timbers of old churches were made of chestnut wood. If this were the case, chestnut trees must once have been common in countries where now they are extremely rare. A skilful chemist, M. Payen, has procured a large number of specimens of timber from the old churches and buildings in Paris, which he has subjected to careful examination, and he believes that none of them were chestnut. If letters are drawn upon oak and chestnut planks, by means of pure sulphate of iron dissolved in distilled water, the characters appear at once, in black upon the oak, and in deep violet upon the chestnut. Ammonia produces a red color, of short duration, upon the chestnut, paler and less distinct upon the oak. All the French and American varieties of oak show very distinctly, on their transverse sections, medullary rays crossing the woody fibres from the centre across the circumference. Chestnut timber possesses only concentric layers.—La Science pour Tous Les Mondes.

Real Estate Department.

With October comes the beginning of the fall campaign for real estate. Very little was done during September beyond selling a portion of the Deane estate. There was really nothing transpired to give a hint as to what might be expected for the residue of this year. The best judges among the real estate dealers, however, think that the market will be dull but strong. Low prices will be submitted to only where large parcels are forced on the market. The renting this fall has developed the fact that high priced houses with large rents are not in demand. There are too many suites to-let also in the apartment houses, while the supply of offices down-town is in excess of present requirements. Of course this affects the market price of these different kinds of properties. Down-town investment property and stores and warehouses in all parts of the city are in eager demand. Holders of such are reluctant to sell, but if they are willing there are plenty of customers for business property.

THE CONVEYANCES.

The number of official transfers of property during the past month shows an increase as compared with September, 1883, but the amount invested exhibits a considerable falling off. The total business of the year to September 30th is much larger than it was last year, both in the number of transactions and in the total sum involved. The mortgages show a notable increase, which is not a good sign. It should be remembered that the September returns really represent transactions originating in August. The October conveyances will probably make a poor showing, as they will simply record the business done mainly in September. The following is the table:

BUILDING STATISTICS FOR SEPTEMBER.

The bricklayers' and stonecutters' strikes have had their effect, as will be seen by the annexed table. There were only 144 projected buildings filed during the month, against 175 last year and 309 the year before. The proposed expenditure is $1,633,695, against $3,603,671 in 1882. There is a decrease in every part of the city, even in the annexed district. The totals for the first eight months of the year, however, make almost as good a showing as last year and the year before. The heavy falling off is in the last two months, and is to be ascribed mainly to the strikes. There were, however, an unusually large number of plans filed in May and June, as it was apprehended that a new and more stringent building law would go into operation, but the Governor vetoed that excellent measure on technical grounds, and therefore it is natural that there should be some falling off in August and September from this course. But here is the table:

On Wednesday last Fairchild & De Walltearss sold some valuable property at Yonkers belonging to the Hubbard estate. It comprises 263 lots, of which some forty lots were sold at from $200 to $400 each. Four lots on Seymour street sold for $220 each, and lots on Centre, Walnut and Franklin streets at from $300 to $410.

On Tuesday, October 7, James L. Wells will sell, at No. 111 Broadway, some very valuable factory property in South Brooklyn, near Atlantic Basin. It is situated in Imlay street, near William. Mr. Wells will also sell, on the same day, the Harlem River water front leasehold, on Walton avenue, between One Hundred and Forty-sixth and One Hundred and Forty-ninth streets.

A very valuable lot and stable, at No. 3 West Thirty-sixth street, will be disposed of by E. H. Ludlow next Thursday, October 9th. The stable is two stories high, being 25x77, while the lot is 98 9 feet. The purchaser of the stable is to have the option of purchasing the house and lot at No. 398 Fifth avenue.

On Wednesday, October 8, Mr. Harnett will sell one vacant lot on the west side of Ninth avenue near Eighty-eighth street, and five lots adjoining on Eighty-eighth street. This is a neighborhood in the line of improvement, and the lots are very desirable from their location. The same auctioneer will, on October 9, sell the fifty-four acres near the town of Westchester, known as Tilden Park, and 53 acres adjoining, on the Boston Post road. This is very desirable property.

On Tuesday, October 14, James L. Wells will sell, under the direction of Charles Benner, attorney, 264 lots in the Twenty-third Ward, being portions of the recently-partitioned Fox estate. The property will be sold without restrictions and the sale is to be absolute. A perfect title will be given to each purchaser. In our advertising columns will be found a full description of the property.

Our advertising columns show that the fall season has opened in earnest. The property of James D. Fish is to be sold on Wednesday, October 15th, Richard V. Harnett being the auctioneer. It comprises a number of parcels, all of the choicest kind. Among them are Nos. 31 and 33 Broadway, 50 Broad street, 1424 and 1426 Broadway, 107 to 119 West Thirty-ninth street, 145 West Thirty-second street, 130 to 134½ West Thirty-third street, Madison avenue, on the east side, facing Mt. Morris square, and a house on One Hundred and Twentieth street, 83 feet east of Madison avenue. From the locations it will be seen all this rank are some of the best kind of investment property.

On October 16, H. Henriques will sell, under partition, the investment property Nos. 88 and 90 Bowery, No. 144 Hester street and the southwest corner of Elizabeth and Hester streets. This is very superior investment property.

Gossip of the Week.

V. K. Stevenson, Jr., has leased for the Pike estate the property 100 feet front on Broadway by 96 feet deep on Twenty-third street, facing Madison square, southeast corner of Twenty-third street, together with the seven-story brick stores and flats thereon, as an entirety for ten years for $500,000, being $50,000 per annum, the owners to pay the taxes. The property is leased by D. J. Sprague, ex-proprietor of the Gault House in Louisville, Ky., and of the St. James in New York. The lessee will take possession on May 1st and will make extensive alterations, with the object of converting the buildings into a first-class hotel.

The Board of Armory Commission, of which Gen. Alex. Shaler is secretary, recommends the purchase of about twenty-three lots bounded by Sixty-seventh and Sixty-eighth streets, Ninth avenue and the Boulevard, for an armory site for the Twenty-second Regiment, at a cost of $265,000, and thirty-two lots comprising the block between Madison and Fourth avenues, Ninety-fourth and Ninety-fifth streets, at a cost of $350,000, as an armory site for the Eighth Regiment. The approval of the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund is necessary before the purchases are made. The latter have already authorized the purchase for the Twelfth Regiment of twenty lots on the west side of Ninth avenue, between and on Sixty-first and Sixty-second streets, at a cost of $208,000, as mentioned in our last.

Maclay & Davies have purchased from Moss S. Phillips the five-story stone front stores and flats on the southeast corner of Dey and Greenwich streets, 43x62.2x40.3x77.8, and from George H. Morris the plot on the southeast corner of Broadway and Sixty-second street, 116.2 on Broadway x88.3x100.5x146.8 on Sixty-second street.

Fleming Smith has sold the plot of ground on the east side of Riverside avenue, 71 feet north of One Hundred and Fourth street, 38.6x100x36.6x100, for $14,000.

John F. B. Smyth has sold for Samuel Weil the three-story brown stone dwelling No. 331 East Forty-first street, 20x50x100, for $9,950, and for M. Rinaldo two five-story brick tenements, Nos. 230 and 232 East Twenty-ninth street, for $35,000.

It is reported that B. S. Levy has sold two four-story brick tenements on the north side of One Hundred and Ninth street, between Lexington and Fourth avenues, each 18.9x68x100.11.

Nathan Ballard has sold the three-story brick dwelling No. 106 East One Hundred and Fourteenth street, 16.8x100, for about $8,250.

T. B. Robertson has sold for the estates of Henry Corse and Hopper S. and S. H. Mott, four lots on the north side of Fifty-fourth street, between Ninth and Tenth avenues, on private terms; and for H. F. Crosby the three-story brick dwelling No. 237 West Nineteenth street, to George W. Thedford, for $5,750.

The Board of Education has purchased from Max Kayser seven lots on the north side of One Hundred and Twentieth street, 175 feet west of Sixth avenue, for $36,000, as a school site.

Messrs. Higgins & Keating have purchased from Capt. A. H. Anderson eight lots comprising the front on the east side of Second avenue, between Seventy-sixth and Seventy-seventh streets, 204.4x113, for improvement; there is 12 feet of rock on them.

John Livingston has sold the three-story brick dwelling No. 331 West Forty-sixth street, 19.6x50x100.5, to a Mr. Wallace, for $30,000.

The four-story brick dwelling No. 499 Fifth avenue, 16.9x100, has been conveyed by W. Wheeler Smith to Alex. W. and Thomas Hume, for $70,000.

V. K. Stevenson, Jr., has sold for Wm. R. Martin the four-story high stoop brown stone private residence No. 6 East Forty-third street, for $38,000, to E. B. Sutton, the well-known California shipper.

Walter W. Montague has sold the two-story and attic brick house No. 486 Greenwich street, 20x70x20x53, to Mr. Brown, for $7,200.

J. W. Stevens has sold for W. J. Merritt the five-story brick and stone flats Nos. 228 and 230 West One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street, 25x70 x100 each, to C. Blinn, Jr.

It is reported that Gillie & Walker have sold the "Cameron," No. 452 West Fifty-seventh street, a five-story brick and brown stone tenement, 27.6x86x100.

Brooklyn.

W. F. Corwith has sold the house and lot No. 99 Huron street to Frederick B. Devoe for $3,200.

Out Among the Builders.

It is reported that Andrew Lester contemplates the erection of a nine or ten-story carpet factory on three lots on the west side of Eighth avenue, near Fifty-seventh street. It is stated that the architect is N. G. Starkweather.

Higgins & Keating propose to erect ten five-story flats and stores on the east side of Second avenue, running from Seventy-sixth to Seventy-seventh street. The two corner buildings will be 27.2x82 each, the six inside avenue flats 25x78 each, one on Seventy-sixth street 27x80 and one on Seventy-seventh street 27x80. The material will be of iron and Philadelphia brick, with blue stone and terra cotta trimmings and all improvements will be provided. The estimated cost is stated to be $200,000. The plans are being drawn by A. B. Ogden.

C. F. Ridder, Jr., has the plans under way for three five-story brick and stone tenements, 25x83.6 each, to be erected at Nos. 513, 515 and 517 West Fifty-second street, for Elsworth L. Striker and John Quinn, at a cost of about $51,000.

Five architects have been selected to draw designs in competition for the new armories. General Shaler felt disinclined to mention their names, but stated they were all first-class men. The designs are to be ready by November 1, and the successful architect will receive the usual remuneration and supervise the work. When asked whether the unsuccessful architects would receive any compensation, the General told our reporter that they gave their services voluntarily, and he was not aware of any fee having been voted to them. Each plan will be sent in under a nom de plume.

W. Graul has the designs for three five-story brick and stone tenements, two 25x62 each, and one 25x85, to be erected at Nos. 13, 14 and 16 Pitt street, to cost about $40,000. Charlotte D. Thompson, guardian, purchased this property under foreclosure in July last.

J. F. Burrows is the architect for the flour mill to be erected at One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street and East River for W. H. Payne, as mentioned in our last. The size will be 37x78, and the material brick. The mill will contain a large elevator. The cost is estimated at $80,000.

It is the intention of the Florence Apartment Company to erect a nine-story addition to their "Florence" on Nineteenth street and Fourth avenue. It will have a frontage of about 150 feet on the street and 150 feet on the avenue. There will be forty new suites in all, some of which will be two stories high on the duplex system. They will contain from eight to fifteen rooms. The first-story dining room will be 65 feet square, over which will be a stained glass dome, above which will be a flower garden, with fountain, for the use of guests, size 40x40. The fronts will be of Philadelphia brick and stone, and will conform to the architecture of the present building, with which it will be connected. The extension will contain four elevators and will be thoroughly fireproof. The two houses at present on the site will be demolished within a few months, though it is not expected that foundations will be commenced before the early spring. The cost of the improvement is estimated at $800,000. The plans are being drawn by Montrose W. Morris. It may be added that the plans were filed in April last (plan 533) for a brick and Ohio stone trimmed flat to be erected on the southeast corner of Nineteenth street and Fourth avenue, the owners named being J. Lawrence Aspinwall, secretary of the Florence Apartment Co., and Mrs. U. B. Matthews, the architects mentioned being Renwick, Aspinwall & Russell.

William Howe has the plans for the erection of a two-and-one-half-story frame cottage at Fordham for J. D. Jersey. It will be 36x36 and cost $5,000.

Charles Baxter has the designs for a two-story, basement and attic frame and stone cottage, 20x45 and 25x30, to be erected for James Breece, at Morris Dock.

Excavations have commenced for the erection of two two-story and gable country villas, 35x45 each, to be erected on the bluff at Spuyten Duyvil, at an elevation of 200 feet above the Hudson. They will be trimmed in oak and cherry and have all the modern improvements, including electrical apparatus. There will be a billiard-room in each house, one of which will be occupied by A. Putnam and one by W. Cox. They will cost over $10,000 each. The architect is Montrose W. Morris, who is also drawing plans for two more buildings on the same spot, to be erected by Mr. Putnam.

Thomas Cowman will shortly build a five-story brick and stone tenement, 25x59, with extension 19x16, on the north side of Sixtieth street, commencing 125 feet west of Tenth avenue, to cost $14,000; architect, M. L. Ungrich.

Francis Jezek has the plans for a three-story double frame tenement, 28x45, to be erected on the corner of Twenty-third street and Fourth avenue, for Mr. Greenwald, at a cost of $4,500. The water closets on each floor will form a special feature, being so placed as to be accessible from both sides of the house.

Brooklyn.

H. Vollweiler has completed plans for two three-story frame double stores and tenements, with all improvements, each 20x55, to be erected on the corner of Bushwick avenue and Boerum street, for Mrs. Stutzman, at a cost of about $9,800; a three-story frame French flat, 20x55, on Broadway, 50 feet west of Van Buren street, for Mr. Post; a three-story brick store and dwelling, 25.6x63, to be erected at No. 174 Ewen street, for Mr. Dahlbender, to cost about $7,000; and a three-story frame double tenement, 25x55, to be erected on Locust street, for George Loeffler, to cost about $4,500.

Amzi Hill is preparing plans for a three-story brick (stone trimmed) flat, 20x45, to be erected on the southwest corner of Madison street and Throop avenue, and ten two-story brown stone flats, 20x42, with one-story extension 12x12, on Madison street, adjoining, for Paul C. Grening.

Important to Contractors.

Sealed proposals will be received at the hall of the Board of Education, corner of Grand and Elm streets, by the school trustees of the 20th Ward, until 4 o'clock P. M. on Monday, the 13th day of October, 1884, for alterations and repairs of drainage, etc., at Grammar School-house No. 26, on West 30th street, near 6th avenue.

Sealed proposals for furnishing the materials and labor, and doing the work required for constructing a house for the Fire Department, to be erected on north side of 67th street, between Lexington and Third avenues, for Hook and Ladder Company No. 16, etc., will be received by the Board of Commissioners at the head of the Fire Department, at Nos. 155 and 157 Mercer street, until 11 o'clock A. M., Friday, October 10, 1884.

Proposals for the labor for repairs to roof of the work-house, Blackwell's Island, the materials for which will be furnished by the department, and which is to be let in two separate contracts, to wit: One for the male wing and another for the female wing of said workhouse building, will be received at the office of the Department of Public Charities and Correction, No. 66 3d avenue, until 9.30 o'clock A. M., of Friday, October 10, 1884.

Special Notices.

Attention is called to the advertisement of R. E. Smith, manufacturer of hardwood trim, doors and mantels. Mr. Smith has been in business five years. He has done work on the residence of Cornelius Vanderbilt, Fifth avenue and Fifty-seventh street, the Morse Building, Temple Court, and on sixteen dwellings on West Seventieth street for Mr. Lindsley. He has the finest and most recently patented machinery and has every facility for turning out work both in quality and quantity. He makes a specialty of interior fittings and is also a carpenter and builder, having done the carpentry on the Craske building on Rose street. His business is at Nos. 446 and 448 Water street.

Thomas H. Terry & Co.'s card appears in another column. They are agents for the New York and Brooklyn Bridge Company's property in these two cities, and transact a real estate and insurance business generally. Mr. Terry, it may be added, graduated from the well-known firm of E. H. Ludlow & Co. Their office is at No. 5 Pine street.

F. Mitchell, plain and ornamental plasterer, has been established eighteen years. In addition to new work he also contracts for the repairing of plastering and kalsomining, and gives prompt attention to all orders entrusted to him. His office is at No. 202 East Nineteenth street.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

BRICKS.—Details of the market for Common Hards during the past week are somewhat meagre and without features of special interest beyond what may be considered ordinary changes under regular and natural influences. One point not often noted before during the present season has been an accumulation of stock in excess of the outlet during the greater portion of the week, and receivers inform us that as many as ten or a dozen barge loads have frequently carried over for want of customers. In this connection, however, it may be well to record that buyers have drawn the line on quality quite sharply, and taken about all the really fine or choice stock, so that what was left appears to have been made up of medium and below. Prices have ruled in accordance with the situation as noted above, a steady tone holding on upper grades, while for the less desirable stock buyers secured more or less advantage, possibly on the average about 12½ per M as compared with last week. About all reports continue to agree that the demand has come almost entirely from buyers who will take the bulk of the stock handled into immediate consumption, and that little or nothing has gone into yard on storage. Indeed dealers continue to show a great deal of indifference about the future, as between the influences of probable delayed and curtailed consumption, plenty of brick at primary points, and pretty good amounts laid away here some time ago and still on hand to fall back upon, they have rather an independent position. As matters stand at the present writing $6.50 is still named for some of the best Haverstraws, but $6.25 practically the top, and "Up Rivers" rarely exceeding $5.50, with quite a number down to $5.00 per M, the quality of several lots having run very poor. Jerseys range at $5.00@5.50 per M., but cargoes really good enough to command the outside rate are more easily sold than a cheaper grade. There has been a good, indeed a quick, demand for Pales and all the best lots rapidly disappeared, with buyers making no objection to a cost at about $3.50 per M., though some poor lots went as low as $3.00. Fronts firm for most grades.

LATH.—Very little change has taken place in the situation since our last. The previous full distribution left something of a shadow upon the market, inasmuch as the attendance of buyers was small and openly the demand did not amount to much. Receivers, however, have experienced no difficulty in securing attention toward anything they had to offer and placed it without modifying former rates, while there is the usual expectation that bids are just about coming up a peg or two higher on the "next lot." To cover the bidding and asking prices we quote at $2.15@2 25 per M, and the general tone may be called steady.

LIME.—Nothing fresh to suggest. Arrivals of Eastern have not been very extensive; the demand appeared to be waiting for about all that came to hand, and the previous line of values was maintained without difficulty.

LUMBER.—The general market has changed very little since our last. By picking out exceptional transactions operators could make a pretty good showing both as to quantity and price, and some indeed do endeavor to word their reports as to convey an impression that positive improvement is in progress. It is not difficult, however, to find suggestions of a directly opposite character, and one set of views balances the other. Taken as a whole, however, the gain in tone noted last week is preserved if it has not made further progress and there is a basis for more hopeful feelings. Sellers are at least successful in preventing further shrinkage on desirable goods and buyers show fair interest when anything attractive is presented, and some are looking slightly beyond the current offering. This is seasonable as it is getting along in time now when any necessity for additional stock should be attended to. Offerings fair and with few exceptions can be increased if the condition of the market warrants it.

Eastern Spruce has to depend to a considerable extent upon a scattered demand and the market is uncertain. Many if not a great majority of the large local dealers have so long been picking up odd cargoes of an attractive character that they are now pretty well filled up with an excellent assortment of stock and make poor customers for immediate offerings, thus compelling receivers to hunt around for an outlet. Sometimes they meet with prompt success and can, under the circumstances, make a fair sale, and again it becomes hard work to handle arrivals promptly and when captains commence to grumble about the detention of vessels the usual results on the price of lumber follow. Advices from primary sources indicate continued small shipments. Quotations still range at $11.50@15.00 for randoms, up to $16.00 for specials, but shadings must be made whenever the seller seeks to hasten business.

White Pine about the same as before. Some little foreign demand now and then asserts itself, and the home outlets for building and manufacturing purposes have moderate representation, but the movement is neither full nor active, and stock does not diminish so far as can be discovered. Pretty much the old line of valuation is made all around, though a portion of the trade seems to feel that outside figures would be difficult to obtain, and especially since the recent open admission of lower figures at primary sources. We quote at $16@17 for West India shipping boards; $18@27 for South American do.; $13@14 for box boards, and $16@18 for extra do.

Yellow Pine is "handy to have in the yard," and some few dealers are on the lookout for a moderate quantity of stock to shape up for winter trade. There is also a few contracts for specials awaiting a decision, and the export call has to be waited upon occasionally. The entire demand, however, amounts to little, and generally the tone is slow, with about old cost ruling in a nominal sort of way, though actual sales occasionally show a lower range. The reduction in the product is small. We quote as follows: Randoms, $17@19.50 per M; Specials, $19.50@21 do.; Green Flooring Boards, $20@22; Dry, do., do., $22@23; Siding, $20@22 do.; Cargoes f. o. b. at Atlantic ports, $13@15 for rough, and $18@20 for dressed. Cargoes f. o. b. at Gulf ports, $12@14 for rough, and $20@21 for dressed.

Hardwoods are selling somewhat more freely on local orders, and so far as the market goes it is a steady one. That, however, applies only to carefully selected first-class stock, as whenever an attempt is made to "shove" the poor stuff buyers stand off, and are only drawn back by the attraction of low prices. Exports continue fair in part on through sales. We quote at wholesale rates by car load as follows: Walnut, $65@100 per M.; ash, $33@40 do.; oak, $30@55 do.; maple, $20@32.50 do.; chestnut, $25@30 do.; cherry, $50@80 do.; whitewood, $27@35 do., do.; elm, $22@25; hickory, $45@50 do.

The exports of lumber from the port of New York during the month of September last, and since January 1, were as follows:

	Feet.
To West Indies	2,887,000
To South America	2,611,000
To East Indies	1,063,000
To Europe	61,000
Total feet	6,622,000
Previously reported this year	48,317,000
Total since Jan. 1, 1884, feet	54,939,000

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

STATE.

ALBANY MARKET.

The Argus reports for week ending September 30 as follows:

Only a fair business for the season of the year can be reported, with a moderate attendance of buyers. A sale of about three million feet of shipping box for the export trade has been reported at a little less than the figures in our schedule, whice has had the effect of stiffening prices upon that quality of pine and on the general market. Receipts continue large, and the assortment in market is unusually good. At the mills manufacturing is decreasing, and the stock of logs cut in the woods in the coming winter will be comparatively small. Spruce and hemlock are in good supply, and the sales continue to be lively and prices have been very steady throughout the season. The stock of hardwoods on the yards is very good, and all kinds can be readily supplied well seasoned and fit for immediate use. Lath are in good stock. Shingles of all kinds and qualities are in fair supply.

THE WEST.

SAGINAW VALLEY.

LUMBERMAN'S GAZETTE,
BAY CITY, MICH.

The outlook for lumber manufacturers on the Saginaw River is anything but encouraging. With docks filled to overflowing, logs being forced on them by the boom companies, which they are compelled to accept, and which they are obliged to saw to take care of, the prospects are disheartening, especially as the directors of the Tittawabassee Boom Company, which is the main cause of the log difficulty, will not hold a meeting until October 6th, and their action even at that time is involved in considerable doubt. The difficulty which was feared at the meeting of the manufacturers, a week ago, when it was resolved to request the boom companies to stop rafting logs, has been met, by the service of notices, by Mosher & Fisher and other firms who want their logs, on the company to the effect that rafting must be continued. What the result of the meeting will be it is at present hard to conjecture.

So far as sales are concerned there are very few reported, and those which are ferreted out by the dint of perseverance wind up with the usual p. t. Mosher & Fisher report a sale of 1,000,000 feet to Eastern parties, prices not stated; W. S. Green & Son also report sales of 4?,000 feet as follows: 110,000 feet to Ohio parties at $16.75 straight; 150,000 at $15 straight; 50,000 at $14 straight; 60,000 at $20 straight, and 50,000 at $12 straight. These latter figures, however, are no criterion by which to judge of prices. We have heard of one transaction also of very wide extra lumber at prices fully equal to those of last year, but it is an extraordinary lot. The fact is that the manufacturers seem inclined to persist in the folly of refusing to give either sales or prices, and are thereby increasing the difficulty they would like to avoid. Candor, however, compels the admission that dealers can come to this market and purchase lumber at about just such figures as they wish to offer, and in this assertion we are backed up by the admissions of N. B. Bradley and others at the recent meeting.

The Northwestern Lumberman says of the Chicago wholesale market:

The market has been slow all the week. Such cargoes as were strictly desirable, and shingles, have been taken readily, but indifferent stuff has been neglected.

It is claimed that prices are substantially unchanged, piece stuff still selling for $8.25 to $8.50, the latter bringing about as good dimension as there is afloat, and including all sizes and lengths, with the exception of long and heavy timbers. All sorts of prices are being made on the latter, so that it is nearly impossible to quote them accurately.

It is difficult to see how the market is to be maintained at the figures that have prevailed for the past two months, in the face of the fact that the mill docks are loaded up, and there is plenty of Lake Huron lumber that the holders would like to put on the market here if it could be made to bear it. The fact that the docks along Saginaw River are loaded so full that the mills must soon stop for want of piling room, must have some influence on this market. If present prices are maintained it must be through the sheer grit and pertinacity of the holders and commission men. A brisk movement out of the yards would help to sustain the market, and that is hoped for as the result of the recent cut in freight rates. But the general statement of the yard men is that they have not noticed as yet any very perceptible effect from the cut rates.

Piece stuff, green	$8 25@ 8 50
Long timbers, green	10 00@11 50
Coarse common	9 00@ 9 50
Boards and strips, No. 2, green	9 50@11 00
" medium, green	11 00@15 00
" No. 1, green	15 00@18 00
High grade	18 00@22 00

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

There is but one matter of any interest or importance connected with the lumber trade of the West. This is the railroad freight muddle. That Wisconsin and Minnesota lumbermen are still at such disadvantage as to prevent their sharing the business of the Southwest is apparent on the face. Whether all the efforts of the Milwaukee and Omaha lines, aided by the Minneapolis & St. Louis (Rock Island) road, will be able to stem the tide against the combined Chicago lines is a matter of conjecture. We still adhere to the belief that for the fall trade of the Southwest the lake lines intend to maintain control no matter about rates.

All reports agree that the retail yards are running with the lowest stocks ever known. Every dealer desires to keep himself in a position to take advantage of a railroad freight war, and so buys only what he needs to fill orders on hand from week to week. This is one of the results of the fight.

The condition of trade at St. Louis is in the main satisfactory. The daily shipments average up 800,- 000 feet against 1,000,000 feet last year. The St. Louis roads are to some extent taking care of trade along their line. They have a rate which enables them to maintain the business at most competing points at considerable better prices than the Northwest has to coucede to meet Chicago.

St Paul and Minneapolis are each getting rid of from 60 to 65 cars per day, the former coming principally from Wisconsin. The trade is principally from Dakota, Southern Minnesota and Iowa, with a light share to Manitoba. We are assured that while prices of common stuffs have not advanced, the holders are now unwilling to make any such concessions as ruled last month. There is no longer any doubt that there will be fully as many logs in sight next spring, old and new, as there was last spring, with a fair chance of exceeding the amount by even hundreds of millions.

SOUTH AMERICA.

This week's mail from Rio de Janeiro reports:

Pitch Pine—There have been no arrivals since our last report, nor for the past month, against 361,3 7 feet in August last year. The quotations are still 40$000—41$000 per dozen, market firm.

White Pine—The Arica brought about 19,000 feet from New York, which were sold at 120 reis; at this price there are still buyers. Receipts in August were 82,879 fee , against 255,845 feet in August, 1883.

Swedish Pine—Is quite unchanged as to quotations, viz: 34$000—35$000 per dozen for white and 36$000—37$000 red pine. The receipts in August were 1,946 dozen, against 3,602 dozen in August, 1883.

Spruce Pine—There have been no arrivals, nor transactions. Receipts nil in August, 1884 and nil in the same month of 1883.

ENGLAND.

The London Timber Trade's Journal reports:

Cedar.—This market is still very dull, and we suppose is likely to remain so until old stocks are worked up and low-priced mahogany is less plentiful.

American black walnut.—There is more inquiry, and sales have been more frequent of late. Poor logs show no better figures, but stocks are lower. For prime large wood buyers are always on the lookout, for such prices remain firm.

American whitewood.—This trade continues to develop, the consumption now being very considerable, and in the sheds at the docks there is now to be found an unusually large variety of logs and cut stuff of li dimensions.

METALS.—COPPER—Ingot has very light sale, and the great bulk of the business is confined to small odd lots as wanted for home consumptive wants. Offerings are ample, and prices have rather an easy tone. About 13@13⅛c. named for lake, and on other kinds the cost grades down to 12c. Manufactured copper meeting with about an average jobbing demand and at somewhat irregular rates, but the former general range of figures is obtained. We quote as follows: Brazier's Copper, ordinary size, over 16 oz. per sq. foot, 22c. per lb.; do. do. do., 16 oz. and over 12 oz. per sq. foot, 24c. per lb.; do. do., 10 and 12 oz. per sq. foot, 27c. per lb.; do., do., lighter than 10 oz. per sq. foot, 29c. per lb.; circles less than 84 inches in diameter, 25c. per lb.; 84 inches in diameter and over, 28c. per lb.; segment and pattern sheets, 25c. per lb.; locomotive fire-box sheets, 23c. per lb.; Sheathing Copper, over 12 oz. per sq. foot, 20c. per lb., and Bolt Copper, 23c. per lb. IRON—Scotch Pig without much animation, and showing no great amount of strength on values. Advices from abroad are, on the whole, quite firm, but buyers here do not seem to be greatly interested, and importers attribute the dull tone to competition from domestic products. We quote at $19.25@2 .50 per ton, according to quantity and brand. American pig does not show a settled tone, and there is considerable fault-finding in one way or another. Some of the leading makers have a fair trade, put others seem to be rather slack and occasionally reports are heard of furnaces forced out. Prices fluctuate only fractionally. We quote $19.50@20.50 per ton for No. 1 X foundry, $18.00@19.00 for No. 2 X do. do., and $16.00@17.50 for gray forge. Old Rails dull, and the irregular sales now and then made show a wide range of value according to momentary governing influences. Scrap iron dull and nominally unchanged. We quote at $17@19 for old tee rails, $20@21 for double heads, $18.50@19.60 for No. 1 wrought scrap ex ship, $19.50@20.00 for selected do., $16.50@17.00 for old car wheels, and $19.00@19.50 for crop ends. Steel Rails since our last have sold with some freedom for near and distant delivery, and there is quite a little recovery on values, the market now showing much strength. Nearly all the mills at work are now well supplied with orders, and few makers are willing to enter upon engagements for next summer delivery except at an advance on current rates. We quote at $28 00@29.50 per ton for heavy sections, according to delivery, etc. Manufactured Iron finds about the usual store trade, but the call on contract is limited and uncertain. We quote Common Merchant Bar, ordinary sizes, at 2.0@2.10c. from store and Refined at 2.10@2 45c.; Rods, round and square 2.20@2.35c.; Bands, 2.50@2.60c.; Norway Nail Rods, 5¼@6c., and domestic sheet on the basis of 2.70@3.00c. for common Nos. 10@16. Other descriptions at corresponding prices, with 1-10c. less on large lots from cars. LEAD—Domestic Pig has been more active, and with supplies so well under control as to prevent any surplus offering of stock, values are well maintained at some advance over last figures. We quote at about 3¾@3⅞c. per lb., according to brand and the size of invoice handled. The manufactures of lead are steady and quoted: Bar, 4½@4¾c.; pipe, 5¾c.; and sheet, 6¾c., less the usual discount to the trade; and tin-lined pipe, 15c.; block tin pipe, 40c., on same terms. TIN—Pig meets with a continued fair demand for ordinary trade parcels, and the supply so well under control as to preserve values on a good steady level throughout. We quote at 18@18⅜c. for Straits, 18⅛@18¼c. for Australian, 18¾@18⅞ for English, and 19½@19⅝c. for Banca. Tin Plates very well maintained, with a somewhat steadier tone if anything, and operators reporting a general improving jobbing trade. We quote I. C. Charcoal, third class assortment, $5.12½@5.15 for Allaway grade, and $5.75@5.80 for Melyn grade; for each additional X add $1.25 and $1.50 respectively; I. C. Coke, $4.77½@4.80 for B. V. grade; $4.85@4.87½ for J. B. grade; Charcoal terne, $4 60@4.75 for Allaway and Dean grades 14x20; $9.50@9.70 for do. 20x28; Coke terne, $4.45@4 50 for Glais grade 14x20, and $9.35@9.40 for do. 20x28—all in round lots. Spelter without any new features of importance, a good average demand prevailing and prices ruling teady forall leading grades of stock. We quote at 5⅝@4⅝c. for domestic and foreign, according to brand, quantity, etc. Sheet Zinc moderately active and about steady. We quote at 5¾@6⅞c., according to quality, quantity, etc.

NAILS.—The market is in an unsettled condition, owing to the variable methods of operators. Some are inclined to keep on pushing business, even though the natural results to values follow, while others favor the policy of careful offerings, and if needs be a more general curtailment of production in order to bring the market into better form. Buyers do not suffer through the differences of opinion, nor do they quicken their movements to any extent, a hand to mouth plan of operations being considered the safest. Quotations on the general range are placed at $2.15@2.25 per keg for 10d. to 60d., according to quantity.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—Not much, if any, change shown. Some business takes place in pretty much all the leading descriptions of stock and of fluctuating magnitude, but buyers to a large extent are in an independent mood and refuse to invest beyond their most clearly defined wants, even in staple goods. Advices from interior points indicate small and shrinking accumulations, and these it is thought will have to be replaced before cold weather sets in. Prices show few changes of an important character. Linseed Oil has been a little unsettled, closing at about 53@54c. for domestic, and 56@57c. for foreign. Spirits Turpentine dull for spot delivery and easier, with rates down to 39½@31c., according to quantity, package, etc.

PITCH AND TAR.—The market has average animation, with fair general offerings, but holders looking for previous rates in about all cases. We quote: Pitch, $2.25@2.30 per bbl.; Tar, $2.50@2.00, according to quantity, quality and delivery.

MARKET QUOTATIONS.

Our figures are based upon cargo or wholesale valuations in the main. Due allowance must therefore be made for the natural additions on jobbing and retail parcels.

OCTOBER 11, 1884.

The political pot boils the more furiously as election day draws near. When Grover Cleveland was nominated nothing seemed more certain than his election as President; but the scandal affecting his private life turned the tide and the unexpectedly large Republican majority in Maine put a decided damper on Democratic hopes. But recently it looks as if the opponents of Mr. Blaine have taken fresh courage and the result of the election on all sides is admitted to be in the very greatest doubt. Next Tuesday may settle the question. If the Republicans lose Ohio, or carry it by only a small majority, the chances will be in favor of Mr. Cleveland's election. If the Democrats, however, are defeated by 15,000 or 20,000 majority the Republicans will claim that the November election will be a walk over. The probabilities are that the Ohio election will still leave the matter in doubt, in which case the contest will rage with increasing ferocity up to election day. The canvass so far is not one of which America can be proud, and all decent citizens will be heartily glad when it is over.

Before the next issue of this publication the county tickets of the Republicans and the regular Democrats will be in the field. Should the Ohio election look like the success of Mr. Cleveland the County Democracy will doubtless run a straight ticket, but otherwise there will be more or less trading. The Tammany ticket now in the field is a very good one, and it is sincerely to be hoped that the anti-Tammany Democrats and Republicans will do as well. Tammany has been mindful of real estate interests in its nominees, but there are plenty of material in the ranks of opposing parties to make equally good tickets.

Some of the local congressional nominations are very good. No better representatives could be found than Abraham S. Hewitt, Samuel S. Cox and O. B. Potter. Mr. Joseph Pulitzer is a very clever gentleman, but why should he want to go to Congress when he has a leading city daily paper to look after? General Viele would be a round man in a square hole as Congressman. Good engineers such as he are better employed in New York than in Washington. He is of some use to the community in the Central Park Board, but neither his training nor his talents are suitable for a Congressman. Take a friend's advice, General, and decline the nomination. You will save money and enhance your reputation thereby.

Our readers must not overlook the department entitled "The World of Business." The matter given under this head will be found of increasing interest from week to week. The account of a great transcontinental line of railways, owned by the syndicate of which C. B. Huntington is the head, ought to attract widespread attention. It seems that this vast system of railways connecting San Francisco on the Pacific with Newport News on the Atlantic Ocean, with branches to every city of importance south of the Ohio River, is about to be consolidated into one great company, thus bringing into existence a corporation of greater possibilities than the systems controlled by Jay Gould or the Vanderbilt interests. As yet the securities of this vast corporation have not been put upon the market, yet, undoubtedly, they will be leaders in the speculative field in the not distant future.

The various reforms which have been incorporated into our city charter through the efforts of Mr. Theodore Roosevelt were first mooted in the directory of the Real Estate Exchange and Auction Room (Limited) last December. After thinking the matter over for some time, a majority of the directors decided not to press the reform measures, as it might look too much like dictating to the two political organizations, the final result of which was that Mr. Roosevelt got the credit for the passage of the various measures instead of the Real Estate Exchange. This year the directors of the Exchange are disposed to be more of a power in legislative matters. Its officers have been instructed to call the attention of the State press to the great importance of the proposed amendment to the constitution restricting localities with over a hundred thousand inhabitants from incurring permanent debts of a larger amount than 10 per cent, of the assessed valuation of their real estate. The directors also seem to be of the opinion that as the plan for liquidating arrears due on assessments and taxes in Brooklyn has worked so well, the same law ought to be applied to New York. A number of matters will come before the Legislature at its next session affecting real estate, and undoubtedly our Real Estate Exchange will make its influence felt in the interest of real property.

The Clark Houses.

These houses, at present twenty-seven in number, on the north side of Seventy-third street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues, constitute a singularly interesting experiment in street architecture. As their treatment plainly shows, they are by the same architect to whom we owe the Dakota, opposite them.

The total frontage on Seventy-third street is about 550 feet, the houses being of about 20 feet each, and the corner on Ninth avenue being occupied by an apartment house a full story higher than the single dwellings which occupy the remaining space, but architecturally united with them. The object of the designer has evidently been to avoid the monotony of a long row of houses of similar design on the one hand, and on the other the restlessness of such a row of houses if each be designed by itself. Twenty-seven houses in a row, each one treated altogether separately, would almost inevitably be a confusing and miscellaneous assemblage, no matter how well each of its component parts might be done. On the other hand, as we can see evidence in almost any residential street in New York, the repetition of one design is very tiresome, and it would still be very tiresome even if the architectural unit were a much better thing than the brown stone front. The aim here is to secure the effect of a composition while individualizing each of the components.

The effect of unity is obtained by a high basement of Dorchester stone running through the whole series, and by a moulded stone cornice of the same material continuous except for the interruptions caused by the occasional building up of the upper story into a full wall story instead of the roof story, lighted by dormer and gable windows, which usually completes the front. The ends are emphasized by carrying the stonework through an additional story, and also by a round bay window on the outer side of each. The central feature is a gable between two walls rising above it, and each crowned with a hipped roof. A similar feature, only reversed so that the central hip roofed mass rises between the gabled fronts, occurs about midway between the centre and each end. Each of these features consists of three houses.

The individuality of the houses is largely attained by the use of different materials. The walls above the sandstone basement are built sometimes of red pressed brick and sometimes of the salmon colored Perth Amboy brick. Sixteen of the houses are in red brick and the remaining eleven of yellow brick, the latter material being used in two groups of three houses each, and elsewhere in single dwellings interpolated in the red brick. The yellow brick walls, wherever they occur, are projected a few inches beyond the normal plane of the front, the angles being quoined in stone up to the cornice lines, and each house is divided from the next by a row of quoins marking the line of the party wall.

There are many diversities of detail. In fact there are only two adjoining houses in the whole row which are identical in design, although one design has been repeated in the single houses in yellow brick. These diversities are slight, being such differences of roof treatment as the change of a pair of dormers for a single dormer, of this for a gable, or of the basement as the variation of a round arched with an ogee doorway, or of this with a square opening with a drip stone. In the second story each house has a large window, sometimes a round or a three-sided bay, sometimes a large segmental arch opening upon a balcony railed with iron or perforated stone. The treatment of the third story is virtually uniform throughout, a pair of square-headed openings, the lintels and jambs in sandstone, the only variation being the occasional insertion of a carved panel in the space between.

Slight as these differences are they fully answer their purpose of individualizing every house, and of assuring the spectator that he has not seen all where he has seen one. Of course, variety is not a good in itself. If the features by which variety were secured were ugly and crude and unstudied, they would not become less offensive by being different. A choice of uglinesses is not beauty, though some architects appear to think so. Here, however, the study which the variety of the detail invites, the excellence of the detail repays.

As with the Dakota, the treatment of these houses has more affinity with French Renaissance than with any other historical style of architecture. It is, however, everywhere free and modern in handling. The features are such as are actually appropriate to a city house in the nineteenth century and might have been devised for it whether they actually were or not. Considering the number and variety of them the thoroughness with which they are designed is as unusual as it is creditable. In scale the detail is generally more fortunate than that of the Dakota, which sometimes errs on the side of minuteness. Mr. Hardenbergh's fellow architects may possibly consider that the individualization of the separate dwellings is carried too far or is not carried far enough. They may hold that the use of two colors in brickwork as is done here is a mistake. But they cannot deny to the features and the detail of his work the praise of thoughtful, thorough and scholarly architecture which makes each of the houses interesting in itself, whether one finds the collocation successful or not.

For our own part we do not share the objections which we can nevertheless conceive that competent critics might make to the general treatment of these houses. The individualization of the dwellings can be carried further by means of color than it could discreetly be carried by means of form alone, and the combination of color is not so harsh as to be objectionable in itself. What does strike us as a mistake is the disposition of the colors. The structural emphasis is everywhere given to the weaker color, the ends and the projections being given to the lighter brick while the intervals of wall are left red. A reversal of this arrangement we cannot help thinking would be an improvement. At least the end houses which frame and complete the composition and denote that it is a single composition should be of the strongest color employed anywhere. This, however, though not exactly a detail, and though a drawback to the comple success of the designer's scheme, is not enough of a drawback to prevent the Clark houses from being decidedly the most effective and successful treatment in New York of a street front composed of so many separate dwellings.

Our Prophetic Department.

POLITICIAN—I suppose it is as good as settled that James G. Blaine will be the next President of the United States. Have you any doubt as to that being the outcome of our present political canvass?

SIR ORACLE—Well, yes, I have my doubts. This is a very puzzling and deceptive presidential contest, yet it certainly looks to me as if the Republicans will carry Ohio by a fair majority.

POLITICIAN—Your reasons for believing so, pray?

SIR O.—Well, in all hotly contested elections since the war, whenever national politics were involved, the Republicans have carried that State. Then it was the home of Garfield, and Blaine is looked upon as his representative and hence will be voted for by the Republicans for sentimental reasons. Then there are, so far as I can understand, in Ohio few or no bolters or Republican Independents who are apparently so numerous here East. So I judge that the Republicans will poll their full party strength and will carry the election next Tuesday.

POLITICIAN—But you have omitted any mention of the Maine election. Does not the large increase of the Republican vote of that State render Mr. Blaine's election tolerably sure as showing a drift of things in that direction?

SIR O.—I confess that that was the way I looked at the matter when the Republican Governor received so large a vote recently in Maine. Previous to the election I reckoned that if the Republicans got less than 8,000 majority that the jig was over with Mr. Blaine. When, however, he received over 19,000 majority it seemed to settle the question the other way; but on further reflection I concluded that Maine elections were deceptive. Four years ago the Republican party of that State seemed to go to pieces just before the general election. It then looked as if Garfield was surely beaten, but through the efforts of Gen. Grant and Roscoe Conkling the Republican line was reformed and Gen. Hancock was defeated. Now I think that the Republicans will carry the Ohio election, but they are not out of the woods even then, unless their majority is unusually large. In Ohio there will be some German Republicans who will not vote for Blaine because he came from a prohibition State. Then there are a large number of prohibitionists with Republican tendencies who will vote for St. John. The general election involves factors not in the State election.

POLITICIAN—But will not this loss be offset by the Butler vote, which will be a defection mainly from the Democratic party?

SIR O.—Yes; but so far as I can judge the Butler vote will be small in Ohio, much smaller than the Prohibition. The canvass of the People's party, so called, is most active in New York and New England. Hence the Republicans may carry Ohio in the October election and lose it in November.

POLITICIAN—Well, but here at the East, especially in New York, will not the Butler vote be so large as to insure the doubtful localities to Blaine?

SIR O.—There is where the puzzle comes in. Butler's object is to impress the Democratic party with the power he wields, and if at the last moment there is any doubt he will transfer some of his backing to the Blaine electoral tickets. There is no disguising the fact that the Independent Republican defection here at the East is a very serious one. In everyday intercourse one meets scores of Republicans who will not vote for Mr. Blaine. I must say that the literary bureau of the Democrats has proved very effective this canvass. W. S. Andrews is its [illegible]. It is he who supplies fac-similes of Blaine's writing to all the Independent Republican and Democratic papers. Everything prejudicial to Mr. Blaine is simultaneously published throughout the whole country. The friends of the Maine statesman are kept on the defensive from Monday morning to Saturday night. If Blaine is finally beaten the credit ought to be given to Mr. Andrews and his bureau.

POLITICIAN—Yes; but what a pack of shameful lies; such perversions of the truth I have never known in a political contest before. Surely the American people will be disgusted before the compaign is over and will show their indignation at the polls?

SIR O.—Well, I don't know. You see that the unfavorable impression of Mr. Blaine created by the Mulligan letters has given rise to a prejudice against him which it seems impossible to overcome. Facts and arguments are of no avail against a widespread impression. The unfortunate thing for the Republican party is that their candidate has been on the defensive from the beginning.

POLITICIAN—But, then, how about the scandal connected with Mr. Cleveland, will not that have its effect? Surely a self-respecting people like ours will not vote for a presidential candidate whose illegitimate child was sent to the county poorhouse, and who incarcerated its mother in an asylum without due process of law? I can understand how a youthful indiscretion with a woman might be condoned in ordinary society, but a gross offence of this kind committed by a man in middle life is surely so serious a matter as to make all decent American citizens decline to make him the chief magistrate of the nation.

SIR O.—We will tell better what effect these considerations have had the day after the general election. My own impression is that the Republican and Democratic vote will be much smaller than they would be were the candidates on both sides men of unexceptionable character; and I think also that the Butler and St. John votes will be larger as a kind of protest against both Blaine and Cleveland. At the present time the chances are in favor of the Republicans carrying Ohio next Tuesday. If the majority is large Mr. Blaine is the next President, if small or the Republicans are defeated, then will Mr. Cleveland be probably chosen. For one I shall be heartily glad when the contest is over, for it has been a disgraceful one to both parties.

POLITICIAN—How will the Ohio election and the result of the general election affect business?

SIR O.—Wall street affects to believe that a Republican victory will result in higher prices, but I doubt whether the election of the Democratic candidate would make any material difference. It certainly would not in the long run. Speculators try to create an impression that this or that event will affect the market. There is no danger from free trade. With seventy majority in the last House the Democrats were unable to pass a very moderate and modest reduction of the tariff. Should Cleveland be elected I do not believe that he will be supported by a House as strongly Democratic as the present one. I look for better prices on the Stock Exchange no matter who is elected, but they may not come before January, and will be due to the corn crop and the prospect of gold importations; but the general trade of the country will continue bad, for the liquidation in general business is not yet over. The stock market has, I think, seen its lowest range of values.

The Manhattan Company directors are wise in reducing the fares on Sunday to five cents. This ought to stop the clamor against the "L" system on the part of the demagogues who undertake to speak for the working people in demanding cheaper fares, for nine-tenths of our poorer population only use the "L" roads during the commission hours and on Sunday. If the Sunday experiment pays it might be well to reduce the fare to five cents for every day in the week, but if that concession is made to patrons of the road the city should be lenient with the company in the matter of taxation, and permission should be given to allow special cars on all the trains on which ten cents could be charged during any hour of the day, commission hours included. These would correspond to the saloon cars on ordinary railways. Women, aged persons and invalids would willingly pay the extra five cents if assured of the comfort of a seat, which could not always be expected for a five cent fare.

The number of passengers carried on the Manhattan road is simply phenomenal. For the year ending September 30th the number was 96,688,992. In the first year the passengers carried was only 796,072. This is a larger number than is carried in a year by the New York Central, the Erie, New Haven, Lake Shore, C., B. & Q., St. Paul, Rock Island and Northwestern combined. Indeed the aggregate of all these roads for the past year was 48,138,334, or less than one-half the yearly business of the Manhattan. The yearly increase of passengers has averaged more than 15 per cent. since the opening of the elevated system. Next year, unless the cholera should visit us next summer, the Manhattan Company will carry over a hundred million passengers.

The steady growth of our city population is necessitating the construction of new school houses every year. No less than four teen of these edifices are to be commenced this year, seven of which are already under way. To insure this work being properly done there ought to be among the members of the Board of Education at least two or three builders or practical architects, but, unfortunately, all of the twenty-one commissioners are either bankers or lawyers, not one of whom knows anything practically about the details connected with the construction of public edifices. We have already commented upon the barn-like appearance of all of our public schools. It would cost no more if some taste was shown in their architecture. It is to be hoped that the next batch of commissioners to be appointed by the Mayor will embrace at least a few gentlemen who understand the artistic requirements of a public edifice, as well as the details which affect its cost.

From this time forth the surplus of our national revenue promises to grow "small by degrees and beautifully less." Owing to the falling off in our import trade and the reduction of internal taxes, the first three months of the present fiscal year shows a deficiency of $22,900,000 as compared with the same period last year. At this rate the unnecessary payment of the national debt will soon come to a stop, to the betterment of all the great interests of the country.

The stock market halts. All the conditions exist for an improved feeling and higher prices, but the election is an uncertain factor in the problem which the "street" has not found courage to discount. We are promised a more active market after the Ohio election, unless, indeed, which is not improbable, that the result in that State will be enigmatical. Business throughout the country is dull and will remain so until the beginning of next year. When our great corn crop begins to be marketed there will unquestionably be a better feeling, at least, in the stock market.

Rapid Transit on Staten Island.

The work of extending and completing the Staten Island railroad commenced on Tuesday last, and the inhabitants of Richmond County, and especially those residing on the North Shore, will in eight months see the opening of a line which is likely not only to increase the value of real estate on Staten Island very largely, but add to its population, its commerce and its manufactures. In an interview with a representative of THE RECORD AND GUIDE, Mr. William Keutgen, the secretary and treasurer of the company, traced out on a map drawn by the engineer the route which the new branches will take. The road is finished for 200 feet north of Arrietta street, Tompkinsville, and work is now being commenced at Hyatt street, New Brighton, along Stuyvesant avenue, and further on connecting with the strip completed to Arrietta street. At the same time the work will be progressed on the North Shore, beginning at Hyatt street, New Brighton, thence in front of the cricket and baseball grounds near the water's edge, between high and low water mark, thence along the shore front past Sailors' Snug Harbor and West Brighton and up to Port Richmond, till it strikes the Shore road at a point opposite Owen McSorley's house. The road will then diverge from the water front and cross the Shore road, running south about 600 feet, cutting through Broadway and Church street, thence passing Richmond avenue and Ann street, and further on crossing Maple avenue at a point about 250 feet north of Grove street and 500 feet south of the Shore road. The route has not been sketched out beyond this, but the road will continue inland across Elm Park and Mariner's Harbor to a point above Elizabethport, so as not to interfere with the shipping at that place, where a bridge will eventually be built in conjunction with the railroad, connecting with some railway on the Jersey side, and by that means with the general railroad system of the country. "The contract," said Mr. Keutgen, "calls for the completion of the extensions by May 1 next. We hope to be running trains after that date, and will then, of course, dispense with our boat service on the North and South Shores. We intend as soon as possible to build several fast-running boats, and expect to make the time between New York and the Hyatt street landing on Staten Island in seventeen minutes, to New Brighton in twenty-one minutes, Sailors' Snug Harbor in twenty-six, West Brighton in thirty-two, Port Richmond in thirty-six and Elm Park in about forty minutes, thus saving from forty-five to fifty per cent. in time. We intend to run boats day and night without interruption. From 5.30 A. M. till 7.30 P. M. they will go every twenty minutes, then every half hour till midnight, and hourly afterwards. In addition to improving the service, we also propose to reduce the fare by issuing fifteen tickets for a dollar, thus making the cost about 6⅔ cents per trip. We intend to have stations at each of our present landings and at such other points as may be necessary to the convenience of residents on the island, probably eight or nine stations in all. Our engineer is John A. Wilson, formerly engineer of the Pennsylvania Road, and now of Wilson Brothers & Co., Boston. The total length of our new extensions will be about seven miles, for which we are now issuing $1,000,000 of 6 per cent. first mortgage bonds."

The Court of Appeals has affirmed the decision of Chief Justice McAdam, of our New York City Court, which declared that the trustees of the Brooklyn Bridge, and consequently the cities of New York and Brooklyn, cannot be held responsible for damages by the persons injured in the great panic and crush that occurred on the bridge soon after it was opened. And they have also affirmed the judgment of Judge Pratt of the Supreme Court, which was to the effect that the bridge trustees cannot be made to pay damages to a person who was injured by a plank carelessly let fall by a workman who was employed by the trustees. These decisions will prevent a multitude of similar suits from being brought.

Home Decorative Notes.

—Now that the season has arrived for pressing leaves and ferns a simple yet effective press may be constructed by taking two strips of thin board, each about a yard long; on one side of these boards spread several newspapers; if flowers or the more delicate ferns are to be pressed put cotton under them and a little over them, put a paper also over them, then lay the other board on and press tightly by means of four clamps put on at the corners; autumn leaves, if pressed in this way, will keep their color, and with a little care in placing the cotton under the leaves of the pansy a happy result will be obtained.

—Artificial flowers are now replacing the artificial fruits of last year as decoration for menu cards.

—Venetian glass is to be much used on artistically arranged tables, the effect is certainly bright and beautiful, some of the sets of champagne glasses cost the modest sum of $60 a dozen, which causes them to be a luxury indeed.

—A hat rack composed of three spears is a novelty.

—Novelties are continually presenting themselves; one of the latest is an arrangement for secreting the whisk broom, this affair represents the dial of a clock and is made of red plush with the Roman figures wrought in gold cord, brass hands are also added, at the back of the dial is adjusted a pocket for the broom, and is suspended from the wall by means of a heavy silk cord corresponding in color with the plush.

—Lambrequins for bed-room mantels are now made of macreme twine in colors such as dark red, blues and olives, a very pretty addition to the fringe is the intermingling of brass crescents.

—Palm leaf fans are much in favor for hand screens; they are exceedingly attractive when decorated with bunches of poppies, ox-eyed daisies or apple blossoms painted in oil colors; a large bow of satin ribbon should be tied about the handle.

—Teak wood handles are the most attractive style for light weight silver tea sets.

—A simple but quite attractive bureau set has a cushion cover formed of tiny daisies, which are made of white serpentine braid; the centre of the daisy is of tufted yellow worsted; the scarf is formed also of daisies with the ends edged with cluny lace; light blue silk is laid under the scarf, and the accompanying cushion corresponds also in color.

—Between the front windows a decorated panel painted on wood or a rich hanging of silk decorated with embroidery takes the place of the stereotyped "pier glass."

—In elegant stationery dead white is more used than the cream shades; the seal is either the crest or monogram.

—Table and bureau covers are either made entirely of hand-made gimpure with satin ribbons run through the insertion or else of washable sateen embroidered in washing silks and edged with ecru lace.

—Linen holds its own triumphantly as a ground for elaborate schemes of needlework, nothing else lasts so well, therefore nothing else will so reward the worker, the Russian cross stitch is still used on linen; pillow shams and bed spreads are very effective when decorated with this style of embroidery; tea tray covers of fine linen crash are wrought with designs of the tea plant or coffee berry; most exquisitely fine specimens of fine linen drawn work are displayed at the rooms of the Society of Decorative Art, No. 28 East Twenty-first street.

—The lustre of morocco leather may be restored by varnishing with white of an egg.

—One way to lessen the danger to pet dishes is to have them washed in a dish-pan made of wood; a very large one should be bought for this purpose and a smaller one may be used to drain the dishes in; a chopping bowl, for instance, of ordinary size serves the latter purpose.

—A strange combination in colors and a rather odd drapery for a mantel or odd shelf is green plush of excellent quality and wholly unadorned except at the corners, which are looped gracefully and tied with pale blue satin ribbon; the ribbon is about three inches wide, with loops and ends of almost equal length; the green is of a yellowish shade but not olive.

—Sofa-pillows, with cases made of Turkish embroidered tidies, are used also for coverings for squab cushions, sofas and cane rocking-chairs.

—For wedding gifts the simplest, plainest designs in silver ware are considered the most elegant; hammered silver, except the beautiful repousse work, is not much sought for, as it is copied in the silver-plated ware; a large monogram is the latest and most elegant style of marking silver.

—The low and deep Turkish designs are those most used in the newest styles of furniture.

—It is worth remembering that bar soap should be cut into square pieces and put in a dry place, as it lasts much longer after shrinking.

—The recent importations of pottery and porcelain contain many styles of marked beauty, vases and other cabinet pieces in crown Derby ware are exhibited in exquisitely graceful shapes in brilliant Chinese yellow, enamelled with gold and shrimp pink and gold; there are numerous ornamental pieces of Hungarian faience, one peculiarity of which is noticed the changing of color, for instance a vase, olive in shade by daylight, will appear dark blue by gaslight; the Royal Worcester ware still retains its popularity and extreme loveliness, it is shown in many exquisite shapes and designs of birds and flowers in metallic colorings, many of the new styles of vases and bottles are red with lines of gold intermingled throughout, the effect is very rich and beautiful, an extensive variety of these artistic porcelains were noticed among the late importations of Wilhelm & Graef, of Twenty-sixth street and Broadway.

—White rose is an elegant perfume for stationery; violet and heliotrope are rather passe.

The elder Bennett in his day made savage war upon what he called the "oyster house critics." He charged that the dramatic writers of the various city journals were in the habit of adjourning to a neighboring oyster saloon after the performance, where they agreed to write up or write down a new piece or a new aspirant for histrionic honors. It is unfortunately true that down to our own day cabals of so called critics are formed to discredit or puff certain plays or playwrights. These writers have a special aversion to American plays. Bronson Howard has written some admirable dramatic productions, but his earlier efforts were greeted by the New York press with bitter denunciation. His "Saratoga" was held up as an instance of all that was worthless as a dramatic composition, yet it was a great popular success, was translated into German and had a run in the principal German theatres, and under the name of "Brighton" was played over a thousand times in England and the United States by the Wyndham Company. The new American play "The Artist's Daughter," introduced at the Union Square Theatre last week, was very vigorously denounced by the oyster house critics of the present day. The piece is a very good one, however, it is admirably acted and superbly mounted, but the press critics attacked the piece and the author without mercy. Nevertheless "The Artist's Daughter" is very well worth going to see.

The stars in our dramatic firmament are beginning to pale. Edwin Booth will hereafter play only at rare intervals; John McCullough will never be himself again; Lawrence Barrett is a good but not a great actor. When these have passed away there are no young American actors in sight to take their place. Mr. Thomas W. Keene is an artist of some power, but he plays nothing but Richard III. Mr. William Sheridan, with undoubted tragic ability, has failed as yet to be recognized as a successful star. Mr. George C. Milln, the ex-agnostic minister, draws houses in the smaller cities, but has not ventured to test his abilities before a metropolitan audience. We are somewhat better off as regards actresses, for we have Mary Anderson and Clara Morris as well as quite a swarm of minor female stars who enact eccentric comedy roles with more or less success. But male stars like Forrest or Booth have not yet made their debut in our dramatic galaxy. The most promising juvenile tragedians are English men, such as Messrs. Mantell, Barnes, Plympton and Tearle.

But then there is the new Dramatic Lyceum. Some 200 young men and women have commenced the study of the dramatic art in this institution which, although in the hands of young men, has for its conductors a number of well-trained specialists and enterprising theatrical managers. It is not to be expected that this lyceum will become a Parisian conservatoire at once, but as Messrs. Frohman, Sargent and Mackaye understand their business, the presumption is that some of the students will yet adorn the American stage.

Seth Low is an ideal Mayor. He has effected valuable reforms in the City of Churches, not the least of which was the law of grappling with the question of taxes in arrears, which promises not only to place millions of dollars in the Brooklyn treasury, but which will eventually wipe out an immense indebtedness to the city, and so reduce the general rate of taxation. The writer had occasion to interview Mayor Low on that question, and found him as intelligent as he is capable. He has a complete grasp of the subject, and gave facts and figures, even to the very thousand, which showed that he had studied it in all its details. He took the writer over to the Comptroller's department, and there showed him the books in which all the arrears collected appeared under the different headings to date, everything seemed to be carried out in a methodical manner. The entire system was inaugurated and arranged under his supervision in conjunction with the Comptroller. In addition to his ability, Mayor Low possesses the admirable trait of affability. He is of courteous demeanor and has the gift of inspiring confidence.

"Janauschek to the American Public" is the title of a spirited brochure distributed in thousands by messenger boys to the passers-by in different parts of the city. Madame Janauschek considers herself aggrieved. She lashes the Herald for its criticism on her acting in Mr. Meredith's drama "My Life," and taunts that paper for sending "a stripling" to her performance, whose strictures she characterizes as "weak, stupid and unjust." She complains that every effort to encourage and develop the dramatic talent of native writers encounters opposition in the metropolis, the very place where it should be encouraged. Janauschek is right. There are few good dramatic critics on the New York papers. The Boston, Chicago or Philadelphia press is far ahead of our local dailies. Janauschek has taken an unusual means of answering her detractor, and it argues some courage on her part to thus defy one of the best known journals in the country. Critics of the board should have a care, for who knows what scathing chastisements they may in future receive from the pens of outraged dames!

The Fox estate, which is now being put upon the market, has quite a history. It has been in the family for upwards of a century and first came into possession of white men more than two hundred years ago, when Edward Jessup and John Richardson jointly purchased from the Indians a tract of land situated between "the Aquehung, otherwise Broncke River," and a small brook called by the natives Sackwrahung in what was then known as the "North Riding of Yorkshire" but now the Twenty third Ward of New York city. This sale was confirmed by a crown patent issued in 1666 by Robert Nichols, governor-general under King James II. The property takes its name from William W. Fox and has, until recently, remained in the sole possession of his descendants. "Fox Corners" received its cognomen from the circumstance that it was the meeting spot of the hounds in the old North Riding, and the name dates back to 1760. The "Ancient nn," licensed as far back as 1685, is still to be seen on the spot, though since turned into a dwelling. The place was frequently visited, attracted, it is said, by the beauty of one of its inmates, by J. Rodman Drake, author of "The American Flag," "The Culprit Fay" and "The River Bronx." Henry D. Tiffany, one of the present heirs, is authority for the statement that old William W. Fox was a descendant of the founder of the Quaker fraternity.

Financial Points.

We stated last week that the Western Union would reduce its dividend to 6 per cent. per annum, and sure enough the annual report published last Wednesday announced that as the future financial policy of the company.

The breaking of the cables was a very curious circumstance. Last Saturday there were nine cables, but two Gould cables were first broken, and immediately after came the news that the Bennett-Mackay cable was broken. During the week the Farragut has finished laying a second cable for the Mackay-Bennett Company. People interested in such matters will remember that when the Mutual Union was constructing its lines its poles and wires were often cut down by persons supposed to be connected with the Western Union. It is surmised that the two Gould cables were destroyed by some over-zealous friends of the Mackay-Bennett Company, and that in revenge some of Gould's employes broke the rival newly-laid cable. Cable breaking is an expensive business for the companies, but it is a very easy thing to do, as the sad sea waves are very incommunicative.

The reduction of the dividends of the Western Union was not for the purpose of creating a fund so as to lay the wires under ground, which was the reason given by a number of papers last Thursday. The report says that a surplus would be desirable so as to enable the company to buy up competing lines, which are usually sold at a sacrifice. It is, we believe, a fact that, with the exception of the American Union, every opposition line has been sold to the Western Union for far less than its cost. The Western Union has no notion of putting its wires under ground in compliance to the law. It will fight that law off as long as possible.

The bulls are trying to "whoop up" the market, but they barely succeed in holding it steady. Prices are low, but it looks as if dullness will be the rule, unless the election next Tuesday should be very decisive. If the presidential election is practically settled by the Ohio vote there will be an active market for a time, but there can be no legitimate recovery in values until the new corn begins to move in December.

The price of iron and steel is certainly firmer, a fact which gives the bulls courage, as a rising iron market is usually the precursor of a bull movement in stocks.

George F. Gantz, who is a large owner of property, is a great believer in the future of real estate in New York and the surrounding cities. He thinks that bargains are to be had every day if people would only use discretion in purchasing. It was not the very high priced property that he expected to advance much, but the cheap parcels that were to be had at sales and on private terms by those who were forced or who were anxious to realize in cash. As an instance of what he meant he might mention that in 1876 he bought one hundred and ten lots on the Jersey shore, forty of which were on the Hackensack River front, for which he paid $3,300, being an average of $33 per lot. Six years later, in 1882, he sold five-and-a-half of these lots for $6,500, being over thirty times as much as he paid for them. There were good bargains still to be obtained in cheap realty, which in course of time was sure to advance in value. He thought we had passed through the worst times of commercial depression and that things had pretty well reached hard pan. He felt that many articles of merchandise were selling below their value. So convinced of this was he that in his own business, chemicals, he was contracting years ahead at present figures, as he was confident of an advance. The man who made money in selling his real estate at greatly augmented figures was thought to be a smart investor, but it did not take so much intelligence as was supposed to buy property which on the face of it was a bargain, or to purchase ahead a cargo of material for less money than it could possibly be landed on the wharf for a year hence. It was at times such as the present, when things were abnormally cheap, that people who have cash should be buying, instead of holding off nervously and waiting for better bargains which may never come.

Property owners on West End avenue, as Eleventh avenue is now called, from Seventy-second to One Hundred and Tenth street, are signing a petition to have the roadway narrowed and the sidewalks widened, so that trees may be planted upon the latter. The driving will naturally be done upon Riverdale and hence the West End avenue will naturally be a residence street. The change, if effected, will make a very select avenue of the West End and the value of the property will be correspondingly raised.

The Board of Directors of the Maritime Association of this port, at a special meeting held on Wednesday last, unanimously approved a proposed amendment to the by-laws authorizing the organization of trade committees at the Maritime Exchange. This will be submitted to a vote of the members on October 20. The dealers in Southern pine lumber have taken steps to organize under the by-law, and have already adopted trade rules and a system of inspection. It is expected that the coal dealers and others will follow suit.

We shall look with interest for the reasons given by the Court of Appeals in their decision of the 7th inst., in the Navarro water meter case, for overturning the apparently sensible judgment of the General Term of the Supreme Court of this city, which held that the contract for those meters was so tainted with fraud that the city should not be required to pay $70 a piece for them; as it is, whatever their reasons, $1,500,000 have been added by their decision to the debt of our burdened city.

All About Cement.

WHAT FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC DEALERS SAY.

"The price of imported cements is lower," said Howard Fleming, "owing to the cheapness of ocean freights. There is a very good demand at present, especially for first-class qualities, which are not coming fast enough to fill the orders for them, with the result that lower grades are selling better than they otherwise would. Prices have been fairly firm this year, and for myself I can say that we have done more business than we did last year, our sales so far exceeding those for the corresponding period of 1883. Our local business has been somewhat dull lately, but this is more than compensated for by the increase in our outside orders. If things are quiet at this point they are active elsewhere, so that we do a uniformly good trade. We are not subject to the same conditions as domestic dealers, whose season closes during the winter. The foreign trade is uninterrupted. We export to Cuba, Central America and Mexico, as well as to all points in the States. It is impossible to predict whether prices will be lower or higher in the immediate future. That is regulated by the cost of freight. Should the latter advance or decline, foreign cement would be affected accordingly. At present prices were very much in buyers' favor."

"We found business very fair during the spring," said Walter Tompkins, president of the Newark Lime and Cement Manufacturing Company. "Up to June our demand was nearly if not quite as good as last year. Figures are a little lower than in the early part of the year, when our prices were $1 at Rondout, and $1.10 delivered to wharf or vessel in New York city. Since June the demand has fallen off and we have correspondingly lessened our production, our prices now being 90c. at Rondout and $1 delivered. The prospects, I think, are not encouraging. We have nothing, however, to complain of. Our sales, it is true, will probably not be quite as large this year as they were last. We expect them to amount to 200,000 barrels or over by the end of the season, while in 1883 they were about 250,000. Navigation will soon close and we generally accumulate a large stock to carry over during the winter. Last year when the season closed we had 26,000 barrels on hand. We generally have a stock of 25,000 to 30,000. We do very little during the cold weather, which, practically, puts an end to production. Prices are higher in the winter, owing to the increased cost of transportation. It costs ten to twenty cents a barrel more to deliver cement by rail than it does by boat. I do not think the price of our cement will go lower than it is at present."

"This time last year," said W. N. Hoag, of the Lawrenceville Cement Company, "we were very busy, but trade is now dull and business is very quiet. Our present quotations are 10 cents less than they were before June, being 90 cents at Rondout and $1 at New York. The prospects do not seem to me to be bright. I do not expecet, however, that our quotations will go lower. I think we have reached bottom figures. We have a present stock of 10,000 barrels. The cost of transportation by rail will increase the price of our cement from 20 to 25 cents per barrel during the winter, though we do very little in the cold season."

"We have not a single barrel of cement to spare to supply new orders," said H. R. Brigham, of the Hudson River Cement Company. "Our sales this year have so far exceeded last year's by 20 per cent. We were unusually quiet in June and July, our busiest month being September, when we sold over 20,000 barrels. We do not depend entirely on local trade, but ship to Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and other places. There has been considerable cutting this year. Our prices were first $1.10 delivered, they then went down to $1.05, $1.00 and 95 cents, and we at last resolved to put them at the lowest figure at which we could produce them without a loss. We entered into arrangements with the New York Cement Company to fix 80 cents per barrel cash as the New York figure, $1.10 outside this city and 90 cents at Rondout. We thus effectually put an end to further cutting and the annoyance it involved. Our mills have a producing capacity of 800 barrels per diem; we are now turning out 750. Our present stock on hand is only 5,000 or 6,000 barrels. New York trade is dull, but out-of-town orders are brisk. Our sales this year thus far have been over 100,000 barrels, which we expect before the close of the season to increase to 140,000."

"We have done very little in Portland cement this year," said J. R. Keator. "We anticipated a small demand and shaped our supply accordingly. Prices have been pretty well maintained, but the margin of profit was exceedingly small. The importations this year have generally been larger than last year. We have been short of cement. Freights are falling off and so is the demand. As to Rosendale cement the demand has not fallen off, but our prices have materially decreased. We were selling at $1.10 at the beginning of the year, while our present figure is 80 cents, delivered at New York. We have thus far sold 46,367 barrels, being 3,241 barrels more than in the corresponding period of 1883. Of course, we will not sell our Rosendale at any lower price. The chances are that we will get a higher figure for it. I think the prospects for the sale of cement next year are not bright. Still there will be some large orders to fill. The building of the aqueduct will require some 800,000 barrels, not to speak of other structures to be erected."

"We have done a fair business this year," said a leading officer of the New York Cement Company, "especially when the building strikes are taken into consideration. Trade is a little quiet with us out of town, but we have been kept busy owing to the local demand caused by low prices. We are now selling at 95 cents at Rondout, which we quote firm. I think prices will be higher toward the close of the year. It does not pay to sell at the figure now quoted in New York. Our business was interrupted last year owing to the burning of our mill, but this year we expect to sell from 140,000 to 150,000 barrels."

"Our trade has been better this year than last," said L. Meyerstein, of the Hanover Portland Cement. "We have not sufficient to supply our customers with. While our trade has been good, our profits have been less. Freights have increased but prices have not advanced in proportion. Our principal business is done in the South, though we do considerable local business. Our present figure is $2 60, delivered in New York. Freights are now commencing to go lower, but that will be of little account, as the season will be over when the cement gets here. I think prices will probably advance, as there is not much cement afloat. The reason why we are unable to get all the cement we require is because there has been an unusually large demand in Europe. I am confident our prices will not go lower; it is more likely they will advance."

"We have done a larger trade than last year," said Emil Thiele. "Our prices have been well maintained, and are, if anything, better than in 1883. I think that the prospect for Portland cement is splendid. The more architects build better structures the more they will appreciate the value of first-class cements. The consumption is very large in the United States but does not begin to compare with Europe. It will increase every year, for there is an immense field in this country and in other parts of America. The prospects for local business depends very largely on the strikes. Should they cease we may expect to see a big trade done in cement, both domestic and foreign, next spring."

Real Estate Exchange and Auction Room (Limited).

A meeting of the directors was held last Tuesday afternoon, President Ludlow in the chair. The committee on legislation, whose term expired last September, were reappointed, and requested to prepare for the meeting of the Legislature in January next. The committee on the altering of the Exchange reported progress.

Mr. Cammann called the attention of the directors to the importance of the amendment to the constitution, which is to be voted upon at the next general election. If adopted counties and cities of more than 100,000 inhabitants will be restricted from incurring debts amounting to more than 10 per cent. of the assessed valuation of the real estate of the locality. This amendment, it will be remembered, was published in last week's RECORD AND GUIDE. A resolution was passed to print the amendment and communicate with the newspapers of the State, so that the matter could be laid before their readers.

The following letter, addressed by Mayor Low, of Brooklyn, to E H. Ludlow, president of the Exchange, was then read:

MAYOR'S OFFICE, Brooklyn, October 6, 1884.

E. H. LUDLOW, ESQ., President New York Real Estate Exchange:

DEAR SIR—I desire to call your attention, and through you the attention of the members of the Real Estate Exchange, to the sales now soon to be held by the City of Brooklyn, under Chapter 114, Laws of 1883, of property in arrears to the city for taxes, assessments and water rates. The provisions of this law are very different from those of the ordinary tax laws. At the usual tax sales the city gives a lease for a term of years to the party who will pay to the city the amount of its claims. At the approaching sales the city will undertake to sell to the highest bidders the fee simple of the lands offered for sale. This Chapter 114, Laws of 1883, was prepared in consultation with Hon. William M. Evarts, who believes it to be constitutional, and properly pursued and administered, competent to pass a good title. There have been substantially no sales of property for arrears of taxes, assessments or water rates in the City of Brooklyn since 1875. As the result of many causes the volume of accumulated arrears due to the city from real estate amounted in 1879 to about $14,000,000. At the beginning of this year, under various provisions of law for the voluntary payment of the city's claims upon terms representing greater or less concession from the face of the claims, this sum had been reduced to a fraction less than $6,000,000. By Chapter 114, Laws of 1883, it was made the duty of the Board of Assessors, after October 1, 1883, to go over the claims of the city against every lot in arrears, for the purpose of fixing against each lot a new tax assessment and lien that should be unquestionable in lieu and instead of all existing claims on the part of the city. In this connection it was made the duty of the Board of Assessors to eliminate from the city's claim as to each lot all that was questionable in fairness and equity by reason of excessive cost of improvements or for any reason whatever. This, as a matter of fact, has been done; and it is believed by the authorities that the consolidated tax assessment and lien for which parcels of land are about to be sold under the terms of this law, if such tax remains unpaid, cannot be successfully questioned, either as to regularity or from the standpoint of equity. It is important to note that in few, if in any cases, does the consolidated lien, as matter of fact amount to a formidable proportion of the value of the property against which it lies.

The terms of the sale under the law will be based under the following provisions of the statute: First of all, the purchaser will receive "a certificate of such sale which shall contain a covenant on the part of the City of Brooklyn to the amount paid for said lands, with interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum from the date of sale, in case the said title conveyed by said sale shall prove invalid."

Second—It is made the duty of the purchaser to serve notice in due form on the parties in interest who have for one year an opportunity to redeem said lands and premises by paying to the Registrar of Arrears for the use of the purchaser or his assigns the sum paid by him on such sale, and 10 per centum on the same, with interest on the aggregate amount at the rate of 15 per cent. per annum from the date of said sale, and $1 for each notice served as provided in the law.

Third—Upon presentation of said certificate of the sale and proof of the service of the notice of such sale, as hereinafter provided, upon the owner and mortgagee of the said lands and premises, the Registrar of Arrears shall, after the expiration of one year from the date of such service, execute and deliver to the purchaser on such sale, his legal representatives or assigns, a deed for said lands and premises, and such purchaser, his legal representatives or assigns shall take a good and sufficient title in fee simple absolute to the property sold, of which the said deed shall be presumptive evidence; and in any proceeding or action to be taken by such purchaser, his heirs, legal representatives or assigns, taken, prosecuted or defended for the recovery of the possession of the property so sold as aforesaid or in the establishment or defense of his or their title shown as aforesaid by such deed, such title shall not fail or be defeated by reason of any irregularity or formal defect in the procedure taken under this act, upon which such sale shall have been made or such title conveyed as aforesaid.

A careful reading of the act, Chapter 114, Laws of 1883, a copy of which I hand you herewith, will show that at every point the procedure is made simple and the burden thrown at all times on those who wish to dispute the title in any way.

I may add that in administering the law the city has taken very great pains to be considerate of the owners of property in arrears which may thus go to sale. Notice of the filing of the awards has been continued in the daily papers for six months, where the law imposes no such duty, and recently without obligation that it should be done, personal notice has been served upon the owners whenever practicable.

The certificates of the Board of Assessors against the First and Second Wards, two of the oldest Wards of the city, were filed October 24, 1883. Immediately after October 24, the city will proceed to advertise for sale all property in arrears in those Wards and it is probable that the sale will come off about the 1st of December.

Asking you to deal with this communication as may seem to you proper, I am, respectfully, SETH LOW, Mayor.

The above document seemed so important that it was decided to print it and send copies to every member of the Exchange, and to the Mayor, Aldermen and heads of departments of New York city. Adjourned.

Vitrified Drains Allowed in Senator Murtha's House.

The contest between vitrified pipe and iron drains has still to be settled. The opponents of the former say that cement does not form a water tight joint, and is open to the danger of leakage, while its adherents claim that carefully caulked under official inspection vitrified pipes will last a thousand years, and they point to the ancient sewers of Rome in confirmation of their statement. On the other hand the opponents of the iron pipe say that it rusts and corrodes in from four to ten years, according to the quality, that it cannot be made of uniform thickness, and that it has to be relaid every decade if all danger from the escape of sewage gas is to be avoided. A bill was introduced in the Legislature in 1883 by Assemblyman Lindsay with the object of removing the restrictions against the laying down of vitrified pipes, but owing to the opposition of Dr. Chandler, of the New York Health Board, it failed to pass, although it is said that gentleman has laid down clay sewer pipes in his own house. In February last the vitrified drain pipe manufacturers argued their case before the Board of Health, a report of which appeared in this paper, and on May 23 they waited on Commissioner Raymond, of Brooklyn, who promised to give the glazed pipe a fair trial, and should it prove satisfactory that he would use his efforts to modify the stringent rules against the use of that material for drainage purposes.

In pursuance of this pledge a test was made in one of the four-story flats now being built for Senator William H. Murtha on Underhill avenue, Brooklyn, in which clay pipes had been laid by John Cooper. Among those present were W. J. Roche, inspector of plumbing; J. J. Powers, inspector of plans, Senator Murtha, Assemblyman Lindsay, Sanitary Inspector Samuel Bower, Peter Milne, water purveyor, William Stewart, earthen pipe manufacturer; one or two architects and others. The water was turned on and the pipes filled, a pressure of two and a half pounds to the square inch brought to bear upon them. The earthen pipe is in lengths of two feet, while the joints of the iron pipe are five feet apart, and although there were fifty-two joints in the pipe tested only four of them sweated, notwithstanding that the pressure was four times greater than it is ever likely to be submitted to in use. After the test Inspector Powers, with the concurrence of his colleagues, gave permission for the pipes to be used, first ordering for thorough safety that the joints be re-cemented. He also suggested that in the next new house in which clay sewer pipes are fitted the cement used for caulking should be mixed with iron filings. The above tests are looked upon as a victory for vitrified drains, the manufacturers of which are naturally elated at the result.

A further test was made on Monday last in another of Senator Murtha's flats, when, by arrangement with Commissioner Raymond, a new style of earthen sewer pipe manufactured by John Cooper and Henry Bieg was tested, Inspectors Powers, Roche and Bower and others being present. The pipes were laid by plumber Henry Hawkes. There were sixty-four lengths in 30 inches (including collars), each 6 inches in diameter. The joints were cemented by a composition, one part of Portland cement, one part iron filings, one part sand and a little sal ammoniac. They were subjected to a pressure of three pounds to the square inch, and it was found that there was not a single leakage, excepting four or five joints sweated, which hardly could be seen. This was a more satisfactory test than any previously made. The Brooklyn Board of Health will consider whether they cannot permit the use of vitrified pipes under proper restrictions. All the manufacturers of that material ask is that they shall be allowed to lay their pipes subject to the inspection of the Board. They say that when earthen pipes used to be laid in New York there was no inspection, and that the results were consequently deleterious to the public health, but when iron pipes were laid down they were at once subjected to supervision, and that, had the earthen pipes been placed under the same regulation, they would have proved much more satisfactory.

Sanitary Inspector Bower subsequently told a representative of THE RECORD AND GUIDE that no action had yet been taken by the Brooklyn Board of Health in the matter. A full report is being made by Inspector Powers, which will be placed in the hands of the Board at their meeting this week, when the question will come up for discussion. When asked as to the use of vitrified pipes for drainage Mr. Bower said: "If the joints could in every instance be caulked in the same way as they were in last Monday's test it would make a superior job to the light iron pipe used in New York and Brooklyn. Of course it would necessitate an increased staff of inspectors, as the iron pipes were in five-foot lengths, while the earthen pipes were in two-foot lengths."

Jacob Sharpe and his friends will eventually get the franchise for the Broadway road. They have the Aldermen as a matter of course, but it seems that the cable company have a majority of the property holders interested. The court will appoint a commission to settle the matter, which will of course decide for Mr. Sharpe and his friends. As the law requires the consent of the property holders as well as the Aldermen, the dispute will be carried to the courts and in due time will be decided by the Court of Appeals. As Mr. Sharpe understands the management of Aldermen and the courts he will undoubtedly be finally successful, but it may be a couple of years before there is a railroad on Broadway. The public will have one advantage if this arrangement is carried out, the proposed road will connect with the Broadway and Seventh avenue roads on the west side, and the passenger who takes a car at lower Broadway can ride to the Harlem River for five cents.

The World of Business.

Huntington's Transcontinental.

The "last spike" was quietly driven the other day in the first railroad in the United States that can rightly be called a "transcontinental line." This spike bound to the ties the last rail in the road which Huntington, Crocker and Stanford have made it the crowning ambition of their lives to lay across the continent. These men now have a railroad of their own from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and sitting in their private cars can ride from San Francisco to Newport News without leaving their own tracks. This is the consummation of plans which they laid fifteen years ago, when they first began the construction of the Southern Pacific. They have pursued the realization of their schemes with the dauntless ability and the masterful strength with which they must be credited even by the critics who have most sharply censured them for their misuse of the powers intrusted to them by the public. They have achieved their purposes in spite of the laws of nature and of man. They have gone with equal ease through Congress, and the deserts of Arizona. There was a moment last spring when it seemed as if the King of Terrors in the money market had marked Huntington and his partners for its own, but they outrode even that pursuer, and have survived to drive their last spike in peace. By way of dramatic contrast there comes simultaneously with the unostentatious announcement that this great enterprise is done the report of the Northern Pacific for last year with an item stating the cost of its "only greatest" last spike excursion to have been $178,000. That last spike was a coffin nail. The only ceremonial attending the completion of the Huntington transcontinental was the passage over the last link finished of a train consisting of one coach, one dining car and one baggage car, and carrying the chief officers of that division, which is officially known as the Louisville, New Orleans & Texas, and connects Memphis and New Orleans. There was no blowout, no free champagne picnic for Dukes and Barons from Europe, no transcontinental panorama to impress Wall street with the advisability of putting the stock up to par—nothing but a business trip with as few cars as would carry the officers who were to examine the road. There is a difference of opinion about the value of the new road. Its projecters expect it to be the great highway between the two oceans; its critics, like the Financial Chronicle, do not believe it will get much of the through traffic. It is, they say, too long and circuitous, running as it does way down to New Orleans and then way up to Louisville. But there can be no difference of opinion about this being the greatest enterprise that has ever yet been carried through in this country or any other under the leadership of private individuals. There is nowhere else so vast a combination of capital and charters, of money and monopolies, in the control of a single set of men. What is known as the Jay Gould system in the Southwest, including the Wabash, has a greater nominal number of miles and dollars, but these are not real things—only watery semblances of actualities. The Huntington system is not a mere aggregation of existing lines patched together for stock exchange purposes. More than half of its main line of 4,070 miles had to be built. To hasten the completion of the last piece—the Louisville, New Orleans & Texas, which runs between Memphis and New Orleans—the work of construction was divided between twenty corporations, each of which did a part. The following table will give the public a clearer idea than any amount of comment of the work Huntington and his partners have done and the power they have gathered into their hands. It gives the mileage and the capitalization, including water, of the various roads they have bought and built, including the Central Pacific:

Roads.	Miles.	Bonds and Stocks.
Southern Pacific	955	$84,039,000
Southern Pacific of New Mexico	167	11,069,000
Southern Pacific of Arizona	384	29,599,000
Galveston, Harrisburg & San Antonio	937	49,217,000
Texas & New Orleans	506	9,279,000
Morgan's Louisiana & Texas	266	11,494,000
Louisville, New Orleans & Texas	460	20,700,000
Chesapeake, Ohio & Southwestern	498	19,544,000
Elizabeth, Lexington & Big Sandy	139	7,009,000
Kentucky Central	253	12,184,000
Chesapeake & Ohio	520	65,229,000
Central Pacific	1,315	140,957,000
Total	5,903	$460,120,000

With all its extensions and connections, including that by which the Huntington syndicate reaches Chicago, the system covers not less than 8,000 miles of transportation. It strings together San Francisco, El Paso, San Antonio, Houston, Galveston, New Orleans, Baton Rouge, Memphis, Vicksburg, Louisville, Cincinnati, Richmond, Chicago. The seventeen iron steamers which the sydicate acquired when it bought Morgan's Louisiana & Texas line extend its lines of carriage to New York, Havana and the ports of Mexico. The land grants belonging to the different roads contain uncounted millions of acres, which now pass under the control of three or four persons. This little handful of men dominates the highways of ten States and territories. Their power of taxation is governmental and their revenues are imperial. All these different corporations will be welded into one. The men Huntington, Stanford and Crocker will die, but the corporation will live. The country must rule it or it will rule the country.—Chicago Tribune.

Quick Trains Between New York and Boston.

President Watrous, of the New Haven Railroad, does not believe that the proposed inland road will be built, and evidently thinks the public travel between the Hub and Gotham is very well handled by the present routes. He claims that "people over-estimate the volume of through travel between the two large cities, and also over-estimate the importance of saving of an hour or a half hour in 234 miles of railroad travel. I don't know of another 234 miles of railroad in the country that is traveled as quickly as by our trains between New York and Boston. We are doing this distance every day in less time than is required to run trains between New York and Washington, a distance of 228 miles via Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore. From New York to Boston over the Shore Line is 232 miles, two miles less than by Springfield; and the running time of the two lines about the same. Between New York and Washington passage on the limited trains, including a chair in the drawing-room car, costs $8, while our rate between New York and Boston, practically the same distance, is only $6, in a drawing-room car, and only $5 for seats in regular road cars. We are running between New York and Boston faster and cheaper than the same distance is made on any other railroad in the United States, so far as I know. The people of this country are not prepared for a speed of much over forty miles an hour; and the project to build a railroad at the expense talked of and over the route named, to improve on a speed of forty miles per hour, is to my mind visionary. Whether there will be found people who will put money into such a scheme, of course I cannot say; but I have heard of none. With the drawbridge stops, which we make eliminated, and by running one engine through the entire trip I have an idea that we could improve our running time between New York and Boston a little. I expect to live to see the time when trains will be run over the Springfield and Shore Line routes in five hours and a half. We now run in six hours. The reduction in time would be attained by increased speed of trains and elimination of drawbridge stops. I don't believe that the public want to ride faster than forty miles per hour. Given a dead straight and entirely level road, the only limit to speed is involved in the capacity of the engine for generating steam and its power to resist wrecking from its own momentum. To increase the present speed of trains would result in increased danger.—Boston Journal.

South American Trade.

All admit that new outlets for our manufactures are a necessity for their well being. Common sense suggests that the nearest markets are the most available, provided trade is not too much hampered by customs duties. At this time when production so largely outruns consumption, and our home markets are glutted with manufactured goods, the meeting in this city of the Central and South American Commission, for the purpose of extending this country's commerce, is of more than ordinary interest. The members of the commission appointed by the President of the United States met in conference the Consul-General of Brazil, the Consul-Generals of Peru, Bolivia and other South American nations, also Senor Romeo, of Mexico, who stated that the reciprocity treaty between the United States and that country is awaiting final legislative action, and when concluded would result in lasting benefit. As showing the value of the South American trade, Mr. A. D. Anderson, special commissioner from the Spanish American markets to the New Orleans Exposition, said:

There are 40,000,000 consumers in these markets, in an area of 8,000,000 square miles, the reverse in climate, resources and products of the United States They are deficient in manufactures and need iron supplies, farming implements and most of what has become with us necessary for life. We need their coffee, sugar and tropical fruits and hard woods. The total foreign commerce of Mexico, Central America, Brazil and the nine South American republics is $675,000,000, and of this trade the United States controls less than one fifth, the lion's share being monopolized by Great Britain, France and other European powers. Eighty per cent. of our exports go to Europe, and only 5 per cent. to the South American republics.

In attendance at the meetings of the commission was Captain Bedford Pim, an ex-member of Parliament and an officer in the British Navy, who was asked to give his views, in which he said:

It seems to me, from an intimate acquaintance with American commerce, that the United States ought to carry all the trade of the continent. You have the greatest nation on earth and all the means and facilities. You want more ships as much as you want to give long credits. If England can't hold her trade, let America take it and keep it. I am an old Tory, but I admire the Monroe doctrine and I wish we had it with us. I abominate free trade. No other nation but my own pretends to maintain it. It seems to me that the American should give his attention now to his marine commerce. Railroads have had their day. Now let the men of middle means invest their capital in building up the American shipping, and they will spread the nation's flag all over the ocean.

The captain will no doubt be taken to task by the English journals for his liberal views in regard to America and his opposition to free trade, but his remarks are full of good sense and sound truth, nevertheless. The Peruvian Consul stated that English merchants gave longer credits than Americans, and this was the chief difficulty in promoting our trade. This statement was also confirmed by the Consul-General of Brazil, who also stated that two per cent. of our manufactures goes to foreign markets, and only an insignificant portion of the two per cent. to the twenty American countries south of us.—American Grocer.

The Future of Refrigerator Cars.

A train of four refrigerator cars and an engine made the trip from Fort Worth, Tex., to this city last week in sixty-six hours and twenty minutes. The cars contained dressed beef, and the fast run demonstrated two facts which are worth considering. The first is that Western roads are built in a much more substantial manner than is generally supposed, and are correspondingly much more capable of withstanding the wear and tear of fast travel. In the East the road-beds of railroads are firm and solid, and little fear is ever felt as to their ability to sustain rapid traffic. The idea prevails in the East, however, that the Western roads are just the reverse; that their road-beds are poorly constructed and their tracks so unsubstantial that they render travel over them dangerous. So fast a run as this referred to, however, proves that this supposition is incorrect and that Western roads are in every way adapted to all the demands of modern railroading. The other fact which has to be considered is this: The slaughter house is to be a feature in Texas in the future, and the day of live-stock transportation is rapidly nearing its close. If dressed beef can be received in St. Louis from Texas in less than three days' time it is safe to say that, with the economic advantages that manner of shipping beef possesses, the fact of rapid transportation being taken into consideration, there can but little be said in favor of the shipment of live stock as that method of shipping exists at present. Had this train carried live stock instead of dressed beef two stops of fifteen hours each would have had to be made in order to rest and feed the cattle. There is no reason why, under the system of refrigeration adopted in Texas, where beef can be so dressed and prepared as to be kept fresh for months, all the slaughtering should not be done right where the cattle are found.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

Dressed Beef from the Northwest.

ST. PAUL. Minn., Sept. 25, 1884.—The colossal system inaugurated a year ago under the auspices of the Northern Pacific Refrigerator Company, whose object is to provide the Northwest with an outlet for dressed beef, is nearly completed. The Marquis Demores is manager of the company. The system includes a packing house at every beef market along the Northern Pacific from Helena, Mont., to Duluth, at St. Paul and Minneapolis. A large slaughter house is to be built at the Minnesota transfer as soon as preliminaries connected with the purchase of a site are concluded. The house at the transfer will be one of the largest in the system, as it will be the depot for all the winter shipments, and a large share of those during the summer. The slaughter house at Medora is to be enlarged this month and next to 60x260 feet, which will make it the largest packing house west of Chicago, and give it a capacity for cooling 700 beeves a day. The company was originally capitalized for $200,000, and the investments by Marquis Demores and his father-in-law, Louis Van Hoffman, the New York banker, have exceeded this capital by $200,000 more. Thus far the enterprise has been chiefly one of investments and preparations, and the work has been embarrassed by the more than expected success of the whole plan. The sales are averaging $6,000 a day this month. In order to meet this excessive development, it has been decided to reorganize the Northern Pacific Refrigerator Company. This company is practically Marquis Demores' and Mr. Van Hoffman's, whose interests are indentical. They will capitalize the new company at about $1,500,000, expecting this figure to cover the ultimate investments necessary to place the completed system in full and perfect working order.—Boston Herald.

John King, Jr.'s Motive.

It is suggested that the reason why John King, Jr., accepted the presidency of the Erie is to get revenge on Robert Garrett, vice-president of the Baltimore & Ohio, and the son of John W. Garrett, president of that company. About three years ago Mr. King resigned the receiverships of the Ohio & Mississippi and the Marietta & Cincinnati and the vice-presidency of the Baltimore & Ohio, positions worth $30,000 per year. At the time the motive was said to be a desire to regain shattered health. But those who know say it was because he could not endure any longer the arrogance and dictation of Robert Garrett, who, although an honorable man, is by no means as brainy as his father. So Mr. King went to Europe, and while there made the acquaintance of the English capitalists who own the Erie and the Ohio & Mississippi. A mutual friendship resulted, one fruit of which is shown by the election of Mr. King to the presidency of the Erie. Perhaps Mr. King is not sorry to now engineer the movement that is to oust the Baltimore & Ohio from the control of the Ohio & Mississippi and give that road over to the Erie. Possibly he also thinks of how sore Robert Garrett will feel when the whirligig of time gives Mr. King the opportunity to inflict a cruel wound upon his old annoyer and punish him for not taking good advice when it was offered. "Revenge is sweet."—St. Louis Railway Register.

Hudson River Tunnel and the Freezing Process.

The freezing process for sinking shafts, piers, etc., through quicksand promises to be one of immense utility in practical engineering says the Chicago Railway Review. It is even believed that the invention, which is a European one, will surpass in importance the pneumatic process which has been used to so great advantage in late years, especially in bridge construction. The process consists simply in sinking tubes connected with suitable apparatus and machinery for freezing. The sand or silt is in this manner easily congealed, and the work of excavation is carried on with comparative ease. By the use of this process many beds of coal which are overlaid by quicksands through which it has heretofore been impossible to sink shafts can be opened and worked. Bridge piers can be sunk in numerous places, notably on the Mississippi River, where it has heretofore been deemed practically impossible to build a bridge. The same is true of tunnels. It has recently been stated that the Hudson River tunnel has been abandoned for good. This is not true. The death of Trenor Park, its principal financial promoter, has put a stop to the active progress of the work: but his estate will endeavor to secure the completion of the tunnel. The freezing process seems to be especially adapted to this great work.—Boston Transcript.

Is Keely Crazy?

Perhaps Mr. Keely, of "Keely Motor" fame, is not so much of a humbug as people generally suppose. If, after all, he has discovered a new motor, with which the only difficulty is bridling its force, he has done an immeasurable benefit to the world. How strange it would seem to have a new motor power applied to locomotives which would be as superior to steam as steam is to horse muscle. Who knows but that before another half century shall have elapsed trains will be drawn over improved railways at a speed of 100 miles an hour! Just think of going from New York to St. Louis or Chicago between breakfast and supper. Experiments were recently made at Sandy Hook with what Mr. Keely calls "interatonic ether" as a propelling force. The experiments were acknowledged to have been successful. The inventor claims that he can, by the use of air and water, produce vibrations that will generate a pressure of 56,000 pounds to the square inch. In a late interview Mr. Keely said: "By attaching a steel coil to a resonanter, a square box that performs the functions of a violin, and drawing a resined bow across the coil, I can produce vibrations of such a character as to break glass as if it had been struck by a hammer." Perhaps in the locomotive of the future something akin to this will be used. It is easy to say that the inventor of the "Keely Motor," something which we admit savors of the mythical, is crazy. This is a simple explanation, and reflects credit on the powers of perception of the observer. It will be remembered that all great inventors were at first supposed to be crazy, just because their inventions could not be at once comprehended. Possibly Keely is a fraud or a lunatic, but it must be admitted that he is plausible and that there is method in his madness. The success of the recent experiments shows that there is something in his discoveries after all. It is interesting to think of the possibilities and guess what effects may yet be produced. We live in a strange age, and prudent men do not dare to brand anything as impossible.—Railway Register.

Real Estate Brokerage.

The case of Charles G. Martin & Co. against Eliza Billings, already reported in our columns, came up again, on appeal this time, before the General Term of the City Court of New York, and the judgment which Mr. Martin and his associate then obtained, giving them a brokerage, has been reversed by Judges Nehrbas, Hyatt and McAdam, the latter (the author of that most accurate and valuable book, "McAdam on Landlord and Tenant") writing the opinion of the Court, which we think best to give in the Court's own words:

MCADAM, C. J.—"The action is for brokerage in procuring a tenant for certain premises belonging to the defendant, and the substantial question presented is whether the plaintiffs or one Charles S. Beck procured the tenant to whom the defendant leased the property. The plaintiffs are real estate brokers and Peck is also a broker. The plaintiffs were employed to find a tenant, and Peck was likewise employed. The defendant had the right to employ as many brokers as she pleased, and was obligated to pay the one who negotiated a contract on her terms and no other; for to entitle a broker to commissions it is essential that he shall be the procuring cause of the contract finally made (White vs. Twitchings, 26 Hun, 513). The plaintiffs were employed to find a tenant willing to pay $3,000 per year; this they failed to do. They called Dewey's attention to the property and introduced him to the defendant, but he would not agree to pay the required rent. Finally Dewey saw Peck, the other broker, and through him an agreement was consummated by which Dewey took the property in January, 1884, at $2,250 per year after May 1st, 1884, and agreed to pay $300 for the intervening time—to wit, to May 1st, 1884. This arrangement was negotiated in Peck's office. The plaintiffs were not parties to the negotiation and did not aid in its final consummation. Peck was therefore the procuring cause of the letting—actually made and earned the commission. If there had been no intervening agency and the defendant had let the premises to Dewey even at a reduced rent, the plaintiffs might with some propriety have claimed that their efforts led to the contract, and that they were in consequence entitled to the brokerage. But there was an intervening agency, and Peck seems to have brought about a successful consummation of the contract made. As between the two rival brokers Peck was the procuring cause of the letting. Where there is, as in this case, a dispute between rival brokers, it is difficult at times to draw the line and decide which in law earned the commission claimed, but it is clear to us from the evidence that Peck succeeded in bringing about a meeting of the minds of the parties in interest, a duty which the plaintiffs undertook but failed to perform. Dewey, the person who hired the premises, was not called as a witness upon the trial. His evidence would have aided us materially in determining the question of procuring cause. His testimony may be procured upon the next trial of the action. Why he was not produced as a witness does not distinctly appear. Upon the trial the plaintiff, William C. Martin, was asked about him, and said he had not subpœnaed or requested him to attend, and when asked 'Didn't you get the trial of this action postponed once or twice on the ground that he was a material witness for you?' the plaintiff's counsel objected to the question, and the objection was sustained and the defendant excepted. The defendant, upon the trial, offered to show that she had paid Peck the brokerage claimed. The plaintiff objected to this evidence and the trial judge sustained the objection, to which the defendant also excepted. We think that, in view of the facts, this evidence was competent, as tending to show the good faith of the defense. True, it was not conclusive against the plaintiffs, but it was not wholly irrelevant. Upon the entire case it is clear to us that the verdict cannot be sustained. The judgment must, therefore, be reversed, and a new trial ordered, with costs to the appellant to abide the event."

Copper for Building Purposes.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

I speak as a practical man when I question the wisdom of using copper for roofing or water pipes. The trouble with copper is that it expands and contracts with the temperature. When the sheets are soldered together on the top of a house it will be found that they wrinkle up in cold weather and become very tight in warm weather, with the result of finally cracking and house leakage. There is the same objection to copper for cylindrical pipes in plumbing. Tin and lead are after all the best metals to use, because they do not contract and expand so readily as copper. Copper, however, might be used to great advantage in stove pipes and in chimneys for carrying off smoke and heat. Copper for this purpose would be in every way superior to iron. Copper has been tried for roofing, but it will split and leak.

Hollow Brick Flat Arches—Kreischer's Patent.

THE RECORD AND GUIDE for September 20th contained an article on the patent suit of William J. Freyer for infringement of Kreischer's patent for hollow brick flat arches in floors. In order to avoid wrong inferences from that article, it is proper to give the substance of the two opinions of Judge Wallace annuling that patent. The patent was issued March 21, 1871, and reissued December 3, 1872. It claimed the exclusive right to make hollow tiles in sections forming a flat surface for floors, in combination with supporting beams or girders, and with recesses to catch over the flanges of the girders. If the patent is good for this broad claim, it covers the whole business of modern fire-proof hollow brick flooring. The defences were that the reissue was invalid because for a thing broader than the original, and also that if the reissue was good the patent itself was void.

Judge Wallace in his first opinion decided that the prior French patents of Garcein and Roux Freres contained every feature of Kreischer's claim except the substitution of plane joints for the indented joints of the French patents, and that the prior English patent of George Davies contained the latter feature in arches for spanning the space between girders of buildings. And he held that to apply it to the hollow arches of Garcein and Roux Freres was not such an invention as could sustain a patent.

A rehearing was granted upon a suggestion of some clerical error as to the purport of this English patent. Upon this rehearing another French patent was produced and admitted, showing the same feature of plane joints in hollow arch tiles. In his second opinion, after the rehearing, Judge Wallace held that the Kreischer patent was properly reissued, but that although the reissue was good as such the patent itself was void for want of novelty. He declared this in much more emphatic language than in the first opinion. His exact words should be given in order to show how worthless he considered the patent. Referring to the new French patent produced, he says: "This patent is a complete anticipation of everything that is essential and valuable in the complainant's invention. * * * There was no patentable novelty in Kreischer's hollow tile flat arch, the invention which is claimed in the complainant's patent in view of the prior state of the art. Hollow tiles were old; flat arches were old; flat arches made of hollow tiles in sections were old; flat arches of sectional hollow tiles with plane joints were old; such arches supported at the ends by girders and used to support the floors of fire-proof buildings were old; such arches thus supported were old, when the end sections of the tiles were provided with recesses to receive the flanges of the girders; everything which is of the substance of the invention was old, except a slight change in the form of the recess in the end sections of the tiling. No advantages arising from this change of form are suggested in the patent, and it is doubtful whether there are any practically. If there are any, the form is described in terms so vague that any form which serves to lock the tile to the girder will satisfy the description, and the old recesses would do this. Kreischer, doubtless, thought that his arch was new, and he described and claimed his invention broadly upon this theory. It is now shown to have been old and it is quite useless to attempt to sustain the patent upon refined distinctions in minor details in structure, which the patentee evidently never contemplated, and which certainly are not within the claims as expressed in the patent. The bill is dismissed."

After such an emphatic judgment, given on a second hearing after full discussion, it is easy for any one interested in the subject to judge whether there is any chance of its reversal on appeal; and it will be hard to persuade builders that the business of laying floors with flat arches, now so widely pursued, and so essential to safety, can be monopolized by Mr. Freyer under Kreischer's patent.—Real Estate Chronicle.

The Public Land System.*

When we took up this book, Spaulding's Public Land System of the United States, published by A. L. Bancroft & Co., of San Francisco, we thought we were going to have some very dry reading. In this we were very agreeably mistaken, for while the author has given the land laws the rulings of the department at Washington, the decisions of the courts, and correct forms in United States land and mining matters, he has made a most readable volume, and one that must deeply interest every man who owns, or thinks of owning, any western land or mines, the title to which comes from the United States government. Here can be found all the facts as well as the rules about the public domain, the cessions by the States, and from France, Spain, Mexico, Texas and Russia. It would appear that it has all cost the grand total of $322,000,000, and that the net cash receipts from it up to June 30, 1883, were $200,000,000. We find in this volume the rules for pre-emption and sale and patents to individuals, the rules between States and settlers, all about surveys and surveyors, the different modes of obtaining title by public sales and by private entries, especially in California and in the Louisiana purchase; the correction of mistakes in the entry of land; everything about homesteads, railroad grants, mineral lands, the rights of wives and of heirs in homesteads, and the fees of the land office; the use of agricultural college scrip and of military bounty land warrants is explained; two very interesting chapters are devoted to timber and timber culture, and two more to town sites and county seats; desert lands, reservations and saline lands receive full attention; so do mining claims before the land offices and before the courts, seven chapters being devoted to the last-named subject. In fact the book is as full of interesting information as a sound pecan nut is full of meat. We advise every one of our subscribers at all interested in any of these subjects to at once purchase the volume; it can be had of any law bookseller, or we shall be pleased to supply it on receipt of price, $5.00.

Real Estate Department.

The fall market opens somewhat languidly; there has not been much doing either in a public or private way. The brokers and dealers report, however, that although the market is undeniably dull prices are firmly held. The Deane estate was finally disposed of on Thursday last and will vex the market no more. Undoubtedly this property has interfered with the sale of other houses for the last three months. It has established low quotations, especially for Harlem property, and well-built houses have suffered in the market from the competition of these more cheaply-built structures. Some Eighty-eighth street lots on the west side were knocked down for what seems like cheap prices, but it is alleged that the rock on the property will make the ultimate cost $5,000 for each lot, which is a very fair price.

The Commissioners of the Sinking Fund resolved on Wednesday to pay $265,000 for the site for the new armory for the Twenty-second Regiment, on the plot bounded by Sixty-seventh and Sixty-eighth streets, Ninth avenue and the Boulevard; and $350,000 for a site for the new armory for the Eighth Regiment on the plot bounded by Ninety-fourth and Ninety-fifth streets, Madison and Fourth avenues.

On Wednesday, Auctioneer R. V. Harnett sold Tilden Park, belonging to Milano C. Tilden, which contains 54 acres, ten of which form the park proper, with about 28 acres of magnificent forest trees, and a large double mansion, stables, barns, gardener's lodge and everything necessary to make a gentleman's country seat complete, to Chas. A. Fuller for $20,000. It is on the Boston Post road, in the town of Westchester. A tract of fifty-three acres, adjoining Tilden Park, was sold by order of Edward P. Kennard, trustee, to Herbert Richmond for $15,000.

There are now only three delinquents among the subscribers of the Real Estate Exchange and Auction Room. Ten shares were sold at auction on the Exchange at par, on Wednesday, to John J. Radley.

The Conveyances recorded this week present no notable feature. The numbers are rather more, but the consideration is less. Here is the table:

The trustees' sale of 264 lots of the recently partitioned Fox estate will be held on Tuesday next, October 14th, by James L. Wells. This well-known property is located in the Twenty-third Ward, directly on the line of the Suburban Rapid Transit route, and at a point where one of the proposed stations will be. The lots are accessible by steam and horse cars, and are near the new parks. The adjoining lots are being rapidly improved. Buyers will receive free a perfect title given by the Title Guarantee and Trust Company. With all these facts before them investors will not err in purchasing realty on this estate at the present low valuations.

The coming week promises to see a more active market. The sale of the Fish property by Mr. R. V. Harnett, on Wednesday next, will undoubtedly draw a crowd of eager bidders. However unwise may have been the dealings of Mr. Fish with his partner Ward, his investments in real estate showed rare good judgment, and all the property offered ought to command very high figures. During the coming week E. H. Ludlow & Co. will sell French's Hotel under partition. One rather untoward sign is the large number of foreclosure sales which will take place towards the close of this and the beginning of next month. The Lis Pendens on file show a large increase over previous seasons.

John T. Boyd will sell on Thursday next, October 16, under foreclosure, the six new four-story high stoop brown stone dwellings, Nos. 3 to 13 East Sixty-seventh street, being on the north side, 125 feet east of Fifth avenue. This is very desirable residence property, and investors should not fail to be present. The sale is peremptory. Fuller particulars are given in our advertising columns.

On Thursday, the 16th inst., E. H. Ludlow & Co. will sell the fine house No. 27 East Sixty-fourth street, the northwest corner of Madison avenue. The lot upon which this first-class edifice is constructed occupies half the block on Madison avenue, that is, 100.5 feet. This is a rare chance to secure a first-class property.

H. Henriques will sell on October 16 the investment property on the southwest corner of Bowery and Hester street, also the southeast corner of Hester and Elizabeth streets and the building No. 144 Hester street. This is a sale under partition.

On Thursday, October 23, James L. Wells will sell under order of the receiver of the Knickerbocker Life Insurance Company a quantity of very desirable property in this city, Yonkers, Newark, N. J., and Marion, N. J. The advertisement shows how desirable several of these parcels are.

The five-story and basement brown stone double flat, No. 80 Morton street, located in the best part of the Ninth Ward, is, as will be seen from another column, offered for sale. It rents at $3,660. This is good investment property.

Gossip of the Week.

Amos R. Eno has sold twenty-nine lots on the east side of Tenth avenue, between Fifty-ninth and Sixtieth streets, eight on the avenue, ten on Fifty-ninth and eleven on Sixtieth street. It is understood that the purchase was effected by the College of Physicians and Surgeons, No. 108 East Twenty-third street, who intend to improve the property.

Messrs. C. Graham & Sons have sold the four-story and basement bay front and Nova Scotia stone dwelling on the northeast corner of Lexington avenue and Forty-fifth street, 20x55x65, for $28,000 cash.

L. J. & I. Phillips have sold a lot on the east side of Fifth avenue, 100 feet south of Eighty-first street, 27.2x100, to Louis Stern, of Stern Bros., for $57,000.

George W. McCormack has purchased from Mrs. Theresa Stendler the five-story double stores and tenement, No. 345 East One Hundred and Twenty-First street.

Francis Keckeissen has sold the six-story double tenement No. 48 Chrystie street, 25 feet north of Canal street, 25x75x100, to George Gottheimer, for $28,000.

Morris Steinhardt has purchased the plot on the northeast corner of Lexington avenue and Seventy-fifth street, 102.2x95. It will be improved immediately.

Two three-story brick dwellings, Nos. 325 and 327 West Eleventh street (leasehold), were sold under foreclosure on Tuesday for $2,500. The purchaser, it is said, was offered $8,000 for the lease before leaving the Exchange Salesroom.

Glover & Co. have sold for Daniel Glover the three-story brick dwelling, No. 118 East Tenth street, for $14,000, to Wm. L. Stow.

W. J. Cole & Co. have sold one lot on the north side of Sixty-second street, about 225 feet east of Tenth avenue, for $7,500, to —— Kelly.

John D. Crimmins has sold three lots on the south side of Sixty-fourth street, between First avenue and Avenue A, 75x100, to a Mr. Norton, for $9,500.

Peter A. Lalor has sold the three-story high stoop brown stone dwelling No. 745 Lexington avenue.

Crevier & Woolley have sold for Terence Farley the four-story high stoop brown stone dwelling, No. 63 East Eightieth street, 18x100, for $35,000, to Nicoll, the tailor. This is the last house of the eight built by Farley & Son, all of which were sold within a few months.

Walter W. Montague has sold to John J. Burchell the three-story frame house No. 410 West Seventeenth street, 25x92, for $7,800, and the one-story brick shop No. 412 West Seventeenth street, 25x92, for $7,500.

Jacob Haubert has sold for Thos. L. Forrest the five-story tenement, No. 503 East Sixteenth street, near Avenue A, to Charles J. Miller, for $13,300.

Thomas & Eckerson have sold for Lewis Bresler the four-story and basement brown stone house No. 107 West Forty-second street, 20x55x100.2, to William Sperb, Jr.

M. B. Baer & Co. have sold for Katherine Grinnell the four-story high stoop brick and stone house No. 18 West Thirty-seventh street, 19.6x55x100, for $31,500, and for S. R. Ingham the three-story and basement brown stone dwelling No. 136 West One Hundred and Twenty-seventh street, 15.6x99.11, for $13,500.

Alden & Sterne have leased for the Marvin Safe Company the store and basement at No. 267 Broadway, to Geo. A. Castor & Co., tailors, for the term of ten years.

William Currie has sold to Christian Blinn, Jr., the five-story brown stone flat, known as the "Wallace," No. 450 West Forty-seventh street, 27x86.6x100.5, for $31,000, in exchange. Broker, J. W. Stevens.

J. Romaine Browne has sold for Elijah Clark the three-story and basement brick house No. 223 West One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street, 12.6x50x100, to May Dodge Orr, for $7,600.

Gillie & Walker have sold the five-story brick and brown stone tenement, known as the "Cameron," No. 452 West Forty-seventh street, 27.6x86x100, to a Mrs. Dobler, for $31,000.

Brooklyn.

W. F. Corwith has sold the premises No. 95 Kent street to Coles P. Davids for $6,400.

Out Among the Builders.

Messrs. Berger & Baylies have been selected as the architects for the five-story factory which will be erected on the south side of Forty-eighth street, 300 feet west of Tenth avenue, by Charles Lesinsky, as announced in our issue of September 24th. It will be of brick and granite, 75x90 in size, and will contain an elevator. It is to be occupied as a carpet factory by Sypher & Co. The cost will be $40,000.

J. B. McElfatrick, Son & De Baud are drawing the sketches for three-four-story high stoop brick and brown stone residences, 25x60 each, to be erected next spring by Anthony Mowbray, on the south side of Eightieth street, between Fifth and Madison avenues, at an estimated cost of $100,000.

A. B. Ogden has the sketches on the boards for five first class five-story brick and terra cotta flats, to be erected on the northeast corner of Lexington avenue and Seventy fifth street. The corner will be 22.2x75 and the remainder 20x70; estimated cost, $100,000; builder, Bernard Wilson.

John Brandt has the plans for a five-story brick and stone tenement, 25x80, to be built by Frank Seitz, at No. 429 West Eighteenth street, at a cost of about $17,000. The same architect has the designs for a five-story and basement brick tenement, 25x76, to be built at No. 241 Mulberry street, for P. Braender, at a cost of $18,000.

Cleverdon & Putzel have the plans for two three-story and store brick flats, to be built on the northwest corner of Third avenue and One Hundred and Forty-first street. The corner will be 22x85, and the other 20x65. Owner, John Bates, of Morristown, N. J.; cost, $20,000. The same architects have the plans completed for a large frame hotel at Colon, Pan., for Consul Furth.

John C. Burne has the plans under way for five five-story brick and terra cotta flats, 25x80 each, to be erected on the north side of Seventieth street, between First and Second avenues, for Max Danziger, at a cost of about $90,000.

Andrew Spence has the designs for three five-story brick and stone flats with improvements, 25x84 each, to be erected on the north side of One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, commencing 175 feet west of First avenue, for William H. Adams, at a cost of $60,000.

Brooklyn.

William Irving intends to erect five four-story flats, with stores, 20x55 each, on the corner of Fifth avenue and Union street, at a cost of $60,000; architect, John C. Burne, New York.

Notes and Items.

A number of property owners have sent a petition to the Board of Aldermen, requesting that the sidewalks of Eleventh avenue, between Seventy-second and One Hundred and Eighth streets, be made 30 feet wide. The petitioners give the following reasons why their prayer should be granted: The avenue has not yet been regulated and graded, and such action will not, therefore, interfere with any existing improvements. Its situation between Riverside avenue and the Boulevard, and generally of a grade above both, naturally adapts it for the purposes of residence and precludes its use as a business avenue. There is no necessity, therefore, for a wide carriageway, and such roadway would be a disadvantage and detriment, entailing large and unnecessary expense for its improvement, paving, watering and constant repair. As an avenue, by its situation adapted and by owners intended, principally for purposes of residence, the great public advantage and benefit of wide sidewalks are apparent. By planting shade trees and otherwise, they may be made pleasant and convenient promenades or walks, and owners, in building upon it, induced or encouraged to erect structures in cost and design in harmony with the improved plan of the avenue.

An action was commenced by Joseph W. Duryee, the well-known lumber dealer, in August, 1869, for $50,000, against the Mayor and Aldermen of New York city, for damages caused to his property on First avenue, between Thirty-fourth and Thirty-sixth streets, by the overflow of a sewer in that locality. The case has been under litigation ever since, a period of fifteen years, and has now been settled by a decision of the Court of Appeals affirming a judgment of the General Term of the Supreme Court in plaintiff's favor. The amount involved, including interest and costs, is $48,000. Attorneys for the plaintiff, F. J. Fithian (deceased) and A. J. Vanderpoel.

The cars are now running on the Forty-second street surface road and that they were needed is shown by the fact that the sixteen now in operation net fully $20 a day each, which shows a larger business than any other cross-town cars. Thirty-five cars will soon be running, all of which, it is believed, will do equally well. The contract for laying the track on the Boulevard has been given to a Philadelphia firm and the work will be advanced with great rapidity. It is believed that by the beginning of next year a passenger can take a car at Forty-second street and ride up Seventh avenue and the Boulevard to the upper end of the island. One Hundred and Tenth street is also to have a horse-car line from river to river, but this is to be built under an old charter authorized before the general law was passed.

Special Notices.

The Real Estate Chronicle on Wednesday next will contain matter of special interest to real estate investors. It will give a list of first-class property recently advertised for sale, with estimates of the value of each parcel by an expert in appraising real estate values. All who think of purchasing houses will find the Real Estate Chronicle a valuable guide, enabling them to estimate the value of properties offered for sale.

Folsom Brothers, real estate and insurance agents, report a largely increased business since their removal to their quarters on the corner of Broadway and Thirty-first street. Among the various estates managed by them are those of Cornelius Vanderbilt, Henry E. Pellew, Miss Catherine Wolf and William Bayard Cutting. They also have charge of the large apartment building, erected for workmen by the Improved Dwellings' Association, on First avenue, Seventy-second and Seventy-third streets, which contains accommodations for 300 families, at rentals ranging from eight to fourteen dollars per month. The Folsom Brothers transact a real estate business in all its branches, and are among the most capable and energetic in their line. The firm was established by the late Charles J. Folsom in 1847.

R. M. Walters, manufacturer of the Narvesen Pianos, at 57 and 59 University place, New York, has received a well deserved compliment in the action of the Committee on School Furniture, who have advised the Board of Education to select the Narvesen for the sixteen new square pianos required in our public schools. The pupils and schools as well as Mr. Walters should be congratulated on the choice made.

Builders and others are notified that they can obtain a quantity of German brown stone from John J. Schillinger, of No. 420 East Ninety-second street. It will also be seen from his card, which appears in another column, that he supplies imitation stone fronts. Stone-cutters should call at his yard. Mr. Schillinger, it may be added, is the patentee for the tiles for making wooden floor beams, arches, partitions and furring fire-proof, which he supplied to the Navarro buildings, after a test by Hubert, Pirsson & Co., and also to the Lyceum Theatre and several other well-known buildings in the city.

Culbert Brothers, manufacturers of builders' hardware, have removed from their quarters at No. 148 Baxter street to their new and spacious six-story and basement factory and warehouse, 25x100, at No. 311 West Fortieth street, which contains steam elevators and other improvements. This firm is one of the oldest in their line in the city, having been established in 1867.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

BRICKS.—A fairly steady demand has prevailed for Common Hards, but of an uneventful sort of character, and the market drags along in much the old humdrum condition. Buyers appear to make no special effort to obtain further advantages, nor do sellers exert themselves to force off stock, but when it is necessary they drift together in an easy sort of way, open and close negotiations without much flurry, and then stand off until time brings around a repetition. If there is any change at all this week it has been to a slightly lower range, and it would probably be safe to say that concessions of 1-¼ per M have been allowed even on the best goods, with $6 25@6 37½ about the top on Haverstraws, and other grades in proportion, with Jerseys and "Up Rivers" selling pretty close together. Most of the demand is still from local consumers, though we understand that now and then when an attractive cargo can be picked up it is run into storage, not through any special fear regarding the immediate future supply, but rather in deference to the natural desire to secure a good thing when available. Arrivals have been allowed to come forward fairly and possibly a little more freely than was expected, but the chances are thought to be against any increase, and the cold snap, it is expected, will about bring production to a close, many manufacturers having reached a point where such a course would be pursued even without the influence of the weather. The demand for Pales has continued good, and we again have reports of stock sold out quickly and closely, with prices firm on a range of $3 00@3 50 per M., according to quality. Just at the moment the movement of fronts is moderate on new orders but deliveries fair on old contracts, and offerings not abundant. Indeed, the agents for Trentons, etc., tell us they have not been sold out so closely at this season for many years.

GLASS.—Trade is not active, and, indeed, complaints of a growing indifference in the demand are quite common. Some of the out-of-town dependent points are still sending in orders and will be likely to continue doing so until freight charges increase, but locally the distribution is moderate. That is attributed in a great measure to the strikes of workmen, which have not only checked building operations at present but has prevented many engagements for the future. Supplies in the meantime are accumulating, and, with one or two houses sharply competing, values, if not quotably lower, are somewhat shaky.

HARDWARE.—The situation in most particulars remains much the same as last noted. Some of the trade report a good general sort of business, others medium, and still others a very light distribution, but there is evidently quite as much call for goods as during the last two weeks and of a character to require more or less of all seasonable varieties of stock. Manufacturers, however, are not fully satisfied with affairs, and they have some difficulty in keeping production within bounds, while on prices there is much irregularity and a general tendency in buyers' favor, many of the price-lists standing only as a nominal representation of value. For some leading articles an authoritative trade reports discounts 75 per cent. on screws, 60 per cent. on locks, and 50 and 10@60 per cent. on files, but a shading is very common on all these rates whenever a desirable customer can be secured thereby.

LATH.—The conditions of the market are very much the same as at the date of our last, with the exception possibly of a little further gathering of strength on prices. In some cases $2.25 has again been made, and we now hear of no thing selling for less than $2 20 per M, with demand reasonably quick and promising. Fair arrivals have come to hand, but they appeared to find customers waiting for them, even in full cargoes, and receivers were under no difficulty in getting rid of their consignments. Dealers, however, have not distributed liberally, and the call comes mainly from those who did not get a complement from the recent free offering.

LIME.—The market appears to be simply without change. As cargoes come to hand they find buyers ready to take them; no objection is made to former cost, and a steady feeling prevails generally. Arrivals are moderate, and it is expected they will remain under control during the balance of the season.

LUMBER.—Reports from all classes of operators have a rather monotonous sound. The yard trade is fair and we think on the whole is gaining. Some few dealers certainly distributing a larger amount of stuff, but there is no general spirit or vigor in the movement, and complaints are numerous. This state of affairs finds reflection upon wholesale operators, and business is of very erratic character throughout, offerings from first hands having only a chance sale. Sometimes the chance is a first rate one, and leads to quite a satisfactory transaction as matters stand, but oftener the seller has to do all the work, and a great deal of it, before a customer is secured. Still, as noted in our last, a few dealers appreciate the steady progress of the season, and where accumulations have not as yet been properly adjusted there is an inclination to pick up desirable parcels against the future. The variations on prices are slight, as there is nothing to stimulate, and as suggested by a dealer they are too low for further shrinkage.

Eastern Spruce still fails to attract much general attention. Most of the large dealers, although not unwilling to handle a desirable cargo, now and then are somewhat indifferent buyers, owing to the stock they already piled away, and the smaller customers are a little too uncertain in their movements to give the market a good solid position. Receivers, however, have managed to find an outlet for most of the stock, and appear to feel that so long as arrivals do not bunch up on them too heavily they can carry the position about steady, even on the small sizes, as the out-of-town demand now occasionally affords some relief. The mills are working slowly, and this helps the position somewhat. Values range anywhere from $11 to $13 on country cargoes; $13@$14 or possibly $14.50 for random, such as city demand will take and up to $16 asked on specials.

White Pine still has a few friends who claim a strong and promising market. That view of the situation, however, has very poor support, as neither in the immediate demand nor anxiety regarding the future do buyers contribute "aid and comfort" to those who have supplies to dispose of. Home calls are all based on immediate and positive necessity, and exporters purchase only when in receipt of direct orders. Arrivals are not very full and about all available upon receipt at former rates. The drop in prices at Albany does not appear to excite much comment as the purchases beyond that point to which we have before called attention make dealers somewhat independent. We quote at $16@17 for West India shipping boards; $18@27 for South American do.; $13@14 for box boards, and $16@18 for extra do.

Yellow Pine meets with a demand quite in proportion to other grades of stock, and that is about the best that can be said for it. From whatever sources the call comes, whether it be on f. o. b. orders to fill in an assortment of yard stock or on specials buyers appear to know just the number of feet they want and beyond that will not go nor will they buy in advance on old rates. There is plenty of sellers to meet them and the tone continues easy all around. We quote as follows: Randoms, $17@19.50 per M; Specials, $19.50@21 do.; Green Flooring Boards, $22@22; Dry, do., do., $22@23; Siding, $20@22 do.; Cargoes f. o. b. at Atlantic ports, $13@15 for rough, and $18@20 for dressed Cargoes f. o. b. at Gulf ports, $12@14 for rough, and $20@21 for dressed.

Hardwoods moderately active and steady for pretty much all descriptions, with a fair quantity offering of all except the finest sorts. Exports have been rather slow for some time past. We quote at wholesale rates by car load as follows: Walnut, $65@100 per M.; ash, $33@40 do.; oak, $30@55 do.; maple, $20@32.50 do; chestnut, $25@30 do.; cherry, $50@80 do.; whitewood, $27@35 do., do.; elm, $22@25; hickory, $45@50 do.

Shingles in most cases held steadily, with a fair degree of animation on usual outlets. Supplies not large and holders refuse to urge business. We quote Cypress at $8.0 @8.50 per M. for 5x20 and $11.00 @ 12.00 do. for 6x20 regularly assorted shipping. Pine shipping stock $2.00@2.50 for 18 inch, and Eastern saw grades at $2.00@2.50 for 16 inch, as to quality and to quantity. Eastern shaved cedar $4.00 @4.50 per M. Machine dressed cedar shingles quoted as follows: for 30 inch, $15.00@20 00 for A, and $23@28.50 for No. 1; for 24 inch, $18.00@15 for A and $18.50@20.50 for No. 1; for 20 inch, $8@9.50 for A and $11.00@12.50 for No. 1.

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

STATE.

ALBANY MARKET.

The Argus reports for week ending October 7 as follows:

There was a fair number of buyers in market during the week, and though no large transactions have transpired, a considerable amount of shipments shows the ordinary trade of the season. The receipts by canal for the week have been less than those of last year. The total clearances of lumber on the canals for the month of September were about thirteen millions less than those of last year. The stock of pine in the District is considerably larger than that of last year, and all sizes and qualities can be readily obtained. Spruce and Hemlock are also in good supply, with a constant demand from along the river, New York and New Jersey. Shingles are in fair supply, with a slow demand. There is a good supply of lath in the market.

THE WEST.

SAGINAW VALLEY.

LUMBERMAN'S GAZETTE,
BAY CITY, MICH.

The tenacity of a Saginaw lumber manufacturer to hold on to a fallacious idea is past comprehension. For months they have been endeavoring to hide their real transactions and the prices at which they sold their lumber, to the detriment of the market, as was openly admitted at the Saginaw meeting two weeks ago.

Among the sales which have come to the surface we may mention one of 300,000 feet by Thos. Madden to Buffalo parties, prices not stated; 500,000 feet by C. H. Bradley to Albany parties at $10, $21 and $38, not $11, $23 and $38, as erroneously published in the Detroit papers; 300,000 feet at $9 straight; W. T. Whitney also sold from his mill on west bay shore to Buffalo parties 450,000 at $7.50, $15 and $36; 400,000 feet at $8 straight at Bay City, and 400,000 feet to eastern parties at $13 50 straight. There have been undoubtedly many more sales made, but the usual reticence of the seller prevents publicity. The shipments from the river, however, prove that there is more lumber being sold than is reported.

There is no particular change in the situation here and the mill men continue their senseless slaughter of logs as usual, forcing their lumber on the market where possible, in order to make room on their docks for the new lumber as it leaves the saw. We hear of a sale of 200,000 pieces of lath by C. H. Bradley at $1.50 per thousand.

The Northwestern Lumberman says of the Chicago market:

More piece stuff than formerly is also coming. The market is crowded with it, and some that is of rather low grade. The amount of piece stuff thrown upon the commission men to dispose of has given them a hard tussle to hold it up, and at length they have been obliged to succumb to the pressure. The overload comes largely from Muskegon, and it is said the late heavy arrivals are owing to the fact that the low grade logs that are now running through the mills are being sawed into piece stuff and shipped to market directly from the saws, in order to leave room for the good lumber that must go into pile. As a consequence of this rush of piece stuff, the market has broken down at least 25 cents, short dimension now being offered openly at $8, and selling slowly at that Occasionally a cargo is held for $8 25, but on Thursday we heard of no sales at that figure, and a commission man frankly confessed that it would require a very good cargo to bring that price. In fact, the market on dimension was declared utterly flat, with no certainty that the bottom was reached. It was thought, however, by some, that when the east shore shippers came to a full realization of the condition of the market, they would withhold shipments, especially from Manistee. But, since lumber of all sorts is accumulating at the mills, not only on this lake but on Lake Huron, and the yard trade on piece stuff is largely cut off in Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa by river and northern competition, it is likely that the market for this class of lumber has seen its highest notch for the season, but nobody can say that it has reached its lowest range. Unless trade out of the yards very much increases, piece stuff on the market is liable to drop off 25 or 50 cents below present prices.

Inch lumber suffers a little from the decline in dimension. Actual selling prices are not quotably lower, but the market is tame, and purchasers are inclined to be extra fastidious about cargoes, and try to buy lower than a few days since. It is likely that sales are made at figures that indicate a lower range than that of our quotations. The tendency is certainly to weakness on all No. 2 stock, and nothing has happened to prevent the same tendency in No. 1 lumber.

Piece stuff, green	$8 00@ 8 25
Long timbers, green	9 75@11 25
Coarse common	9 00@ 9 50
Boards and strips, No. 2, green	9 50@11 00
" medium, green	11 00@15 00
" No. 1, green	15 00@18 00
High grade	18 00@22 00

The hardwood market of this week exhibits no new features, and a statement of its condition is pretty much a repetition of what has been said in former reports. The supply of lumber at manufacturing points is still crowding the demand, and prevents any improvement in prices. Sales are perhaps a little heavier in some lines, but on the whole there is no improvement.

Oak is moving moderately and at quoted prices. As before stated, thick clear ash of good widths is scarce, and dealers are willing to pay good prices for dry shipments. Whitewood is probably holding its own better than almost any other wood on our list. Recent purchases have been made within our quotations, but this market shows no particular avidity for it. Reports we have received from Tennessee, stating prices on firsts and seconds there to be $22.50 per thousand f. o. b. cars at the mills, are certainly not borne out by the conditions here, and we must infer that such lumber has some peculiar merits which this market does not appreciate.

Birch is in good demand, and fine lots of black birch are eagerly taken up. We heard this week of a sale of five car loads out of yard here, for furniture and finishing purposes. It is largely used for furniture, mantels and in ebonized and stained work. Beech is also in demand for similar purposes.

The Lumberman and Manufacturer, of Minneapolis, says:

In the Northwest the demand increases. Minneapolis is sending out over 5,000,000 per week, and taking another up by local consumption. St. Paul is sending out forty cars per day, but owing to the freight differentials cannot furnish much to the Missouri valley, as they are willing the intermediate river points should fight it out with Chicago rather than mix in as long as the river points can hold the trade. When this ceases there will be music by the full band from the Northwest. The preparations for logging are going on and all indications point to a large cut this winter. As usual every one thinks they will fool all the others as to the amount to be cut. Log sales are few at prices of last two months.

ENGLAND.

The London Timber Trade's Journal reports:

Cedar.—We think it is clear now that prices have turned; at the auction figures showed a decided advance, and there was brisk competition. We also believe that some considerable sales by private contract have been effected, so that there is now very little unsold stock left in the docks.

American Black Walnut.—Business in this is pretty brisk; a parcel of rather poor wood was cleared without reserve, in which any lots of a better class brought forth good competition, and realized very fair prices. The arrivals are rather less, and any appreciable reduction in stock would be pretty sure to stiffen prices.

American Whitewood.—The rather large unreserved sale of Wednesday will tend to encourage the consumption of this wood, which has now become a by no means unimportant article in the market. Of planks and board stuff there was also a good assortment offered, but it did not seem to find buyers, they having probably supplied their wants by purchasing logs.

Mahogany.—The public sales of the past week attracted large companies, the auction rooms on both days being well filled, as not only were the usual buyers there, but a considerable contingent from the country, whose presence here is always welcome to the selling brokers, if not so highly appreciated by competing London dealers; consequently it is not matter for surprise that the Truxillo and Belize wood sold extremely well, and we fancy we can now discern the first signs of better prices generally. The Minatitlan wood, ex Jolund, which consisted of bought in lots from a former sale, being both small and poor, we think the brokers were wise in clearing as they did, rather than longer burden the market with that class of goods. The St. Domingo wood, ex Portia, sold well, but had the logs in some cases been double the length their value would have been greatly increased; seeing so many of the logs specially named, we naturally expected something very prime in the way of veneer wood, but though there were, undoubtedly, many good useful logs of capital sizes and some figure we failed to see any which could really be called "fine." The discharge of the Tabasco cargo, ex Golin Archer, is now completed, and we see no reason to alter the report we have already given upon it.

There have been no arrivals during the past week, and there is just now nothing at all landing; but we believe at least two Tabasco cargoes will shortly be in dock, having left ports of call.

NAILS.—Matters are without much change on the general market. Demand fluctuates somewhat in volume from all sources, but dealers who do figuring instead of guessing claim that aggregate results on any given period show but little actual variation, and that there is quite a steady distribution going on, including a good proportion on export outlet. Supplies fair but very well in hand, and rates held steadily. We quote at $2 15@2.25 per keg for 10d. to 60d., according to quantity.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—Some few reports of a cheerful character may be found, but business is not generally in satisfactory condition. Sellers complain not only of the small size of the invoices, but of the irregular call for them and the general tendency among buyers to squeeze out the most exacting terms. In a general way, however, prices do not vary to any decided extent, and the offering of stock is made without undue effort to realize. Linseed Oil has been somewhat unsettled again, but making no decided variation and closing at 53@54c. for domestic and 56@57c. for foreign. Spirits Turpentine not very active but stock fairly in hand and the tone about steady at 30@32c., according to quantity, package, etc.

PITCH AND TAR.—About the usual amount of trade doing, former prices ruling, and no new features worthy of note on the general market. Supplies fair. We quote Pitch, $2.25@2.30 per bbl.; Tar, $2 50 @2.00, according to quantity, quality and delivery.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as headings are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

JUDGMENTS.

In these lists of judgments the names alphabetically arranged, and which are first on each line, are those of the judgment debtor. The letter (D) means judgment for deficiency. (*) means not summoned. (†) signifies that the first name is fictitious, real name being unknown. Judgments entered during the week, and satisfied before day of publication, do not appear in this column but in list of Satisfied Judgments.

OCTOBER 18, 1884.

The issue of the Ohio election leaves the result on the presidential vote in doubt, with the chances slightly in Mr. Blaine's favor. Everything now depends on New York, and the stalwarts have it in their power to say whether Mr. Blaine can have the thirty-six votes of this State or not. So far it is understood that the office-holding Republicans have come to no understanding with Mr. Blaine's managers. It will be a curious result of party faction if Mr. Cleveland, who was elected Governor by the half-breed defection two years ago, should be chosen President because of the secret hostility or lukewarmness of the stalwarts in this contest. The contest until the close of the polls on election day will be a very fierce one, and will, while it lasts, affect unfavorably the business of the country.

The outlook for the stock market is very much mixed. The disturbing factors seem to be Robert Garrett and the West Shore road. The former has undertaken to fight every leading railroad interest in the East. He is at war with the Pennsylvania Central, the New York Central, the Pullman Palace Car interest and the express companies of the country, in addition to the Western Union, which he is attacking by building a rival line. He is also interested in the ocean cable controversy. As a consequence rates are demoralized, and there is a gloom in railroad circles. But this state of things cannot last always, and after the general election is over, when the corn crop begins to move, there will undoubtedly be a better feeling in the stock market.

The local contest is all in doubt, for as yet the bosses, with the exception of John Kelly, have not shown their hand. Levi M. Bates is talked of as the Republican candidate for Mayor, and Robert B. Roosevelt was on the slate for the County Democracy, but at last accounts his name had been dropped. It is of vital importance that New York should have a first-class Mayor for the next three years. It wants another Seth Low. He should be an energetic business man, with a unimpeached character and free from strong party bias. Tammany has done well, and its action should be emulated by the County Democracy and the Republicans.

Matters look somewhat brighter in the real estate market. The strikes of the masons and bricklayers are at an end and the men have learned a lesson which they will not forget for a year at least. Were the political uncertainty removed dealers would speak more confidently of the future. The sales last week both public and private brought rather low prices but then there is a better feeling in the renting market. One very hopeful symptom is the excellent prices bid for lots of the Fox estate in the annexed district on the line of the Suburban Road. The market has been a dull one, though strong so far, but there are those who think it may become active after the general election is over in November.

The large wheat movement has been a surprise to the business world. The farmers, contrary to the general belief, have sold their grain very freely. Not since 1879 has there been so heavy a crop movement so far as the small grains are concerned. Corn receipts show a heavy falling off and for the obvious reason that the farmers have none to sell of last year's short crop. But it is a curious fact that while receipts at what are known as the primary markets in the West show that the farmers have been free sellers, the shipments to the seaboard are far less than in former years. The new wheat is in fact in the hands of the speculators and is stored in the elevators awaiting higher prices. These investors in grain may yet be forced to sell at low figures in the absence of any foreign demand, but the farmers have their money already secured.

The fact that the farmers have sold their wheat so freely, notwithstanding the low prices obtained, is an assurance that when the new corn is marketable it will also be sold. Farmers want means with which to buy goods, and hence we may expect that by December the railroads will have all that they can do in hauling corn to the points of distribution and consumption. Wall street as usual will probably discount this state of things in November. As our imports are light, while wheat, corn, cotton and petroleum are being shipped freely, we may expect exchange to fall so low that gold will begin to come to our shores in considerable quantities. The outlook for the coming winter and spring therefore is very good, but the troubles in the general trade of the country are not yet over.

Our national bank note currency is rapidly being withdrawn, the circulation is now down to $295,787,472, of which $142,949,090 is secured by deposits of 3 per cent. bonds, which are rapidly being paid off. Hence our bank note circulation is disappearing, but with all this there is no contraction, for the gold notes and silver certificates are being issued in greater quantities than the bank notes are withdrawn. There are now $188,000,000 of gold and silver notes in circulation, and should the whole of the $295,000,000 bank notes be surrendered the Treasury Department will pay out ten-dollar silver notes and twenty-dollar gold notes for a corresponding amount. It is one of the possibilities of the future that long before the close of this century the national bank notes will have disappeared and their place be taken by gold and silver notes of high denominations, the government greenbacks supplying the retail demands of commerce for bills under ten dollars. It would be wise if Congress should prohibit the issue of any bill under five dollars, so that the retail money of the country would be exclusively gold and silver, as is the case in England, France, Germany and other leading commercial nations.

The Cause of the Depression.

The business publications which reach us from all parts of the world are filled with complaints respecting the depression in all the industries of mankind. There is so much wheat and other food products that their price is unremunerative to the farmer. Cotton goods are in such abundance that the mills are stopping both in Europe and America. Wool is so low that sheep growers are discouraged and are giving up the business, while woolen manufactured goods are produced at a loss. Iron, the key to the industrial situation, is selling in all the markets of the world for less than cost. The coal industry is also unprofitable. It has been found, too, that there has been an overproduction in iron steamships. One-third of the steam tonnage of the world is unemployed. Depression reigns in every house in Europe as well as on every exchange in America.

The cause universally assigned is overproduction, and hence the remedy suggested in every quarter is a stoppage of work and non-employment of all the agencies of production until consumption "catches on" to the former. Yet we have ventured to question the wisdom of this view. We say that the difficulty is underconsumption, not overproduction; that millions of people on this globe have too little food and tens of millions an inadequate supply of clothing; that were all the wants of mankind, natural and acquired, fully supplied, every bushel of grain would be in eager demand at advancing prices, and all the productive machinery in the world would be inadequate to furnish the clothing which would be called for by those who now must stint themselves for lack of money.

We have argued that what the commercial nations need is more real money. In every epoch of the world's history in which there was an abundance or a superabundance of the precious metals in general circulation prices rose and all classes of workers and traders were prosperous. This was the condition of the world under the early Roman emperors. The great revival of trade during the Elizabethan era was traceable directly to the countless millions of silver money which was poured out of the Central and South American mines after the Spanish conquest. The next upheaval in prices and great prosperity was due to the gold discoveries in 1849 in California, Australia and other precious metal bearing regions. On the other hand the poverty of the Middle Ages was due to the disappearance of the precious metals because of the religious prejudice against the mining of gold and silver. Of late years the gold and silver mines, especially the former, have lessened their product at a time when there was a prodigious development of industry requiring more money in which to transact the business of mankind. In addition to this natural scarcity of the precious metals an artificial famine was produced by the attempt of the leading commercial nations to make gold the sole unit of value, dispensing with silver, thus reducing the precious metal fund one-half. This theory will account for the phenomena of the distress in trade and declining prices the world over.

But the Northwestern (Chicago) Lumberman considers this view "a mere abstraction." It adheres to the general belief that "the boom of 1880-81 overdid production, and for a time glutted the markets." It calls attention to the fact that money is abundant at all the commercial centres, that it is a glut in the market. "Why more money?" it is asked, "when we have too much already." A little reflection, however, will show our Chicago contemporary that the accumulation of money in the chief cities is due to the dullness in trade, and the natural reluctance to produce goods on a falling market. The manufacturer does not care to keep his mills going to bring into existence fabrics which will be cheaper two months hence than they are to-day. This has been the experience of the last three years, and hence capital prefers to do nothing rather than produce at a loss. In time these accumulations will act as new money and will force prices up, and then we will have better times; but the merest tyro in finance knows that every absolute addition to currency, whether in the form of gold, silver or paper, stimulates prices and gives an advancing instead of a declining market. Voltaire, the French writer, was asked how he, a literary man, made so much money in buying and selling. "I have a friend" he replied, "who is a director in the Bank of France. He tells me when that institution is about to emit more currency, then I buy because I know prices will go up. When the notes of the bank are to be redeemed, I sell, because then I know that prices will go down."

And this is the secret of business the world over. When people have plenty of money they buy and business is good, when they have little money they cannot buy and business is bad. Periods of inflation, even the unnatural inflation produced by paper money, makes general business active, but the falling off in our gold and silver production from the mines and the gold unit of value tells the story of the distress throughout the world.

Rufus Hatch on Real Estate.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

I notice in your issue of September 20th a criticism upon a remark of mine in reference to real estate. I expressed the opinion that it would decline in value, giving as one reason that with government bonds netting less than 3 per cent. investors could not expect to continue to realize 6 per cent. from real estate, which is considered as ranking next in safety to government bonds as an investment. My opinion may have been clumsily expressed, but I was referring more particularly to New York property than to the country at large. "Farms which pay a good interest on growing crops" will not decline. On the other hand agricultural land ought to advance. The over-crowded city population of the East must realize sooner or later that a heavy percentage of it should quit striving to earn a living in the departments of commerce and manufacture which are already over-done, and go to producing something from the soil. This country is suffering from over production in almost every department of manufacture.

At the same time we own a great deal of land within our borders. For instance, the territory of Dakota has an area almost equal to New England New York and Pennsylvania combined. Of its 95,500,000 acres only 2,000,000 are under cultivation. This state of affairs, in varying proportions, is true of all the territory west of the lakes and the Missis-ippi River. Notwithstanding I agree with you concerning the assured value of farm lands, I take exception to the style of property you class with it, namely, "city property on the line of improvement." There are acres of land on the upper part of Manhattan Island that to-day will not bring by private sale or in open market an amount equal to the taxes and assessments on them for the last fifteen years. There are acres of land in New Jersey anywhere within a radius of forty minutes from New York "on the line of improvement" which would not bring the accrued taxes for the last fifteen years. This statement is equally true of Long Island and Brooklyn property in the outlying districts. Residence property became a speculative mania a few years ago, and this mania has now taken the form of ten and twelve-story apartment houses in up-town New York. I think that if you would take the trouble to procure a list of the apartment houses built in the last ten years, with their valuation and rent rates, how many flats there are to rent and how many are already occupied, that it would be conclusively proved that the landlords were "flats" for investing their money so freely in fashionable tenement property.

The rapid and uninterrupted communication with the business centre of New York that will come with the completion of the elevated road in Brooklyn, and the already completed bridge, will render available any quantity of pretty, cheap homes in that city. The completion of the rapid transit on Staten Island, and the fifteen-minute ferry project aimed at by Mr. Wiman & Co. will develop the residence possibilities of that tract of territory. This of course will have the tendency of evening up, or rather evening down, the values of New York property. Rents must decrease, because every form of labor and material has fallen in price. Houses can be duplicated for less cost than it took to build them five, six and eight years ago. Certain localities may improve in value. Certain other localities which were built up in expensive times, and which stand in to the purchaser at their highest value, will see a decline. Murray Hill property will not sell to-day for what it would bring fifteen years ago.

All the foregoing refers to residence property. Now a word about office buildings. There have been three thousand new offices provided south of Chambers street in the last two years. Of all the great buildings erected for business offices, I think only the Produce Exchange is fully occupied and a paying investment. A false value was attached to down-town property from the fact that a few buildings in the vicinity of the Stock Exchange rented for fabulous amounts. I have had some experience as an office tenant. In 1865 I paid for the first floor of No. 17 Broad street $8,500 per year, and contracted for a five years' lease at the same figure. When that term expired I renewed the lease for two years at $7,500. At the end of the second term, the building having passed into the hands of an insurance company, I got the same offices for $4,500. The building was a tumble-down old edifice, having cost in the first place only $16,000; yet while I was in it I paid the owner $71,000 for rent. Subsequently the same offices rented for $1,200. I have heard it asserted that the Johnson building, corner of Broad street and Exchange place, pays for itself in rent every three years. This extortion has brought its own reward, for the inducement was so tempting that everybody went to building huge office structures, until there are new offices enough to supply the demand for ten years to come.

Much more could be added, but it is unnecessary.

Respectfully, RUFUS HATCH.

REMARKS ON THE ABOVE.

What Mr. Rufus Hatch says about the over-building of apartment houses and great office structures is not new to the readers of THE RECORD AND GUIDE. It is quite true that investments in these great buildings up and down-town will probably not prove as profitable as the capitalists interested anticipated when they were first projected. But Mr. Hatch, we fear, has not studied the real estate problem in all its aspects as closely as he has financial and railroad questions. He seems to think that bridges, tunnels, railways and rapid communication of all kinds will "even down" real estate values in large cities like New York so as to make them correspond with the cheaper suburban property. But does our correspondent's own experience confirm this view? This opening of new and swift channels of communication between city and country has been going on in Europe and America for half a century, with the effect of steadily adding to and not taking from the price of choice city real estate. When Mr. Hatch came from Chicago to New York our ferry system was poor; the railroad lines leading to the metropolis made no attempt to foster nearby localities by cheap and frequent trains; there was no "L" road system, no Brooklyn Bridge, nor had our city horse-car railway system begun to be developed. Yet business and residence property in New York must have more than doubled in that time, because of these various improvements in travel which should apparently have cheapened realty and lowered rents.

When we said that city property would hold its own or would advance "on the lines of immediate improvement," we used that phrase in the way it is generally understood by real estate experts, and not in the sense in which Mr. Hatch understood it. Vacant lots in the line of improvement are those which are pretty certain to be built over in a few years' time. There are many parts of New York and of the surrounding country to which this remark will not apply. It is true, for instance, of lots west or north of the Central Park, but vacant property on Washington Heights on this island and in most of the suburban towns near the city are not in the "line of improvement." It has been said that during the last great real estate speculation, extending from 1867 to 1872 that were all the towns and settlements near New York to have fulfilled the expectations of sanguine suburban property holders, it would have required a population equal to that of the whole United States.

There is still another point in which our correspondent seems to be at fault. He thinks that the over-crowded city population of the East will be forced in time out of manufacturing and commercial pursuits and must take to the soil to raise agricultural products and so better their condition; but the experience of the modern world is quite the other way. The tendency is to build up towns at the expense of the rural population. The prodigious growth of cities is one of the most marked phenomena of the movements of population in all modern civilized nations. There is not any, not the slightest, reason to believe that this tendency will be reversed and that our urban population will betake themselves to agricultural pursuits, and for the very good reason that farming is the least remuneratite business which the average workingman can follow. It is land and labor which bears all the burdens, and receives fewest of the benefits of our modern systems of government. A community exclusively devoted to agriculture, or in other words a nation of peasants, is always miserably poor. That fact is not realized in this country, because of the cheapness of land and its rapid enhancement in value as population increases and railroad communication is secured. It is land speculation which pays in the United States, not the raising of crops. The extent of our soil is a fixed and limited quantity, while the augmentation of our population and wealth is apparently without limit. Hence the value of real estate investments, more particularly in large cities, the growth of which is so rapid, due to the perfecting of our railway system.

Mr. Hatch also seems to think that as governments yield only 3 per cent. real estate cannot be expected to yield 6 or 7 per cent. But is not this an argument for a rise in real estate values? True, suites of rooms and offices are not as rentable as they were, but there is an eager demand for houses of moderate rentals, while store and business property in this city is regarded as gilt-edged—as the very choicest kind of investment. Whenever capitalists are satisfied with a 3 per cent. return on choice property, they will advance the price of the latter and not reduce the rent.

Our correspondent is of opinion that there has been an over-production of manufactures, and that therefore people ought to go to the soil for a living; but the farmers say that there has been an over-production of cotton, the small grains and many other articles which they grow. Yet the distressing fact remains that notwithstanding the unprecedented cheapness of food and clothing, the world is filled with people who cannot afford to buy what they need. The grains, roots and the cotton and woolen fabrics are cheaper to-day than they have been any time since the application of steam and machinery to the making of goods necessary to mankind. The real trouble is not the over-production of either food or clothing, but the under-production of real money. There is a steady contraction in prices due to the demonetization of silver and the increasing value of the gold unit. There is not money enough to go around. That is a fact which Mr. Hatch's own experience will substantiate.

The Lawrence Building.

The Lawrence building, at West Broadway and Leonard street is an interesting and upon the whole a successful specimen of commercial architecture. The architect is Mr. Clark, of Boston.

As with most elevator buildings the area is disproportionate to the height. The frontage on West Broadway is 50 feet and on Leonard street only 25, while the building is of seven stories. Most designers would have attempted to bring such a building down and broaden it by multiplying and emphasizing the horizontal lines. Here, however, the main stress is put upon the vertical lines. There is a vertical division, the first and seventh stories being treated separately and the second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth grouped, but the features of the composition are the piers and openings which run through these four stories, and in the centre of the long side through the basement also, the piers being connected above the sixth story by round arches, a pair on the short side and three grouped at the centre of the long side, and the central group flanked by very massive piers, each pierced by one narrow opening in the centre, running through the five stories.

The basement has round arched openings corresponding on the shorter front to the long openings above, and in the wider placed one in the centre of each of the terminal piers. Between these the openings in each story are covered with flat arches, composed of slabs of terra cotta. The seventh story is a continuous arcade of round arched openings, entirely without modelling and spaced without reference to the disposition of the openings below so as to constitute a strong horizontal feature. The distinction between the central division and the basement is not so marked. The material of the basement is the same as that of the superstructure, a wall of yellow brick with moulded work and ornaments of terra cotta of the same tint; nor is there any attempt at a more massive treatment below. The separation from the stories above is marked only by a string course of slight projection and with very minute and delicate detail. It does not constitute an effectual demarcation.

From the foregoing description the building must seem like a stilted and weak-looking structure. That is by no means, however, the effect which it produces. Certainly we think that a more vigorous and a more distinctive treatment of the basement would have been a gain and would have brought out more strongly the predominance of the central division. The delicacy of the detail is appropriate to the material and to its nearness to the eye, but this delicacy might be preserved and the member made more emphatic by the substitution of several enriched members for one rather lean string course. This has been successfully done above in the band which marks the springing of the large arches. The arcade in the upper story might also have been enriched with advantage, at least to the extent of a moulding at the arris. As it is, it is too bald in effect for its position as the crowning feature of a building which, although plain in general effect, bears a considerable amount of ornament.

The ornament is applied to the springing course of the basement and the string above it, the band at the spring of the large arches, the cornice under and that above the upper story. These two are too nearly equal in value, and the uppermost, as the main cornice of the building, would have been better for more projection as well as a greater height. The shallowness of the projecting members throughout is a recognition of the properties of terra cotta, which it is refreshing to observe after the huge imitations of stone work in such work as the cornices of the Produce Exchange and of the Cotton Exchange. There is, however, a happy medium, and it would have been possible to design projecting members even more characteristic of terra cotta than those employed here, which should also give a much more vigorous expression of function.

Thus far the ornament of which we have been speaking is a development of the structure. There is no ornament which contradicts the structure, but of ornament not directly connected with it the most important is the filling with reliefs in terra cotta of the spandrils of the main arches. The panels between the stories in the narrower openings on the flanks of the principal front are also filled with reliefs. This ornament is in the spirit of the Italian Renaissance, the structural ornament being also classic in treatment, and it is scholarly and discreet, well placed and well designed. The scale seems to us minute, but it is so uniform as to induce the belief that the effect is what the architect meant and worked for. Of what Mr. Ferguson calls "phonetic" ornament are the shields at the angle of the basement carrying the street signs, and some streamers in terra cotta at the sixth story bearing the name of the building, though these latter strike us as much more phonetic than ornamental.

The drawbacks of the design thus appear to be that of the three vertical divisions of the building the lowest is not sharply enough separated from the other two nor sufficiently distinguished from them in treatment, and that the uppermost lacks elegance in its relation to the general treatment. The building is nevertheless successful in general composition, by reason of its clear division into a beginning, a middle and an end, and of the predominance of one of these divisions over the others, and by reason also of the appropriateness and grace of its detail. The architect has had the unusual good fortune, in a commercial building, of securing an ample pier at the principal angle of his building and the unusual good judgment to refrain from disturbing its massiveness. The narrow opening which runs through the pier instead of diminishing enhances its solidity by making visible the thickness of the wall, which the treatment of the openings throughout tends to confirm. We have reason to be grateful to Mr. Clark for a very satisfactory piece of work.

Our Prophetic Department.

POLITICIAN—Well, Sir Oracle, you see that I was right. I told you that the Republican party would carry the Ohio election and that Mr. Blaine would be the next President of the United States; but you were rather doubtful.

SIR ORACLE—I was, and am not quite sure now. The decrease of the Democratic vote in West Virginia is significant; and if the Democrats in the doubtful States should accept Butler's fusion scheme the election might yet be thrown into the House of Representatives, which of course would choose Cleveland. You must have noticed that Butler made no speeches in Ohio during the State canvass, and I hear that his followers were induced to vote the Republican ticket, so as to force the Democrats in the November election to coalesce in the electoral colleges with the so-called People's party. Butler will do anything to obtain a few votes in the electoral college. Failing in that his next ambition will be to defeat Cleveland, so that the Democratic party will feel his power. Still, it must be confessed that the chances seem to be in favor of Blaine. The moral effect of the Ohio October contest always favors the party which carries it in the general election which follows.

POLITICIAN—How about the Prohibition vote?

SIR O.—If it can be fully brought out it will, I think, amount to some 800,000 votes. Butler has made a more noisy canvass than St. John, but he will, I think, poll fewer votes. His canvass, however, will hurt Cleveland more than the vote of St. John will hurt Blaine, for his strength will be in doubtful but important States like New York, Connecticut and New Jersey. There will be some curious voting in November. Kings County by all accounts will give the largest Democratic vote that has ever been cast for a Democratic candidate; but I think that Blaine will poll more votes in New York County than did Garfield, although the press of New York, with the exception of the Tribune, has been unanimous for Cleveland. If Blaine is chosen it will have important results in future national conventions. Politicians will hereafter realize that their ablest party leaders are, after all, those who will poll the most votes. There would be no doubt of the election of a Democratic candidate had he been a man of mark like Allen G. Thurman.

POLITICIAN—What is to be said about local politics?

SIR O.—I see that the County Democracy thinks of nominating Robert B. Roosevelt. This would be another concession to real estate interests. Mr. Roosevelt is an able man, a good fellow and a very large owner of real property in New York city. If elected he will, of course, renominate Hubert O. Thompson for Commissioner of Public Works. Mr. Roosevelt does not pretend to be a reformer like his nephew, Theodore Roosevelt, but if clothed with the responsibilities of office I have no doubt that he will try to win for himself a good name. He is thoroughly conversant with local politics and the needs of the city. But I see that at last accounts his name was off the slate.

POLITICIAN—To "return to our muttons," what do you think of Blaine, anyway? Will he make a good President?

SIR O.—I have always regarded him as a very dangerous statesman. He is a man full of courage and willing to take desperate chances in politics as in business. If elected he will make the nation respected abroad. He will try to revive our commerce and stimulate our manufacturing industries. Our foreign policy will be pronounced, perhaps perilous. He is the very opposite of the timid and ultra-conservative men who have heretofore been the most popular candidates for the presidency. I confess to having a somewhat better opinion of him since reading his "History of Twenty Years in Congress." As a party leader he certainly seemed one-sided and unfair to his opponents, but as an historian he is singularly candid and just to the enemies of his party. He actually eulogizes the Democratic party for annexing Texas. He defends the motives of Chief Justice Taney in the Dred Scott decision. He thinks that events justified Daniel Webster's famous and much abused 7th of March speech as well as Stephen A. Douglass' "Squatter Sovereignty" dogma. All this is remarkable coming from a statesman who won his spurs and achieved his fame as a partisan anti-slavery Republican.

POLITICIAN—What other moral will be drawn from the coming November contest?

SIR O.—That free trade for the United States is a dream, and that revenue reform, that is, lower and more liberal duties, is postponed perhaps for a generation. Protection of home industry is hereafter the policy of this country. I have been inclined to believe in a more liberal tariff myself, but the American people have decided for protection, and the next Congress may see an increase of duties imposed on many articles. Mr. Blaine will favor liberal government expenditures if elected, and besides he will do all he can to establish bi-metallism throughout the world. But——

POLITICIAN—But what?

SIR O.—Perhaps he may be chosen to stay at home after all.

The pension payments during the past three months amount to fully $24,000,000. For the past five years the war pensions have cost the country $290,000,000. This is a monstrous sum to be paying twenty years after the closing of the war, the majority of the participants in which are in their graves. What wonders might have been accomplished within the past five years with this vast sum of money. It would have given us a navy and the great guns we so sorely need for defending our sea coasts. It would have improved our water ways and harbor, and subsidized steamship lines to all parts of the world. The encouragement thus given to the war interests would have saved the country from much of the distress it is now experiencing. Of course this vast expenditure has not been entirely wasted. Conceding that one-third of it is a pure steal the bulk of it after all is distributed among very poor people and alleviates the pressure of hard times, but it is marvelous that a nation which can be roused to a state of extreme excitement over an expenditure of $20,000,000 per annum for needed river and harbor improvements should view with the most stolid indifference the distribution from the public treasury of ten times that sum among lobby agents, lawyers and claimants, the bulk of whom are frauds. A bill has already passed the Senate increasing this extravagant pension list by $25,000,000 per annum and it will in all probability go through the House during the coming winter, yet our wise newspaper press will say nothing about it but will reserve their thunders for the annual river and harbor bill, in which not more than one-tenth of the money required will be appropriated for urgent improvements.

Judge Pratt's decision in reference to the "L" roads taxes is equitable and ought to be endorsed by the Court of Appeals. He decides that a personal tax cannot be exacted, that the valuation must be on the actual cost of the structure without reference to its stock valuation. Other cities will need similar improvements, and it will not do to establish a precedent which would prevent capitalists from putting their money into such useful ventures. The "L" roads have been an unmixed benefit to New York city and its real estate interests, and no tax should be laid which is not just in itself.

The Brooklyn "L" road will be completed early in 1885. It will not meet all the requirements of our sister city, as it does not accommodate the region towards Prospect Park and Coney Island, but it will help the traffic and business of the settled portions of Brooklyn, the Eastern District and the sparsely populated region toward the south. Eventually connecting branches will have to be built, and the whole system worked in co-operation with the Long Island Railroad. The Brooklyn "L" Company controls the approach to the bridge, and passengers who ride on cars from any part of Long Island must make use of it to get into New York.

We are to vote this coming election upon a proposition to limit city and local debts hereafter in this State to 10 per cent. of the assessed valuation of the real estate, while taxes must not exceed 2 per cent. But what is very curious, this vital matter has been entirely overlooked by the press of the city and State. There is not one in a thousand of the voters who know anything about it. Some public body ought to act in this matter.

The Philadelphia Telegraph says: Some New York capitalists propose to invest $2,000,000 in a building which will include a theatre, concert rooms, restaurants, music halls, dancing pavilions and roof-garden and restaurant; and within the structure there will be every appliance of a fashionable and thoroughly equipped club house.

Home Decorative Notes.

—The low and deep Turkish designs are much admired for odd pieces of drawing-room furniture.

—A ladies shade hat may be very easily converted into a dainty work-basket by first covering the outside with liquid bronze which is prepared specially for the purpose of coloring straw or rattan, the inside may be also colored or lined with orange Surah silk, then catch the two sides together and decorate with a large bow of orange-colored satin ribbon.

—A glass carafe at each place is a desirable substitute for a water pitcher on the dining table; when used the glasses should be partially filled with cracked ice.

—It is quite impossible to keep fire bricks perfectly free from an accumulation of clinkers; the following simple method, however, may be very easily employed with good success: First allow the fire to go out, and, when still hot, throw into the fire-box two or three quarts of oyster shells, or a less quantity of salt, then cleave off the clinkers.

—Tiny glass hats of various colors are novel for match receivers.

—Richly chased shades of brass are largely used on lamps.

—A screen is always a graceful object in a room, "they quiet the glare of blazing lights, subdue harsh angles, shut out unsightly views, and placed here and there about a room serve to give a charming variety;" one recently noticed and worthy of mention consists of two panels of maroon velvet decorated with branches of the orange tree painted in oil colors, these panels are mounted in a richly carved mahogany frame, across the frame, about twelve inches from the bottom, is placed a brass rod and rings fromwhich is suspended a China silk curtain, crushed strawberry in color.

—Marks on tables caused by bearing hot plates will disappear under the influence of lamp oil rubbed in with a soft cloth and finished with a little spirit of wine.

—Whilst brass has been at all times employed for artistic purposes, it is also subject to the decree of fashion, and other metals are now forcing it for awhile in the background; very elegant specimens of hammered copper, oxidized silver and steel are shown in immense variety, vases, library sets, clocks, etc., magnificent hall lanterns in combinations of brass, iron and colored glass, thoroughly artistic in designs, are offered by C. Wright Kirby, 909 Broadway. A unique sconce was noticed, oblong in shape, that consisted of a mirror framed in bronze, the head of an African child, also of bronze, is so adjusted that at a distance the child appeared to be looking out of a window, with its hands extended in which are movable brackets arranged to hold the candles.

—Illuminated plush is exceedingly rich and elegant, and as a covering for odd chairs and confidantes it is particularly attractive.

—Wood may acquire an oak, walnut or cherry tree color by staining it with ordinary tincture of iodine, diluted with spirit until the exact shade is obtained, white shellac must be added to the iodine solution, if the stain is to be made permanent, the iodine may be laid on with a brush.

—Two ounces of soda dissolved in a quart of hot water will make a useful solution for cleaning old paint preparatory to repainting; the mixture should be applied when warm, and the woodwork afterward washed with clear water in order to remove all traces of the soda.

—The low square mahogany-stained or silver-bronzed rattan chairs may be rendered much more attractive and comfortable by having cushions in them; almost any handsome material will answer for the covering—plush, however, is the most striking and beautiful. The shoulder cushions should be attached to the chair by means of large bows of satin ribbon, either contrasting or harmonizing in color with the material employed.

—The latest fancy in hall and library fire-places is to have the facing and mantelshelf of art tiles, the back and sides of the fire-place of bronze, and the andirons of brass in fantastic forms.

—The Bellagis blankets in very rich colorings and silken texture are now offered by Altman & Co., of Nineteenth street and Sixth avenue; as hangings for a single door these blankets may be used with good effect.

—Cut glass salad bowls, with the spoon handles of cut crystal, are extremely elegant.

—A very delicate bureau cover is of very light blue plush embroidered with branches of apple blossoms; the edge is finished with soft lace; the accompanying cushion is also of plush, and embroidered also with a spray of blossoms.

—Home made rugs, which are excellent imitations of Smyrna and other Oriental rugs, are being rapidly introduced by many of the leading dealers in embroideries; there is an infinite variety of patterns and extremely pretty effects are so quickly and easily secured that the work becomes extremely fascinating; full instructions in regard to knitting these rugs, with a full supply of materials with designs partially commenced, may be obtained of Mrs. T. G. Farnham, No. 110 West Fourteenth street.

—Embroidered bedspreads and round bolsters are quite indispensable in an artistic chamber; many of these spreads are very elegant and expensive both in material and decoration. Tussah silk and Bolting cloth are the fabrics most used; if a thin fabric is preferred, pineapple gauze is the most desirable; the latter material may be lined with silk of any color, in accord with the decorations of the room. The morning-glory design is peculiarly attractive and graceful for this style of spread; the leaves and flowers should be delicately outlined and the intervening spaces irregularly darned with the various shades of pink and green silks; gold lace forms a beautiful finish for the edge of the spread. The whole effect, when completed, is perfectly charming. Many novel and attractive designs for embroidery are displayed by Graff & Burnham, No. 46 West Twenty-third street.

Concerning Men and Things.

"Baltimore & Ohio Railway stock sold for 20¼ recently," said a well-known Wall street man to the writer; "but I expect to see it quoted at 100 in less than a year, all because of Robert Garrett's pugnacity. It is a good thing to be a fighter when you have a point to make in the beginning of your career, but the controller of a vast property like the 'Baltimore & Ohio' should not have his shillelagh always in hand to crack the skulls of every one he meets. Just look what a job young Garrett is undertaking. He is running a new telegraph line to antagonize the Western Union. This of itself is a gigantic undertaking, because telegraphing is an enormous retail business, and to fight the Western Union will necessitate the spending of a great deal of money; but young Garrett is also fighting George M. Pullman in the sleeping car business. Then he has a contest on hand with the 'Adams Express Company,' and is running an express of his own. Wm. H. Vanderbilt has learned to dislike young Garrett, and the latter's patronage of the West Shore road will make the bad feeling far more active. Mr. King, the new president of Erie, is the personal enemy of Garrett, and he will injure the Baltimore & Ohio road in every way that is possible. The fight with the Pennsylvania road is a very awkward matter. The great bridge the Baltimore & Ohio is building to get into Philadelphia will not be finished for two years, and the right of way through Philadelphia will cost enormously. It will take four years at least before the Baltimore & Ohio can get to New York. With all the trunk lines and the ablest railroad men in the country against him young Garrett is bound to come off second best, and the contest will reduce the value of Baltimore & Ohio stock."

The Wall Street Daily News criticizes the course of the Financial Chronicle. It says: "Its guiding principle seems to be to say always something favorable, and where it cannot be said to say nothing. It is like a guide who is always assuring the traveler that the road is perfectly smooth and solid; and when the misguided one has fallen into deep swamps and holes, assures him that it will be all right in time if he will only hold on." This characterization of the course of the Financial Chronicle is entirely just, but the News itself is open to a still more severe criticism. It does not pretend to be just or impartial, but is an active advocate of the bear side of the market. Its writers, like the gentlemen who contributed to Bradstreet and the Sunday Times, are always anxious to make out a case against the market. The Stockholder tries very hard to hold the balance even and to anticipate the fluctuations of the stocks dealt in. It is, therefore, a much better guide as to the ups and downs of the market; but it gets too many points from Jay Gould sources, and some day it will be used to fool the street. "Rigolo," of the Sun, since the failure of James R. Keene, has also gone over to the Gould camp, and does what he can to help the specialties of the owner of Missouri Pacific.

It is strange how papers will make the mistake of being partisan. The average citizen generally makes up his mind which way he will vote, and he resents being lectured into supporting this or that candidate. The Post, Tribune, Herald and World treat their readers as if they were uninstructed tyros in politics. Of course heated partisans crave facts and figures which substantiate their position, but the average reader resents the assumption by the editors that he does not know for whom to vote. A good many papers have lost circulation this year in trying to bully their readers into voting for candidates they did not affect.

"Nita's First" is an amusing trifle, but it is surely beneath the dignity of Wallack's beautiful theatre to produce anything so trivial. There seems to be an impression among managers that pending an election excitement theatre goers are satisfied with any amusing rubbish, and do not care for solid dramatic pabulum. Mr. Daly's "Wooden Spoon" is also a rather trivial work. All the theatres just at present are given over to puerilities.

At the sale of the Fox estate camp stools were provided, and proved a great convenience to aged and feeble persons who wished to bid on lots. The managers of the new Real Estate Exchange will make a great mistake if they do not provide seating accommodations at sales which are likely to continue for more than half an hour. The press, lawyers and referees, as well as all ladies, should be furnished with seats at all the sales. Indeed, at the very large and important sales the auctioneer should be the only person standing up.

The nomination of Hugh J. Grant for Mayor is very popular in real estate circles. Mr. Grant is a large owner of real estate, and was himself at one time a dealer. One of his very warm friends is Mr. John F. B. Smyth, who is devoting a great deal of his time to advancing Mr. Grant's interests.

The United States Supreme Court for this district, Judge Wheeler, decided last summer, in the suit of Smith vs. Baker, that where a man takes his children, when they had the whooping cough, to a boarding house, and the landlady's children take the disease, and boarders are kept away from the house by the presence of the disease, she may recover from him all the damages caused; the expense and care and labor in consequence of her children having it, and the profits lost by the boarders being kept away.

In his opinion in the suit of Callanan vs. Kemp and Gilman, in deciding that the use of the sidewalk by the defendants to unload and ship their goods from three to five hours every day is a public nuisance, of special injury to the plaintiff, Judge Truax of the Superior Court holds that the reason is that the public are entitled to an unobstructed passage upon the streets and sidewalks of the city; that the obstruction caused by the defendants is unauthorized, and that the Board of Aldermen cannot authorize a public nuisance; saying that "no doubt the skids used by the defendants are a convenience to him, but extending from a wagon at the curb across the sidewalk, they are a great inconvenience to the public and the plaintiffs."

More About Cement.

LOW PRICES FOR DOMESTICS—CUTTING AND SMALL PROFITS—STIFFER FIGURES FOR FOREIGN OWING TO HIGH FREIGHTS—GREAT PROSPECT FOR CEMENTS IN AMERICA.

"Business has been unusually good with us this year despite the generally bad trade," said Jerome A. King, manager to James Brand. "This has been due to the fact that people are beginning to recognize the practical value of Portland cements. We have not been able to bring forward the cement this season that we could have sold. Freights were against us from London, and we were also unable to obtain shipments from Germany. English freights have been higher, owing to the combination of London steamship owners. The price was formerly 5 shillings per ton, it was subsequently raised to 7s. 6d., and this season was increased to 10s., which is equivalent to 45 cents per barrel. Sail freights are lower now, but it is too late in the season to take advantage of them as the bulk of trade is to the interior, which will soon be closed up to us owing to the approaching stoppage of navigation. At present there is very little on store of the best Portland brands, and there seems to be a demand for all that can be brought here. Our prices have been higher than last year by about 10 cents per barrel on an average. Our profits have, however, been less, as the advance has not been commensurate with the increase in freights. I think the prospects for sales in the immediate future are fair, and that local trade will be satisfactory. Business in the West is in good condition. The volume of trade depends upon the cost of freight. If the latter is low, a large demand follows, and if high, orders decrease. Our present prices are $2.50 to $2.90 for German, and $2.70 to $2.90 for English brands."

"While business in the building trade has been generally dull," said Mr. A. C. Babson, of Sinclair & Babson, "our trade has been larger, and we have imported more cement this year than last. People are evidently beginning to discriminate between the different brands and are getting better posted. They are continually making tests, and are more particular about getting brands of known worth instead of those sold indiscriminately. Portland cement cannot be said to be a criterion as to the general volume of trade. The demand is spasmodic, and often takes a sudden spurt, such as when an immense quantity is required for new buildings, bridges and other structures. We had 11,000 barrels in port last week undischarged, of which we now have less than 2,000 unsold. Shipments from London have been hard to obtain, owing to the scarcity of vessels, but it is easier to get cement through Bremen. Freights from Germany were formerly cheaper than from London, but are now about the same, owing to the scarcity of vessels due to the large shipments of kainit from that country to the United States. Our prices have been about 20 cents per barrel higher than last year, but they should have been more, owing to the larger cost of freight proportionately. Our present figure for German (Alsen's) is $2 25, and for English brands $2.75 to $2.85. There is very little South American trade done, the bulk of which goes direct from Europe. We do very little in the South, and there is scarcely anything done in the West from December to March, owing to the closing of the canals. There is an immense field for Portland cement out West. I do not think our prices will be lower than they are at present, but that will depend on freights. If there should be a large grain export from the United States to Europe, there will be an abundance of vessels to bring back cement to us, and low freights will rule as a consequence."

"Our sales have been about as large as last year," said Hiram Snyder, of the New York and Rosendale Cement Company. "In 1883 we sold 176,316 barrels, and we expect to sell about the same number by the end of the current year. Our mill is turning out more cement now than at the same time last year. We have a capacity of 1,300 barrels a day, but our average turn out lately has been about 800 barrels. Our sales last week were 4,822. In September, 1883, they were 18,872, and in the same month this year they aggregated 19,604 barrels. Still there is room for improvement in business. Our prices at the beginning of the season were higher than they are at present. In March and April they ranged from $1.20 down to $1.10, while our present figure is $1 for immediate delivery. We would not take any orders at that price for future delivery, as the margin of profit is too small. We usually stop production for the season about November 25th, but we have manufactured as late as December 15th. In the winter, of course, we have to charge the extra cost of carriage by rail. We do not find that consumers are taking much advantage of the present low figures by placing large orders. Indeed, I question whether manufacturers would be willing to contract for large orders ahead at present low prices. I think a number of domestic manufacturers are selling below cost. I don't see how they can produce at their current figures, and I candidly believe they are losing on their orders, when their expenses, cost of material, labor, plant, and so forth are taken into consideration. The policy of cutting down to starvation figures is suicidal. The object was, of course, to beat competitors, but I have yet to learn whether greater profits have been made, notwithstanding increased orders. A determined effort to amalgamate was made last year between the fifteen domestic manufacturers, when it was hoped by regulating the supply to keep prices at a reasonable figure, not more than $1.25 per barrel at the highest, but owing to the refusal of one or two firms the scheme fell through. We now have 10,000 barrels on hand, and our present price is 90 cents per barrel. I think the prospects favorable. This year has been exceptional in there being no public improvements, but next year things will be better."

"We have sold fully as much cement as last year if not more," said Frank E. Morse, representing J. R. Brown. "Our only exception was the month of August. In 1883 we sold 125,000 barrels and our sales will probably exceed that figure this year. As to prices, we are now selling at 90 cents here and 95 cents outside for small out of town orders. Our prices are lower than they were at the beginning of the year, having decreased from $1.10. We made a few sales at $85 cents, but that was some time after the cut to 80 cents by other companies. We now quote 90 cents firm. Our export trade is nil, all our business being in New York and vicinity. I think prices will advance in November. People will want to lay in their winter stock and the demand will be large. I think prices next spring will be about the same as the closing figure this season. Last year we found that prices closed at $1.10 and opened at the same figure. We have a producing capacity of 500 to 600 barrels per day and we are now turning out 500. We have no stock on hand and boats are waiting for shipments to supply orders."

"There was a general depression in Portland cement last fall until March this year," said C. B. Johnson, of Johnson & Wilson, manufacturers of Saylor's American Portland. "Since that month, however, we have been so busy that we are unable to supply all our orders. We have a producing capacity of 60,000 barrels per annum. We have not only sold this but have been forced to refuse orders for 30,000 barrels more. We are still behind on orders and are able to contract for future delivery only. We have this week made arrangements, however, whereby our producing capacity will be doubled, bringing it up to 120,000 barrels. We shall have very little in store at the close of the season. We export to Mexico, Texas and the West Indies, though our shipments are light. Next year we shall be able to trade with the West with our increased facilities for production. Our present prices are $2.25 to $2.75, and for Keystone Portland $2.05 to $2.60 Our figures were lower at the beginning of the year, but have since advanced. We regulated our prices according to those of imported cements, and hitherto they have been a little lower than the latter. We can fairly state that American Portland is superior to many imported brands and compares favorably with some of the best European Portlands. The import duty on imported cement is 20 per cent. ad valorem, which is about 35 to 40 cents per barrel."

"Our business has been fifty per cent. larger this year than it was during 1883," said Belloni & Co., importers of the Hemmoor Portland Cement. "This has been due to unexpectedly large contracts. We export largely to the South and the West Indies. Our local business has been larger during the past year than our entire trade the year previous. Our prices have been better, while our profits have been nearly the same. Our figures increased owing to our having to import large quantities by fast mail steamers. Freights are now declining, and we have contracted for large shipments ahead at present figures, as we expect there will be an increased demand in the United States next spring. We are at present short of stock. I think the outlook for cement is most favorable. The business is yet in its infancy, and it has a great future on the American Continent. I expect the consumption on this side of the water to exceed that of Europe in ten years. To judge by this year's local demand for Portland cement, I think that, now the strikes are ended, the sales will very largely increase next season. The prices will, of course, depend upon freights. I think, also, that the export trade from New York to South and Central America, Mexico and the West Indies will steadily increase on account of the superior shipping advantages afforded from this port The expected extension of cable roads throughout the States as well a continued building all over the country will increase sales enormously ins the future."

Appraisements for Real Estate.

The Real Estate Chronicle, of Wednesday last, published the first of a series of communications from an expert, giving the valuation of private property offered for sale through the public press. The communication caused a good deal of sensation, for some people object to an appraisement of their property by a disinterested authority, when it is publicly offered for sale; but any wares offered to the public become thereby in a measure public property, and any one has a right to say what he thinks they may be valued at. The list in the Chronicle is an interesting one, and in each case the data for the appraisement is given. The appraiser may have made some mistakes, but if he has they are honest ones. The following is an abstract of the publication in the Chronicle. Other valuable property will be appraised next week:

There has been some doubt whether surrogates in this State have power to compel a purchaser of real estate to take the same, or have power to discharge the purchaser from taking it. Judge Dykman of the Supreme Court has decided that surrogates have such power; a question arose under the sale to George Wolfe of certain real property by John Lynch as executor, under an order of the Surrogate for the payment of the debts of the deceased. The examination of the title showed an order of the New York Fire Department requiring the owners of the buildings on the premises to remove them; Mr. Wolfe brought this properly to the attention of the Surrogate, but the latter decided that he had no jurisdiction to discharge the purchaser, but the General Term, Second Department, have decided, as has been stated, and have ordered the Surrogate to go into the merits of the matter and say whether Mr. Wolfe ought to be relieved from his purchase.

Real Estate Exchange.

The Committee on Legislation of the Real Estate Exchange and Auction Room (Limited) met yesterday for organization. James M. Varnum was made chairman, and George H. Scott secretary. The following gentlemen compose this committee:

James M. Varnum,	Henry M. Taber,
Samuel D. Babcock,	Wm. C. Church,
Nathaniel P. Bailey,	E. A. Morrison,
Robert B. Minturn,	George F. Gantz,
James D. Lynch,	Frank Tilford,
Henry E. Pellew,	H. J. Burchell,
Charles Buek,	C. W. Sweet,
J. B. Cornell,	A. Bernheimer,
H. P. Degraff,	Richard Deeves,
Byam K. Stevens,	George H. Andrews,
William C. Schermerhorn,	Thomas B. Connery,
A. J. Clinton,	Frank S. Allen,
John D. Crimmins,	E. Oppenheimer,
Henry R. Beekman,	Charles A. Schermerhorn,
William Mulry,	Henry Lewis Morris,
Smith Ely, Jr.,	Andrew J. Robinson,
Fleming Smith,	John T. Nagle.

Mr. Cammann called the attention of the committee to the importance of the proposed amendment to the State constitution, limiting local debts and restricting taxation to 2 per cent. of the valuation of real estate. After some conversation a committee was appointed to bring this matter to the attention of the press and such public bodies as would be interested.

From the conversation that ensued it was evident that this committee intends to make its influence felt hereafter in legislation affecting the real estate interests of New York city.

The Nominee for Comptroller.

Mr. Willis S. Paine, who has been nominated for Comptroller of the city of New York in place of Mr. Dugro, who, owing to a sad domestic affliction could not continue in the canvass, is the present bank superintendent.

The office of Comptroller of the city of New York is one of great importance, and the incumbent of it should be a man of large financial experience.

Mr. Paine has been examiner of several of the trust companies, receiver of the Bond Street Savings Bank, commissioner to revise the banking laws and superintendent of banks. He is, perhaps, most favorably known to the public of this city, owing to the success which attended his labors in the matter of the receivership of the Bond Street Bank, where, by prudent and judicious administration, he was enabled to pay to the depositors eighty-five per cent. of their deposits; this being, we believe, the largest per cent. ever paid to creditors of a defunct savings bank.

It can certainly be said that Mr. Paine possesses the necessary qualifications to acceptably fill the position for which he has been nominated.

In Pennsylvania there is a law, passed in 1856, "for greater certainty of title and more secure enjoyment of real estate," which provides that probate of a will of real estate is conclusive unless within five years it be contested by an action at law. A man made a will, leaving his land to his brother, and afterwards made a second will revoking the first and leaving the land to his nephew. After his death the second will was not discovered, or was never made known to the nephew, and the uncle proved the first will and sold the land to a bona fide purchaser. It was twenty years after the proving of the first will that the nephew discovered about the second will, which he then had proven, and then brought a suit of ejectment against the purchaser; but the Pennsylvania court has decided that under that statute the nephew could not recover the land.

NEW YORK, October 14, 1884.

To the Editor of THE RECORD AND GUIDE:

SIR—Is it necessary that a contract for the sale of property must be signed by the purchaser before a broker can claim his commission, or does it accrue the moment the minds of the buyer and seller meet, and is it part of his employment that he must wait until the contract of sale is signed before he can lay any claim for commission? Is he responsible for a sale which is not consummated after the minds of the buyer and seller have met? An argument has been held on this subject and it was agreed to submit it to you for your discretion. An answer, if possible, in your issue of the 18th inst. will much oblige, Yours, etc., M. W. C.

The broker's duty is fulfilled and the commission earned the moment the minds of the buyer and seller meet or the terms of the sale are agreed upon. It is, however, usual to await the signing of the contract and frequently the deed before presenting a claim for a commission that is not disputed. The broker is not responsible for the consummation of the sale.

A correspondent desires us to explain how the purchaser of property sold for arrears of taxes can reimburse himself in the event of the property not being redeemed by the owner, and particularly if the property is subsequently sold by the Comptroller for additional arrears of taxes or assessments.

The terms of purchase under tax sales are that the buyer shall, at the expiration of two years from the date of sale, notify the owner that he will enter into possession of the premises at the expiration of six months from the date of notice. If the property is not redeemed by that date a confirmatory lease can be obtained from the Comptroller, which will entitle the purchaser to enter into possession for the term of years mentioned at the sale. It would naturally be to the interest of the purchaser at a tax sale to protect himself by again purchasing the property in the event of its being sold for additional arrears of taxes or assessments, and thus acquire a further proprietary interest in it as lessee.

The World of Business.

No More Booms.

It seems, notwithstanding the lessons of the past two years, that men are still looking for booms, but owing to changing conditions and methods trade no longer goes by spring and fall rushes, but is more evenly distributed over the year. Railroads, telegraphs, drummers, multiplied distributing points, etc., have abolished "booms." There will be no fall rush; it will be distributed over the fall and winter months. The presidential election interferes somewhat, and business may be a little better after it; if grain advances and the crops come out freely more money may be put in circulation. But these temporary interferences will not affect the whole body of distribution during the next six or nine months. During the past week the necessity for restricting production in Eastern mills has continued, but returns from a syndicate of the largest corporations, notably those at Manchester, show that they have turned out more goods the present year than during the year previous. It is reported that seventy millions of dollars have been invested in new manufacturing enterprises in the South and Southwest during the past three months. Such data might be multiplied. They furnish the reverse side of the picture to that which newspapers oftenest show. There is an evident tendency to croak, and croaking will produce a panic as often as real trouble can. It is evident that there is a good deal of money in the country not in banks, and that a good many people are holding on to it like a canine excavator to the radical part of a tree.—Merchants Review.

Investments and Income.

Discussions are beginning to spring up in relation to the philosophy of the present investment market as modified by the liquidation and forced readjustments of the last two years. A prominent firm of London bankers started the discussion in a well-written pamphlet, in which they discredit American corporate stocks as an investment, but strongly recommend to the capitalists of Europe the senior mortgages of non-speculative railroads. James McHenry, now a resident of England, is writing a series of letters to an English paper, which he introduces by way of establishing his experience and opportunities of judging, by glancing at his connection with the Atlantic & Great Western, which, as he says, he "found the money for building." Mr. McHenry directs his attention especially to American railway bonds rather than stocks, and his comments on the merits of both as securities are not favorable. His strictures are directed to such roads as are managed by speculative officers and boards, and have established a reputation for crooked financing; but as, in the laxity of our laws controlling corporate trusts, immunity from such hazards is a mater of chance rather than of efficient public guarantee, the risk is the rule and security the exception. He says: "Every source of traffic on most American railroads is worked in the interest of private associations. Cattle-yards, elevators, warehouses, etc., are managed for the personal gain of marauders. Branches and bridges are often constructed with money advanced by the companies, and then leased to them as the private property of the officials. The petroleum traffic, equal in yearly tonnage to six cotton crops, is in the hands of a few men calling themselves the Standard Oil Company, whose original capital consisted of contracts with four or five railways, securing the monopoly of railway transit. The grain traffic has ceased to be profitable through fraudulent rebates and free use of 'ghost trains.'" "The most profitable portion of railway traffic in the United States is surrendered to the so-called express companies or fast freight lines, in which railway officials are principally interested, and it is said of this traffic that not a tithe, and of the general traffic scarcely one-half of the amount paid by the people reaches the treasuries of many American railways, and out of these proportions all expenses are paid." "The phrases 'wiping out,' 'scaling down,' 'assessment,' 'prior liens,' 'cutting rates,' etc., are common in the United States, and are useful in blinding the public to their real dangers, but profitable to the persons who know how to play a game which is not generally understood."—Exchange.

Fast Enough.

This wonderful ship (the Umbria), 520 feet long, is reported to have made, in her trial trip on the Clyde, with new machinery, twenty-four miles per hour. That will do. She will get in an extra mile on another occasion, and then the first step to a fulfillment of the prediction will have been taken. The limit of speed in ocean steamers will be reached only when the limit of length in construction without increasing the breadth of beam or draught of water has been reached; the engines, of course, keeping pace in power with the prolongation and weight of the vessel. Fine lines will do something to promote a rapid rate of progress through the water, but weight and momentum without a corresponding increase of the resisting surface will do much more. But who shall say how much further the new principles of construction can be carried? Had the Great Eastern's breadth of beam been only 50 feet instead of 75 feet and her draught of water a few feet less, she might not now be found lying as a coal hulk at Gibralter. But there is danger on the deep. We still maintain that this contest for speed among the ship builders will be maintained until some ocean racer breaks her back across the crest of a wave, and the passengers and crew go sailing away on the compartments. This probably means a perpendicular cruise.—Protectionist.

Condition of Western Banks.

It may be inferred from the published statements of the national banks in several Western cities, showing their condition on September 30, that the banks of the West generally have strengthened themselves materially in the last sixty days. The national banks show considerable gains in reserve resources and in deposits since the last preceding statement of June 20, though loans have diminished. The policy of contraction has evidently been pursued extensively and an increase in deposits under the circumstances was hardly to have been anticipated. There has been more or less realizing on government bonds held for investment. It is probably a pretty general sentiment at present that the severest stress of weather has passed, but, like prudent mariners, the banks are still keeping an extra tuck or so in their sails, or, to speak more plainly, they are disposed to keep a larger percentage of their means in reserve and a smaller proportion invested in commercial paper than usual. It would seem that in a general way this would not prove a hardship in the current conduct of trade, as there is a decrease in trade both in bulk and in values, especially the latter. In the meanwhile the aggregate of suspended debt has been decreasing from month to month by liquidation.—Louisville Courier.

Growth of the South.

Northern capital is pouring into the South at a most remarkable rate. According to the Baltimore Manufacturers' Record, the money invested in new mining and manufacturing enterprises in the South since the 1st of January this year, amounts to the enormous sum of $55,504,000. The most of this has gone to the States of Alabama, Virginia, Kentucky, Texas, Tennessee and Florida, in the order named. The heaviest investments of capital have been in coal mining and iron manufacturing companies, though a considerable portion of this capital has, of course, gone into various other industries, such as cotton and woolen mills, flour mills, saw mills, machine shops, etc. In Alabama, more than any other State, mining and iron making have been the favorite investments. The apparent fondness of North Carolinians for small enterprises is remarkable. There are more cotton mills in that State than in any other in the South, and yet, with two exceptions, they are small as compared with Georgia and South Carolina mills.—Paris American Register.

Why Iron is Depressed.

The London Economist has been studying the condition of the iron business in the leading countries of the world, and thinks the cause of the depression is not hard to discover. It is chiefly due to the rapid extension of production, as may be seen by a glance at the following table:

Production of	1883. Tons.	1882. Tons.	1881. Tons.	1880. Tons.
United Kingdom	8,940,224	8,493,287	8,377,364	7,721,833
United States	5,146,972	5,178,121	4,641,676	4,295,414
Germany	3,381,788	3,170,957	2,941,000	2,770,540
France	2,069,387	2,063,000	1,894,954	1,733,102
Belgium	770,699	717,000	624,736	610,000

A sudden and serious expanse took place between the years 1879 and 1880. The fact that the output was still further advanced in both England and the United States during the years 1881 and 1883 the Economist regards as still more serious, because both railroad building in America and ship building in England—the two leading causes for the expansion—have suffered a severe depression, and the demand for iron is greatly contracted. In referring to ship building the Economist says: "There is no denying the fact that a serious depression is slowly creeping over ship building and marine engineering, and, notwithstanding the late rumor of new work being given out on the Clyde, it is not unlikely that matters will grow worse rather than better in the near future."

Wool and Sheep Worthless.

EAGLE PASS., TEX., Sept. 26.—The tremendous growth of the past season, joined to the low prices of wool, has paralyzed the sheep business in this as in other sections of the State. Prominent sheep men here are anxious to sell, and some say that at least one-half of the sheep in Texas are for sale at low prices. They have sold here at 50 cents a head. The best-appointed ranches in the country are barely paying expenses. The Custom House here rigidly enforces the law with regard to mixed wool importation. The duty is 10 cents per pound, and in consequence the wool of sheep crossed into Mexico last spring now lies idle there, the duty amounting to a virtual prohibition.—Louisville Courier.

The Cotton Trade in Distress.

The cotton trade is in a bad way, and never were there more determined efforts to check production than within the last month. Fifty companies, with 6,000,000 spindles, worked only four days a week and suspended all operations for a whole week while the artisans were enjoying an annual holiday. "Production has surpassed demand, and 40,000,000 spindles," sighs a Manchester journal, "are now turning their produce into an overweighted market." The shipping trade, on the other hand, is working up the scare about the navy, inducing the hope of large orders on the Tyne.—Exchange.

Advantages of High Buildings.

A few years ago when a ten-story building was talked of the idea of erecting such a structure was hooted at as impracticable, or the projector was set down as either a crank or a fool. That was in the days before the era of the modern elevator; when stair-climbing of more than two flights was more than the average human would endure; when the material of which the outside and inside of buildings were constructed was of such a combustible nature that people were afraid to occupy a room above the second story; when substantiality was not regarded as one of the prerequisites in any kind of a structure; when the idea of making a handsome edifice fire-proof had not been conceived in the mind of owner, architect or builder. Modern appliances have overcome the objection to stair-climbing, and modern architecture has met the difficulty with reference to combustibility so effectually that the principal objections of the past have been completely removed, and the public opinion that was so outspoken against tall buildings a few years since has, in a great measure, been turned completely around. Those who were then the loudest in their denunciation of such projects have become ardent advocates of structures not only ten stories in height, but are even suggesting that they be made fifteen. Ardent opponents of high buildings have invoked the aid of the law-making power to prevent the erection of a structure more than seven stories in height, and their invocations have been heeded to some extent, but the modern projector of a business block feels that he has a voice in such matters, and that the arguments he may present in opposition to laws putting an embargo upon the erection of high buildings will be listened to. The arguments presented by the advocates of structures ten or twelve stories heigh are to the effect that such a building must necessarily be more substantial than a low one; that its foundations must be massive; its walls heavier, and constructed of the best material obtainable; its interior finish must be such as to comport with the outer portion, and, consequently, more substantial than in an ordinary structure; it must be put together to stay, and made absolutely fire proof. With these requisites observed to the letter, they consistently claim that the occupants of such buildings are safer than in the ordinary brick building, and that there is little or no danger to surrounding property from such a structure. If such a building is not made fire-proof it is the fault of the architect or contractor. Modern architecture has made such rapid strides within the last decade that there is no excuse for the construction of a high building that will not withstand the flames from the interior furnishings, or that will not stand as a solid wall to stop the progress of a conflagration from surrounding buildings. The true theory of the age is that a city can be constructed that will not succomb to the devouring element, and in the designs for the tall piles of masonry that are in process of erection in Chicago every constituent element of flame-resistance has been brought into requisition to meet the fire-proof requirement. If the theory of modern architects be correct as to protection from fire, there is no reason why it may not be as feasible to make a twenty-story building as fire-proof as one only seven stories high. The question of altitude should not be made the basis of limitation in considering the safety of occupants or surroundings, but rather the substantiality and the salamander qualities of the structure should be given a first consideration. A leap from a five-story building would be certain death; so it would from the twelfth story, and a man would roast as quickly in the one as in the other. The great difficulty that has been in the way in the past was a want of substantiality in what were called modern structures. There has been a disposition to overlook the fire hazard, and the consequence has been disastrous to Chicago property in hundreds of instances, even since the lesson which the great fire is said to have taught. These additional lessons have been dearly-bought experience to many who have gone beyond instructions from underwriters, exceeded the strictures of the law, and have recognized the influence of self-interest in the construction of high buildings, which is more potent in the securing of a fire-proof edifice than all other influences combined. They have come to believe a building can be erected in which a fire is an impossibility, and on which the flames from surrounding structures can have no effect, and this is the class of buildings which are projected and being erected in Chicago, of ten, eleven and twelve stories in height. Taey are to be well built for offices and business rooms, and will be substantial, because it is to the interest of the projectors to make them such. Little or no combustible material will be used in any of them, and when buildings are so constructed it is a question as to whether the city is not benefited by the height, in having a barrier to the progress of a fire, and whether the public should offer any objection to carrying such a structure as high in the air as the projector may desire, provided the building is made substantial. The rapid increase in the value of real estate in the business part of the city, together with the growth and expanse of the business of the city, will compel the erection of tall structures. It should not be a question of how high a building should be, but what security does its builder present that it possesses the elements of substantiality and safety from the devouring element. If the more modern rules in architecture were observed in all buildings there would be no occasion for the spreading of a fire beyond the building in which it should originate, and when the combustible contents were destroyed the danger would be past. This is a progressive age in building, and the study of the architect of the present is not so much the beauty of a structure, the following of a style of architecture, but substantiality, proof against flame, and harmony in the finish, no matter how many ancient rules may be demolished.—Chicago Times.

Call Loans.

Call loans, though unknown in the ordinary stipulations between borrower and lender in the country, form the basis upon which millions of dollars are lent in New York and other large cities. We presume that at least one-half of the loans by banks and money lenders is of this character. Such loans, as their title indicates, are payable at the option of either party. A note drawn upon this principle is analagous to a bank bill that is payable on demand. The convenience of paying the loan at one's option is the advantage of the system to the borrower; and the liability of being called upon at any time to make the payment is the disadvantage, often a very embarrassing one. The opportunity of rapid interest accumulation, by frequently compounding the interest, or by demanding large rates of interest when money is scarce, is the advantage to the lender; and the liability of having the loan paid when he does not want it, and having it on hand as so much idle capital, is the disadvantage. The system is thus one of advantages and disadvantages to both classes. Business based on the uncertainty which necessarily inheres in all call loans must be so conducted as at all times to be prepared for them. The borrower cannot tell beforehand when his obligation will mature; and, hence, he must always be ready to meet it. If he owes $2,000,000 of call loans he must keep himself in a condition to pay this sum at any time. He may be called upon to do it; and he must do it, or fail. In this respect he is at the mercy or whim of the lender, who will be likely to consult his own convenience and profit, rather than those of the borrower. It is quite true that he may at his pleasure pay his loans; yet in the matter of facility and convenience there is often a very wide difference between paying a loan and receiving the payment. The latter never embarrasses the lender, since, at the worst, it only places so much idle capital in his hands; but the former may most seriously embarrass the borrower. It is, hence, manifest that the system of call loans is not suited to the ordinary forms and operations of legitimate business. For a rule, business men cannot safely make any such contracts with money-lenders. They cannot so conduct their business on the basis of borrowed capital as to keep themselves in readiness at any time to pay their debts. Their assets may be twice the amount of their liabilities; yet they cannot, without immense sacrifice and loss, turn them into money at a moment's warning. They are not bankers, but engaged in the exchange of commodities, asking credit and giving credit. They must have time to collect their debts, or sell their goods and get their returns, before they can pay their own debts. Merchants and manufacturers, therefore, are wise in avoiding the use of call loans, except when severely pressed for temporary relief. Their calculations will often fail when their notes run for a definite period; and, if they were to add the system of call loans to the uncertainty of business, their perils would be greatly increased. No regular business under such a regime could endure the fluctuations of the money market. These loans belong to speculators—the "bulls" and the "bears"—who take the risks of the market value of stocks. When money is easy then they have no trouble in carrying stocks to the amount of millions of dollars, by pledging them as collateral security, with a sufficient margin; but when the money market becomes tight, and their loans are called in, and prices are depressed, then comes the "tug of war" for these speculators. They assume the risks in the one direction for the sake of the possible profits in the other. They sink or swim with the money market. They are rich to-day and poor to-morrow. They often make fortunes in a short time, and often lose them just as rapidly. This is the chronic condition of all speculators upon prices. Call loans answer an admirable purpose when the machinery works in their favor; but when the movement is in the opposite direction, then the result is disastrous. If they like the system, so be it; yet the ordinary forms of business must keep clear of it.—Independent.

Beet Sugar.

The beet sugar crop of Europe is enormous and that is what depresses the price of Louisiana sugar, and has bankrupted Cuban planters. The Times Democrat estimates that Louisiana planters have lost, by this competition, $6,000,000 in one year, and are apt to suffer a similar fate next season. The same paper says that cheap grain crops in America drive many of the grain fields of Europe into beet culture, for American competition in the cereals causes European farmers to devote their wheat fields to a more profitable crop. Thus there seems to be no hope for higher prices for sugar in this direction. The sorghum syrups made on thousands of small farms throughout the West and South have decreased the demand for Louisiana molasses, which is of course a very important element in our cane crop—Exchange.

For the first time in its history the elevated railroad system failed to score an increase in the number of its passengers last week compared with the corresponding period of the previous year. The figures have all along shown such a steady advance that any deviation from this rule has come to be regarded by the officers as a phenomenon. The principal reason assigned for this is that the building strikes withdrew a large number of workmen who regularly used the "L" roads during the morning and evening commission hours in going to and from their work. It is stated, however, that during the past week there has been an increase over the corresponding week last year, and this is accounted for by the fact that the builders' strike is over and that the men are again using the elevated roads to travel between their work and their homes.

A decision has just been handed down by the General Term of the Supreme Court in the case of the Fire Department vs. Sturtevant. The gist of the decision is that the Inspector of Buildings has not the power to enforce the placing of fire-escapes on buildings, but that the authority to do so is vested in the Commissioners of the Fire Department.

The Building Strikes Ended.

The Stonecutters' Union terminated their fruitless strike against the masters this week, and the men have been working since Monday last. They would have continued the struggle, they say, had the Bricklayers' Union remained staunch to them. They had entered the strike to support them and the latter had thrown them overboard. The bricklayers have given in to the masters also. Charles T. Wills, secretary of the Mason Builders' Association, says that the masters can get all the men they require at ten hours a day. His firm had been working all along on the American Bank Note Company's building on Church street at the ten-hour rate. Marc Eidlitz is employing ten-hour men on the Astor office building on Broadway. One of the men was accosted by one of our reporters, and said "I am a union man and am working ten hours a day. The men have been working at that rate for a week or two all over the city. I am still a union man and the union has not expelled me for working ten hours a day." On the Standard Oil Company's building men are working at the nine-hour rate, but all new building contracts are now being undertaken on the ten-hour basis. During the latter period of the strike a great many men sent in their withdrawals from the union. One man in Harlem states that he, with many of his fellow workers, were against the strike from the beginning, and although they held out at first, they could not afford nor did they feel disposed to hold out, and therefore left the union and went to work for ten hours a day. It is reported that numbers of men in Harlem are working nine hours, but are only receiving $3.60 per day, instead of the full rate of $4. In fact, both union and men have discovered they made a big mistake in striking at a time of depression which did not warrant them in demanding better terms than they already had. Many men are now unable to get work, and the indications are that they will be glad to get employment at ten hours a day during the winter, for they have almost killed work for the season by their untoward action. The stonecutters were wise enough to terminate their strike as early as they did. Had they not done so, they would have found themselves in the same plight as the bricklayers. No one seems to have benefited by these strikes but the "walking delegates" and other officers of the workmen's unions.

All interested in real estate will regret to learn of the death of V. K. Stevenson, Sr. He was a man of very large means, and of irreproachable character. He has held in his time many important trusts in financial institutions. It will also be learned with extreme concern that several prominent real estate dealers are dangerously ill, among them being Messrs. Homer Morgan, Adrian H. Muller and Isaac Honig. We understand that Mr. Francis Crawford is convalescing.

Real Estate Department.

The prevailing political excitement has not helped our local real estate market during the past week. There were valuable properties offered for public sale but the bidding was spiritless. Some very good property brought very low prices and in many cases the auctioneers were forced to withdraw the parcels offered to save them from being sacrificed. Better things are hoped of the market this week for there are some excellent investment properties which will be offered for public sale.

But while the public auctions were disappointing, the general building situation has improved. The strikes are all over and architects and builders feel hopeful about next spring. The fall renting is under full headway and reports of what the dealers are doing are fairly good.

The sale of the Fox estate in the annexed district proved to be an excellent one. A novelty was introduced which will undoubtedly be imitated in other sales hereafter. All the lots were sold under a guarantee by a title company; the purchaser had nothing to pay in taking his deed, for the title was assured before a bid was taken. When the new Exchange is fairly at work the bulk of the property offered will undoubtedly be similarly secured by a guaranteeing company. In time this will lead to a vital reform in real estate dealings, for if a title is assured and the Exchange affords a ready means of selling property the banks will be quite willing to lend on real estate as a collateral. It is the legal embarrassments in handling real estate which prevent its negotiability. Any one who compares the prices obtained from the Fox estate last summer and of the sale last week will realize the value of a guaranteed title before the sale commences.

On Tuesday the Fox estate lots in the Twenty-third Ward were offered. The attendance was large and the bidding very spirited, and 149 lots on the Southern Boulevard, Kelly and Tiffany streets, Hall and Rogers places and Stebbins and Intervale avenues brought $33,110. The prices obtained are from 10 to 20 per cent. in advance of those which ruled at a sale in June of lots belonging to the same estate.

On Wednesday the assignee's sale of James D. Fish's realty was largely attended, though the bidding was spiritless and the prices obtained low. Nos. 31 and 33 Broadway, which Mr. Fish took in trade last March at $250,000, was knocked down for $162,000; No. 50 Broad street, which he took in trade in April at $85,000, was withdrawn, no one bidding $57,000, the amount due thereon; Nos. 1424 and 1426 Broadway, for which Mr. Fish paid $42,500 in July, 1883, was sold for $38,250, while for the four lots Nos. 107 to 115 West Thirty-ninth street, for which $122,500 was given in February, no bid was made. Eight tenements on West Thirty-second and Thirty-third streets, which cost Mr. Fish $110,000 in March, 1884, brought only $103,200, and houses on Madison avenue, between One Hundred and Twentieth and One Hundred and Twenty first streets, which were purchased at about $20,000 each, went for from $16,800 to $18,000.

On Thursday there was a large attendance and numerous offerings. Nos. 88 and 90 Bowery, rented to May 1, 1886, at $13,500 per annum, was sold for $100,500; No. 144 Hester, renting for $2,600, brought $20,100, and Nos. 60 Elizabeth and 146 to 150 Hester, together, rented to May, 1888, at $4,500, went for $42,800; six first class dwellings (unfinished) on East Sixty-seventh street, on each of which over $70,000 is due, were sold under foreclosure to the plaintiffs, the second mortgagees, for about $2,000 over the mortgages thereon. The four-story dwellings, Nos. 27 Park avenue, 24.8x55x80, and No. 27 East Sixty-fourth street, 20x55x100.4, were withdrawn, the former on a bid of $43,000, the latter because no one bid the upset price, $60,000. French's Hotel on Chatham street was not offered.

The Conveyances for the past week make a very good showing as compared with the corresponding week of last year. The number of transactions is greater, but the consideration paid for property is less. The total amount lent on bond and mortgage is considerably larger than last year. So far there has been an increase in the number of transfers this year every week save three. Here is the table:

CONVEYANCES.

On Tuesday, October 21st, Richard V. Harnett will sell the very desirable house No. 20 West One Hundred and Twenty-Sixth street.

On Tuesday, the 21st inst., James L. Wells will sell 115 more lots of the Fox estate. This is a continuation of the very successful sale of last week. The property is sold, it will be remembered, with the title guaranteed. On the 23d inst. Mr. Wells will also sell the real estate assets of the Knickerbocker Life Insurance Co., a description of which appears elsewhere.

On Wednesday, October 22d, Richard V. Harnett will sell, under the order of the executors, the estate of Catharine B. Fish, deceased. All of this property is very choice for investment purposes. It includes the business building No. 61 Nassau street, between Maiden lane and John street, and which is a gilt-edged investment; also the house No. 14 East Seventy-third street. The other property is principally in the Seventh Ward, which has been in such high favor with prudent investors for the last year. The sale will undoubtedly draw a large attendance and eager bidders.

On Friday, John F. B. Smyth will sell two excellent private dwellings, No. 47 West Fifty-fifth street, a well-built stone front residence, 18.9 front, and a similar house No. 357 West Fifty-seventh street.

On Tuesday, October 28th, James L. Wells will have an executor's sale of twenty acres of land on Manhattan Island. This property involves important riparian rights. It is at the junction of Hudson River and Spuyten Duyvil Creek, and will have extensive dockage on the Harlem Ship Canal. The scenery viewed from this property is simply magnificent.

Gossip of the Week.

Messrs. E. H. Ludlow & Co. have sold the four-story brown stone dwelling, No. 12 East Forty-fourth street, 25x65, with butler's pantry extension, lot 100.5, for $67,500 to Thomas H. O'Connor; the five-story English basement dwelling, No. 41 West Thirty-sixth street, 18.9x55 with extension, lot 100.5, for $32,000 to Dr. J. E. Giles, and the stable, No. 19 East Thirtieth street, 25x98.9 for $25,000 to Daniel Harnett.

V. K. Stevenson, Jr., has sold three lots on the northeast corner of Grand Boulevard and Seventy-fifth street, 80x90, for $35,000, to Miss Minnie Palmer, and the three-story medium-size dwelling No. 69 East Fifty-second street to Caroline Crocker for $12,500 cash.

Randolph Guggenheimer has sold John F. Betz's brewery on the south side of Fifty-eighth street, between Lexington and Third avenues, comprising nine and a half lots, together with the buildings thereon, goodwill, stock, machinery, &c., and including the three-story and basement brown stone house adjoining, for a total sum of $200,000, the purchaser being Peter Buckel, formerly at Peter Doelger's brewery.

B. C. Prescott has sold for Eliza Arnold, the five four-story double flats, Nos. 353 to 361 East Sixty-ninth street, each 25x76x100.5, for $100,000, and for A. F. W. Schmidt, the five-story tenement and store, No. 419 East Seventy-sixth street, 20x75x102.2, for $20,000.

S. M. Blakely has sold for Dr. Thomas, the four-story brick house, No. 111 West Forty-third street, 23x50x100, for $25,250, and for Mrs. E. R. Wilson, the three-story brick house on the north side of Sixty-ninth street, 100 feet west of Tenth avenue, house 20x45, lot 40x100, for $12,250.

Col. W. Seward, of the Ninth Regiment, recommends the selection of the plot on Eighth avenue, between Eighty-third and Eighty-fourth streets, as a site for an armory for his regiment.

W. W. Montague has sold for the Randel estate, the three-story brick house, No. 506 West Twenty-second street, 25x45x98.9, for $9,000, to James Stanley.

Thos. B. Gilford has leased the new four-story and basement dwelling, No. 468 Lexington avenue, 21.6x60, with extension, built by C. Graham & Sons, for three years, at $2,250 per annum, to Emil Lilienthal.

Wm. V. N. Rosedale has sold the three-story frame shop and stable, Nos. 117 to 121 Bank street, 67.10x95, with lot in rear, 21x40.6x13.4x43, to John Schreyer. The lots will be improved by the erection of tenements.

E. Michaelis has sold for the Shannon estate the three-story brick store on the southeast corner of Grand and Forsyth streets, 20x62, to Samuel Cohn, for $90,000, and for Mr. Redig the five-story tenement No. 75 Eldridge street for $35,000 to Samuel Cohn. Mr. Michaelis has leased for Samuel Cohn the store property No. 281 Grand street to S. Lichtenstein & Son for ten years at $12,000 per annum, and for Henry Hesse the southwest corner of Grand and Eldridge streets and No. 77 Eldridge street, adjoining to E. Ridley & Son, for ten years, at $12,000 per annum.

George R. Read, formerly of E. H. Ludlow & Co., and now in business on his own account at No. 19 Nassau street, has sold the two-story and attic frame house No. 406 East Eighty-ninth street, between Avenue A and First avenue, with lot 50x100, to Louis George, for $13,500. Also the five-story building No. 555 Broadway, west side between Spring and Prince streets, 25x200, through to Mercer, to Mr. John J. Astor, for $150,000.

Wm. R. Martin has traded the five-story flat Nos. 84 and 86 Grove street for vacant lots.

Geo. C. Huttemeyer and L. Brandt have sold for H. Crosby two lots on the north side of Ninety-ninth street, about 160 east of Third avenue, to Brown & Woodruff, for $10,000, with a loan.

L. Froehlich has made the following sales: For J. E. Vanderbilt, two three-story stone front dwellings, Nos. 257 and 259 East One Hundred and Twenty-second street, each 14x43x71.10, for $16,250; for H. Leopold, a similar dwelling No. 108 East Sixty-first street, 19x50x100, for $19,500; for C. Weed, a similar dwelling No. 246 East Seventy-second street, 16.8x50x100, for $14,150, and for James Fettretch, a similar house No. 228 East Seventy-second street, 17x66x100, for $17,750.

W. A. Shelton has sold for Isaias Meyer a lot on the northwest corner of Tenth avenue and One Hundred and Fourth street, 25.11x100, for $8,750. It will be improved at once. The same broker has sold for F. A. Thurston one lot on the south side of One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street, 100 feet east of Eighth avenue, 25x100, for $5,500 to Thomas Auld.

J. W. Stevens has sold for M. Kahn a lot on the south side on Sixty-second street, 200 feet east of Tenth avenue, 25x100, to Christian Blinn, Jr.

The plot on the northwest corner of Third avenue and Seventy-ninth street, 98x90, with tenements thereon, has, it is reported, been sold for $103,000.

Messrs. Ottinger Bros. have sold No. 26 West Houston street, lot 25x105, with old building, for $28,000.

Newman Cowen has sold four lots on the south side of One Hundred and Fourth street, 260 feet east of Third avenue, to Henry Bornkamp, for improvement.

Brooklyn.

W. F. Corwith has sold the lot No. 96 Oakland street, to James Taylor, for $1,500.

J. W. Mason intends to erect three three-story and basement brick, stone and terra cotta private dwellings, 16.8x60 each, on Sixth avenue, near Carroll street, at a cost of about $30,000. The plans are being drawn by Montrose W. Morris, New York.

Captain Tumbridge is about to build a five-story brick, stone and terra cotta apartment house, 48x80, on the west side of Willow place, commencing about 100 feet north of State street. The plan shows a central iron staircase running to the top story, over which is a glass roof. The building will contain the modern improvements. The estimated cost is $28,000. Architect, A. Hatfield, New York.

The New York Cotton Oil Company intends to erect a four-story brick factory on the corner of Smith street and Hamilton avenue, fronting the Gowanus Canal. The main building will be 75x50, and the sheds adjoining 240x110, the latter being constructed of iron. The estimated cost, exclusive of machinery, is $55,000. The plans are being prepared by Augustus Hatfield, of New York.

Out Among the Builders.

Alfred H. Thorp has the plans under way for a three-story and basement frame dwelling, 52x42 and "L" 28x28, to be erected on Glenwood avenue, Orange, N. J., for Lester L. Mosley, at a cost of about $12,000.

Cleverdon & Putzel have the sketches on the boards for four five-story brick and brown stone flats, 25x85 each, to be erected on the south side of One Hundred and Fourth street, between Second and Third avenues, for Henry Bornkamp, at a cost of about $64,000.

The five architects selected by the armory commission to draw competitive designs for the new armories are McKim, Mead & White, C. C. Haight, Douglass Smyth, Jas. E. Ware and Theodore Weston. Our reporters ineffectually endeavored to obtain the names of the competitors from General Shaler, who would not even state whether the names were correct when they were mentioned to him. Our representatives have therefore had to rely on their reportorial ingenuity in acquiring the information. What object, it might be asked, is there in the commission thus concealing the names from the public? How comes it, also, that some of the most prominent names in the architectural profession are conspicuous by their absence from the gentlemen chosen?

Messrs. Hanan Bros., shoe manufacturers, will erect a seven-story and basement brick factory on the southeast corner of White and Centre streets. The building will have a frontage of 95 feet on the former and 80 feet on the latter street, and will contain a freight elevator. The cost has not yet been estimated. Architects, Babb, Cook & Willard.

De Lemos & Cordes have the plans on the boards for two five-story brick and brown stone improved double flats, 27x90 each, lot 130, to be erected on the east side of North Third avenue, between One Hundred and Forty-eighth and One Hundred and Forty-ninth streets, for S. Campbell, at an estimated cost of $44,000. They will be partly in hardwood trim.

Excavations will at once be commenced for the erection of four three-story and basement private dwellings, 17x52x10x12 each, to be erected on Washington Heights, St. Nicholas avenue, between One Hundred and Fifty-fourth and One Hundred and Fifty-fifth streets, for Harkness Boyd, at an estimated cost of $48,000. The material will be of Philadelphia brick, stone and terra cotta, the houses being in the early English style; Architect, Carl Pfeiffer.

Brooklyn.

H. Vollweiler has plans in hand for a three-story double frame store and tenement, 25x50, with one-story extension, 11x18, to be erected at No. 1547 Broadway, for Mr. Heiland; cost, $4,300; and a three-story frame flat, 20x55, on Broadway, 70 feet south of Van Buren street, for Samuel Post, cost, $4,000.

Contractors' Notes.

Proposals will be received by the school trustees of the Seventeenth Ward, at the hall of the Board of Education, corner of Grand and Elm streets, until Monday, the 27th day of October, 1884, until 4 o'clock P. M., for the enlargement of the schoolhouse on the north side of 1st street, between 1st and 2d avenues, on lots Nos. 38 to 42.

Applications will be made to the Supreme Court by Corporation Counsel Lacombe on November 7th for the appointment of Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment, in the matter relative to acquiring title to Courtland avenue, extending from the north side of East One Hundred and Sixty-first street, in the Twenty-third Ward.

Special Notices.

Amongst the various local firms who manufacture stained glass George S. Harvey & Co. occupy a prominent position. In addition to supplying dwelling houses and public buildings, they have done some excellent work in churches. They recently received the contract for the memorial windows of the St. Luke's Methodist Episcopal Church, Albany, in competition with seven others. They have turned out some very artistic windows. Their works are at 192, 194 and 196 Willoughby street, Brooklyn.

Leonard J. Carpenter, the well-known real estate agent of Twenty-third street and Fourth avenue, has just increased his business facilities in response to his up-town demands, by opening a branch office at No. 1181 Third avenue, between Sixty-eighth and Sixty-ninth streets, where his customers and the general public will find prompt attention given to selling, renting and real estate business generally.

Jacob Haubert, real estate and insurance agent, of 518 East Sixteenth street, has been established fifteen years. He makes a specialty of collecting rents, and takes charge of estates. He also buys and sells property, and does a general real estate and insurance business.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

BRICKS.—"Dull and nominally unchanged" appears to be about the best statement that can be made regarding the general condition of the market for Common Hards. Slight variations in price are taking place all the time, but they are of minor importance and do not lead to any alteration in the average run of cost, and it would be splitting hair to award advantage to either buyer or seller, though if anything the tendency appears to rather favor the latter. For the season of the year, however, there is an unusual absence of buoyant or even positively strong expression, and certainly an entire absence of attempts to force matters. Consumption is not expanding, and, as we have before explained, the position of dealers is such as to make it unnecessary that they should be in any hurry about accumulating stocks, and the policy in consequence seems to be, let demand develop naturally. Offerings have not been heavy nor are they likely to be, indeed the natural tendency is to fall away if any, as manufacturers are not now compelled to ship for want of room, but there is brick enough, and if wanted the supply can be made available on comparatively short notice. Now and then some fault is found with the condition of stock, but as a rule the condition keeps up to a pretty full standard. The demand for Pales does not appear to be quite so good as last week, and a little weakness has developed on the general market, with only something extra fine now likely to reach $3.50 per M, though that figure may possibly be retained as an extreme quotation. Fronts moderately active, but the close delivery of supplies keeps the advantage in the hands of sellers and values are very strong.

LATH.—The business has not been very large, possibly because the supply came to hand rather moderately and in an uncertain manner. It is, however, evident that just a faint degree of disappointment has been experienced in the volume and force of demand. Dealers appear ready enough to negotiate to about the extent of the immediately available offering, but do not indicate a desire to engage cargoes for any great distance ahead, and the market lacks a snappish tone. On price, too, $2.20 per M seems to be about extreme, and we hear of transactions at $2.15 per M, which appears to about cover the ruling rates for the week. Still receivers are by no means lacking in confidence, and express themselves in the usual cheerful manner regarding the outlook.

LIME.—Nothing new was reported and the market seems to move along in a smooth and uneventful manner. Supplies still small, and it is probable that a slightly fuller offering could be disposed of.

LUMBER.—We do not discover that any change has developed on the general market since our last. Nine tenths of the reports continue to reiterate the stereotyped story of a dull and unsatisfactory trade. Building operations appear to be limited, or rather contracts for the future against that consumption are unimportant, country orders run behind the average, and, at the risk of being considered an intruder upon one of the pet ideas of a local commercial journal, we venture to mildly suggest that the railroads are not as good customers as usual at this season. Yet in the face of all the above may be found a few who assert that smallness of business is more apparent than real, as the light invoices are numerous enough to make a good general aggregate, and taking the only record of distribution available, they cite the export movement standing slightly in excess of last year as a fair endorsement of the theory. Values irregular, but "about" as before on the general range. Arrivals on contract continue to add to accumulations, and further purchases are made when they can be obtained "right." Some dealers have gone up to the capital city since the recent decline and obtained fair bargains, but Albany appears to have dropped prices too late to secure any material benefit, especially as there is a great deal of feeling against that market. Solid dealers here complain that irresponsible competitors have not only been given low rates, but liberal credits as an inducement to handle some of the stock. Albany is now anxious to unload, and there is also a great deal of dissatisfaction about inspection at the latter point. Furthermore mill owners continue to offer as good terms as any one on direct shipments, and thus with primary points and the distributive yards brought in direct connection to the benefit of both, the intermediate depot is left somewhat in the cold. Coastwise offerings are moderate, but seem full enough for the call.

Eastern Spruce does not appear likely to go much, if any, lower, neither is there indication of an advance, and this latter feature is what troubles manufacturers as they find little if any margin on what they sell random, and find buyers frequently willing to withdraw their specifications rather than pay the rates it is absolutely necessary to ask in order to prevent loss in cutting on orders. The local yard accumulation is pretty full, but still has a little room for additions when quality is fine and cost less. About former figures ruling, or say from $11 to $13 on country cargoes; $13@14 or possibly $14 50 for random, such as city demand will take, and up to $16 asked on specials.

White Pine remains slack. An effort is made to use the full run of exports thus far this season as a text for more promising claims, but there is a general competitive watching for all additional orders and plenty of stock to meet them at low rates. Arrivals, too, came forward with some freedom, and, as the home call is indifferent, business proves far from stimulating. Dealers have been beset with "agents" from Albany, we are told, and gave some orders but only when the slaughter was great and the assortment especially attractive. We quote at $16@17 for West India shipping boards; $18@27 for South American do.; $13@14 for box boards, and $16@18 for extra do.

Yellow Pine sells moderately on small orders and the general market has as dull a tone as ever, with no reports of a positively cheerful character to be found. Low prices, cheap transportation and plenty of stock available to fill the available freight room all fail as incentives to demand and there is simply nothing to do but wait until the wants of buyers compel them to give orders. We quote as follows: Randoms, $17@19.50 per M; Specials, $19.50@21 do.; Green Flooring Boards, $20@22; Dry, do., do., $22@23; Siding, $20@22 do.; Cargoes f. o. b. at Atlantic ports, $13@15 for rough, and $18@20 for dressed. Cargoes f. o. b. at Gulf ports, $12@14 for rough, and $20@21 for dressed.

Hardwoods are firm on fine stock and there is a better call for oak, cherry, poplar and walnut, especially the latter. There is also some attention given to attractive lots of hickory and ash, and of the two latter we notice quite a number of small parcels among the recent exports. Arrivals are not very heavy and while some accumulation is said to be in first hands investigation leads to the impression that it is largely "off" quality. We quote at wholesale rates by car load as follows: Walnut, $65@100 per M.; ash, $33@40 do.; oak, $30@55 do.; maple, $20@32.50 do.; chestnut, $25@30 do.; cherry, $50@80 do.; whitewood, $27@35 do., do.; elm, $22@25; hickory, $45@50 do.

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

STATE.

ALBANY MARKET.

The Argus reports for week ending October 14 as follows:

There have not been many buyers here, but the shipments have been large, indicating considerable sales. The usage of the market is gradually changing and many of the larger transactions are now made at the offices of the purchasers, who are called upon by the Albany dealers or their clerks. This method has been for some time the manner of doing business in England, and it is growing in this country. Albany will, however, continue to keep a fine stock and assortment of seasoned lumber on the yards to accommodate those buyers who want lumber for immediate use and to see it before purchasing. The receipts are falling off somewhat and will not probably be as large as usual in the latter part of the season of canal navigation. The stock of pine, spruce and hemlock is large, and more than usual at this time of the year. Hardwoods are in fair stock and this seasoned lumber of all the varieties can be readily obtained. Lath are in good demand. Shingles are in sufficient supply of all kinds.

THE WEST.

SAGINAW VALLEY.

LUMBERMAN'S GAZETTE,
BAY CITY, MICH.

The situation of the Saginaw Valley lumber market is practically unchanged, as it has been since the last issue of the Lumberman's Gazette. Continued depression about expresses the real condition. An occasional sale comes to the surface, but unless it happens to be of superior quality, and goes for a fair price, any information in regard thereto is impossible to obtain. Both business and prices are in a state of complete demoralization. While the shipments of lumber during the season have been remarkably heavy, the cut of the mills has more than kept pace with it, and there is probably more lumber in pile on the Saginaw River to-day than at any time since the first mill was planted on the stream, while the unwise slaughter of logs is continued with unabated vigor. Nearly one hundred million of feet has been added to the amount of lumber in pile at the commencement of navigation, which was then 376,000,000 feet in round numbers, or the largest amount ever carried over. It will be perceived, therefore, that the outlook, so far as this valley is concerned, is not of the most gratifying or satisfactory character. With more lumber on hand to enter into next year's consumption than ever before, and some of the eastern markets to which the Saginaw Valley is tributary carrying heavy stocks, the business horizon may be said to be considerably clouded. The attempt at reduction at the Saginaw meeting has resulted in practically nothing. The boom companies will continue their work, and so will the mills, until the clerk of the weather puts an embargo on further operations.

During the past week C. H. Bradley sold 500,000 feet to eastern parties at $26 per thousand straight; a sale of 500,000 of Norway bill stuff is also reported by H. W. Sage & Co. to winter over here; Mosher & Fisher also report sales of 2,000,000 feet of lumber of different kinds to Syracuse and Buffalo firms, prices not named; sales have been reported also at East Saginaw of 250,000 feet at $13 straight and 500,000 feet of ordinary bill stuff at $7. M. T. Bailey has sold 1,500,000 shingles, prices not named.

The Northwestern Lumberman reports Chicago as follows:

The lumber coming on the market is both dry and green, and well diversified among the several classes. Shingles and lath are arriving in moderate quantity, shingles selling at fully 20 cents a thousand higher than prices two or three weeks ago, thus maintaining the advance before indicated.

Piece stuff is now quoted "wide open" without reserve at $8 a thousand, with no range for lumber definitely characterized in this market as piece stuff. The commission men claim a difference of 50 cents in favor of dry stuff. But the yard merchants say that often there is not more than 25 cents difference, and without doubt dry stuff is frequently changing hands at the regular $8 price. Some indifferent stuff sells a quarter, perhaps more, below $8. Where specials are put into a cargo to arrive, a quarter or a half dollar is added to the price. But generally, anything below 20 feet goes in at $8 a thousand. Cargoes may contain considerable 2x12, or 2x8 or 2x10–22 which are much sought after for local building, and little or no addition to the price is charged. Bill stuff is a seperate deal, and special prices are made upon about every different size, special sizes like 3x12 or 14 bringing relatively higher prices. Indeed, the figures are so various on bill stuff that it is nearly impossible to give quotations of any value.

All the season the yard dealers have called for strips, and have been inclined to neglect boards. This has spurred up the mill men to saw as much of their lumber into strips as possible. A yard merchant suggests that this thing may possibly be overdone. He gives it as his opinion, after carefully noting the situation, that there is not as large a proportion of boards in the grades of selects as there is of strips in the various grades. The tendency is always to run to one extreme in the eagerness to escape the other.

Lake freights are weak, but not quotably lower.

Piece stuff, green	$——@ 8 00
Long timbers and joists, green	——@ ——
Coarse common	9 00@ 9 50
Boards and strips, No. 2, green	9 50@11 00

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

The reports from all business centres show that the consumption of lumber exceeds that of last year, and the retail yards throughout the entire West are almost running without stock. The shipments over the Omaha line, which are given at 21,000 cars for the first seven months of the year, indicate clearly that although Chicago has sold an almost unprecedented quantity, the demand upon the Northwest is constantly increasing. The trade of Dakota and Manitoba is greater than ever before by the amount shipped in via the Canadian Pacific from Superior, which, according to our figures, amounts to nearly 30,000,000 feet. This must be true because the shipments over the Northern Pacific and Manitoba lines as well as the Milwaukee are in excess of last year's figures, and the Canadian Pacific done nothing.

The recent floods have given the river mills of the Northwest all the logs they want, except on the Chippewa and they are being pushed. The railway mills are many of them closed down for the season. The indications continue to point to a large cut of logs. We adhere to this opinion in spite of some vigorous protests received from parties who want to sell stumpage or cut logs.

The Saginaw market seems to have met with some trouble and its lumbermen go scared into some very silly resolutions

Minneapolis is sending out over 5,000,000 a week, and we feel sure smaller discounts are being made.

ENGLAND.

The London Timber Trade's Journal says:

Cedar—No fresh sales have taken place, in fact the stock in the docks of old imports has now, we believe, pretty well all passed into second hands, so that the shipments now landing may be expected to sell readily and well.

American Black Walnut Wood.—In this there is nothing special to note; the parcels sold lately appear to be moving away in a satisfactory manner, and although the imports have been considerable, the consumption continues to expand.

American Whitewood.—The impetus given to this article by the late unreserved sales has unmistakably shown itself by increased inquiries amongst the trade, and we think this wood is on a fair way to being still more widely used as a substitute for better class pine.

METALS.—COPPER—Ingot appears to make no improvement whatever. There is a little demand from regular sources, but only to satisfy ordinary trade wants, and, while holders do not urge their stocks, offerings at all times appear to be a little in excess of the outlet and prices weak. The quotations range from 13c. on Lake down to 12c. for the less popular brands. Manufactured Copper is dull and nominally unchanged, but buyers have the advantage. We quote as follows: Brazier's Copper, ordinary size, over 16 oz. per sq. foot, 22c. per lb.; do. do. do., 16 oz. and over 12 oz. per sq. foot, 24c. per lb.; do. do., 10 and 12 oz. per sq. foot, 27c. per lb.; do., do., lighter than 10 oz. per sq. foot, 29c. per lb.; circles less than 84 inches in diameter, 25c. per lb.; 84 inches in diameter and over, 28c per lb.; segment and pattern sheets, 25c. per lb.; locomotive fire-box sheets, 23c. per lb.; Sheathing Copper, over 12 oz. per sq. foot, 20c per lb., and Bolt Copper, 23c. per lb. IRON—Scotch Pig sells along slowly and at about former rates, but the market is unsatisfactory and manufacturers are compelled to compete with corresponding qualities of domestic selling at lower figures. We quote $19 25@22 50 per ton according to quantity, brand, etc. American Pig is without any unusual degree of animation and shows little variation in value Differences of 25c. and even 50c. per ton are occasionally heard of under exceptional influences, but the general range of prices is not impaired. A few furnaces are delivering close to product, but as a rule the supply is ample and promptly within reach when called for. We quote $19.50@20.50 per ton for No. 1 X foundry, $18.00@19 00 for No. 2 X do. do., and $16.00@17.50 for gray forge. Old Rails are quite dull at this point, but there is said to be quite a little sale for them in the interior. Scrap Iron sells moderately and in an uncertain manner with considerable variation at times shown on cost. We quote at $17@19 for old tee rails, $20@21 for double heads, $18 50@19.00 for No. 1 wrought scrap ex ship, $9 50@10.00 for selected do., $16.50@17.00 for old car wheels, and $19.00@19 50 for crop ends. Steel Rails have not been restricted in the output as was hoped for, but some pretty large contracts, for a long time pending, are now understood to be closed and the talk is generally stronger. Indeed some agents will not negotiate below $30 00 and claim to feel indifferent at that. We quote at $28 00@31.00 per ton. Manufactured iron has been dull both for prompt delivery and on contract and rates are weak. We quote Common Merchant Bar, ordinary sizes, at 1.90@2c. from store and Refined at 2@2.40c; Rods, round and square 2.10@2.30c.; Bands, 2.40@2.50c.; Norway Nail Rods 5¼@6c., and domestic sheet on the basis of 2.70@3.00c for common Nos. 10@16. Other descriptions at corresponding prices, with 1-10c. less on large lots from cars LEAD—Domestic Pig meets with rather an uncertain demand, but the movement does not run up very full and values gain no strength to speak of. We quote at about 3⅝@3¾c. per lb., according to brand and the size of invoice handled The manufactures of lead are steady and quoted: Bar, 4½@4¾c.; pipe, 5¾c.; and sheet, 6¾c., less the usual discount to the trade; and tin-lined pipe, 15c.; block tin pipe, 40c., on same terms. TIN—Pig has found a very fair consumptive demand, and the distribution proved full enough to prevent any burdensome accumulation of stock, but unfavorable advices from abroad tend to weaken prices and keep the market in a feverish condition. We quote at 16⅝@17c. for Straits, 16¾@17⅛c. for Australian, 18½@18⅝c for English, and 20@20½c. for Banca. Tin Plates are offered moderately, but the demand appears to be slow and uncertain and the market in an unsettled condition generally. We quote I. C. Charcoal, third class assortment, $5.00@5.10 for Allaway grade, and $5.75@5 75 for Melyn grade; for each additional X add $1.25 and $1.50 respectively; I. C. Coke, $4.70@4.72½ for B. V. grade; $4 82½@4.85 for J. B. grade; Charcoal terne, $4 60@4.70 for Allaway and Dean grades 14x20; $9.25@9.60 for do. 20x28; Coke terne, $4.35@4 40 for Glais grade 14x20, and $9.15@9.20 for do. 20x28—all in round lots. Spelter has been dull and week, and only the choice brands command outside rates. We quote at 4½@4⅝c. for domestic and foreign, according to brand, quantity, etc Sheet Zinc is somewhat lower and meeting with only a moderate trade demand. We quote at 5½@6¼c., according to quality, quantity, etc.

NAILS.—Business continues of somewhat variable character, yet as a rule appears to be moving a considerable amount of stock. Nearly all regular home outlets are represented, and now and then a pretty good order for export is filled, and sellers lose no advantage. There is some complaint over the difficulty experienced in the attempt to control supplies, but the offering of stock seldom becomes really oppressive, and of standard sizes there is no actual surplus. We quote at $2 15@2.25 per keg for 10d. to 60d., according to quantity.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—Both on local and interior orders a fair amount of stock is moving and some dealers occasionally find quite an active run of business. The conditions of the market, however, are not of a stimulative character, and complaints over the ruling state of affairs are by no means uncommon Buyers in fact really have most of the advantage, and, while prices go no lower, holders of stock find that they must accept bids on old basis to secure orders Linseed Oil meeting with about average demand and quoted at 53@54c. for domestic and 56@57c for foreign. Spirits Turpentine has found fair average demand and rules about steady at 30@32c., according to quantity, package, etc.

PITCH AND TAR.—Demand not active or stimulating but there appears to be a little more trade doing than a short time ago, and at steady rates. We quote Pitch, $2 25@2 30 per bbl.; Tar, $2.50@2.00, according to quantity, quality and delivery.

JUDGMENTS.

In these lists of judgments the names alphabetically arranged, and which are first on each line, are those of the judgment debtor. The letter (D) means judgment for deficiency. (*) means not summoned. (†) signifies that the first name is fictitious, real name being unknown. Judgments entered during the week, and satisfied before day of publication, do not appear in this column but in list of Satisfied Judgments.

Communications should be addressed to

C. W. SWEET, 191 Broadway.

J. T. LINDSEY, Business Manager.

OCTOBER 25, 1884.

The various exchanges should adopt a by-law prohibiting their members from using the name of the organization for political purposes. It is commendable for any business man to be interested in the political contests of the day; but exchanges are designed to facilitate business not to help political aspirants. The various clubs in the Stock, Produce and other Exchanges are de trop; in fact they are a nuisance. The Real Estate Exchange, when it gets under way, should not permit any such foolishness.

The county tickets of the various parties have been a surprise; none more than the one put forth by the Republicans. Some time since we urged upon the various party organizations the wisdom of nominating representative real estate men, and we even ventured to mention some names which we thought would be satisfactory not only to the real estate interests but to citizens generally. The party conventions have curiously enough put into the field three gentlemen identified with real estate interests, two of them, indeed, being directly engaged in the business and one is supported by a large real estate clientele. So far so good. The candidates for Mayor are all so well known in real estate circles that it is needless for us to sound their praises or criticise their shortcomings. May the best man win.

The reduction of fares on the West Shore Road to one cent a mile is a step in the right direction, and all the principal trunk lines which do a large business should be forced to carry passengers at that rate. During the past history of railroading there has been a steady decrease of the charges on freight, but no corresponding reduction has been made in passenger fares. Freight of all kinds have to be loaded and unloaded on and off the cars and handled at the depots, but there is no such trouble or expense with passengers, who handle themselves. Yet a ton weight of human beings is charged ten and fifteen times as much as a ton weight of freight. Flour is carried between New York and Chicago at a price which would about correspond to $3.50 for a passenger. Cheaper fares of railroads would create a great development of the trade of the country, as it would increase business, stimulate traffic and give profitable employment to rolling stock. Of course roads running through a sparsely settled country could not live on one cent a mile from passengers, but the trunk lines between the great cities, which make profits on incredibly low prices for freight, could well afford to make concessions in passenger rates.

Mr. Wm. H. Vanderbilt's gift to the College of Physicians and Surgeons is a generous one and will result doubtless in giving New York another fine public building and additional prestige as the best city in the New World for securing thorough education in any of the great medical specialties. This is a much wiser benefaction than the gift of a large sum of money by the late Commodore Vanderbilt to a female college in Tennessee. The rich men who have made their money in New York should do something to adorn and add to the prestige of the metropolis. But this latest gift calls attention to the prime defect of medical education in the United States. No college which instructs physicians and surgeons should be allowed to sell diplomas to their own students. These evidences of competency in medicine and surgery should be granted by some impartial authority. Our present system is open to the gravest abuses, and under it literally thousands of incompetent saw-bones are licensed yearly to practice the medical profession. It is preposterous to permit institutions which flourish by the fees of students to be the sole judges of the proficiency of their graduates. It may be ungracious to look a gift horse in the mouth, but the other medical institutions in this city are anything but pleased at Mr. Vanderbilt's costly advertisement of one out of many deserving medical schools.

The Comptroller and the head of the tax arrears office have been notified that they must leave the new Court House, as the entire building is required for legal purposes. The time has come when another municipal building is urgently needed. Taxpayers are at a disadvantage the way matters are managed at present. The assessment rolls are kept in the Staats Zeitung building. The Croton water rents are paid in Chambers street. Taxes on real estate in the old brown stone Court House and arrearages of taxes are looked after at present in the new Court House. Other matters connected with real property are attended to in the City Hall. This is an unnecessary inconvenience to tax payers. All matters affecting real estate and taxes should be confined to one building. It is a pity that the Stewart property on Broadway and Chambers street was not secured years ago. The location is desirable and it could be easily altered so as to accommodate the city offices. What we ought to have, however, is a new municipal building which would be incombustible, and which, in addition to the tax offices, would have ample accommodations for the County Register and the County Clerk.

War on the Middlemen.

The machinery of modern industry is dispensing with the middlemen, that is, the class which stands between the producer and the consumer, and makes heavy profits out of both. All the processes of trade look towards economy. The telegraph minimizes the time necessary in which to transact business. The railway economizes space and time. The pooling arrangements of the railroads eliminates swarms of minor dealers who formerly made a living out of the transportation interests. The Standard Oil Company, for instance, not only manufactures all the kerosene used in the foreign and domestic trade, but it has entered the retail field, and in the large cities is selling direct to the consumer and taking the profits of the jobber and the retailer. The success of the co-operative movement in England has been the death of the retail trader in distributing the necessaries of life to families. Then the growth of the large concerns, such as Arnold & Constable, Macy's, Jordan & Marsh of Boston, Wannamaker of Philadelphia, Park & Tilford of New York, means the obliteration of multitudes of minor merchants who, under the conditions which formerly obtained, would have made comfortable livings if not fortunes. Throughout the financial and commercial world the big fish are eating up the little ones, and the great middle class is disappearing to be replaced in time by a few very rich and a very much larger working class.

The tendencies of governments is also to restrict the field in which fortunes have heretofore been made. The State ownership of railways in Germany and other nations on the continent reduces the number of people of moderate wealth and throws out of employment swarms of railway officials who profit at the public expense in England and this country. In Germany recently the government has ordered the purchase of all military food supplies direct from the farmers, thus dispensing with the middlemen. In this country some of the leading railway corporations, such as the Pennsylvania Central, retails coal to its employes at $3.75 a ton, thus cutting off the profits of the retailer, who charges $6.50 a ton. Several of the roads running out to Chicago allow their men to have their coal at the same price paid by the company. The retailers invite this discrimination against themselves by the extortionate price they demand for their services. Take the case of bread sold in our baker shops. Flour was never so cheap as it is to-day, but the loaves sold in our shops are no heavier than when flour cost double its present price. And so with meat; the reduction of the wholesale price never leads to any corresponding reduction in the price of meat sold to our working population.

It is premature as yet to speculate upon the consequences of this general endeavor to get rid of the middlemen, but it is clear to see that every improvement in the machinery of commerce is to do away with waste of either time or money. The telegraph, the railway, the bill of exchange, the pooling arrangements, the growth of vast establishments at the expense of small ones, the co-operative movement, but more than all the taking on of new powers by the central government, all tend to discriminate against the middlemen, the merchant, the retail dealer and all brokers save those who deal in exchanges. Indeed, as the latter grows in number and importance, their effect is to reduce the compensation of the middleman to a minimun.

Cyrus W. Field, of the Mail and Express, calls Horace White, of the Evening Post, to account for having maligned him in certain criticisms which were made on Field's conduct in the "L" railroad controversies. Field's sensitiveness touching his financial honor comes rather late, but then better late than never. It would be difficult for Mr. White or any other editor to rehabilitate Mr. Field's reputation in this community. At the same time it must be confessed that Mr. Horace White has not added to his Western reputation since his appearance in New York journalism. The tone of the Post has been lowered, and its political outgivings have been in the worst possible taste. Nearly all our leading journals have deteriorated in character and ability of late years, but none more than the journal whose editor-in-chief for nearly half a century was Wm. C. Bryant.

Two Twenty-five Foot Business Fronts.

No. 189 Broadway is an attempt of some interest to treat the intractable 25-foot store front. The difficulty of the problem is to secure the appearance of stability for a front which must have no visible means of support. In fact this requirement renders the problem not merely difficult but impossible, as the mere statement of it shows. The base of a building, to make it a work of architecture, must be visibly the strongest and most solid part of it. If the largest openings are required to be here, skillful design may give so much force to the base as to make the spectator forget that this is not so massive as the superstructure. But when, as in commercial buildings, there is a real or fancied necessity for doing away with visible supports altogether and making a front of masonry seem to stand upon a wall of plate glass, the architect is struggling with a contradiction in terms.

It is idle, however, for the owner to tell the tenant that it is not really necessary for him to have all this light to obscure with displayed goods or to diminish with awnings, and it is equally idle for the architect to urge that view upon the owner. The use of iron in the lower stories is an expedient practically effective, though it has been shown to be a very ineffective arrangement to resist fire. When iron is used, the supports may safely be attenuated to meet the tenant's views. But unless iron is used throughout, its introduction involves two different systems of proportion, one for the stronger and one for the weaker material, in the same work, and this involves to the eye an inconsistency. When this arrangement is employed, the best course is to emphasize the difference in material and give the metal the most characteristic treatment possible, so as to reduce the incongruity This is done as successfully as the conditions admit in the building of the Racquet Club in Sixth avenue. It is done also in the front of 189 Broadway.

The basement here is of a very common construction, an iron post at each end, with the whole opening spanned by a girder of the same material, upon which the wall of masonry stands. The unusual thing is that the arrangement, which is commonly concealed under a pretext of an impossible construction of some other material, or encased in an absolutely meaningless envelope of wood, is here frankly shown and emphasized. The girder is an unmistakable iron girder, with the web studded with boltheads, and the posts are unmistakable iron posts. This is an honest piece of construction, but it is not yet a piece of architecture. A still more expressive treatment and an appropriate decoration would be necessary to make it that. We cannot cite any example in which this has been done successfully, and certainly we cannot blame an architect for not inventing an iron architecture. To exhibit what one is doing is the first step towards the development of such an architecture.

The next story above the basement is a wall of brown stone with two square-headed openings, an excellent piece of masonry, the openings being so moulded as to take off the appearance of crudity that the iron basement has, without being carried too far for the purpose of a commercial building. Above this the construction is of brick and stone for several stories, the openings recessed behind one central pier and two lateral piers, which are connected above by arches, while the uppermost story is a series of small arches in a wall entirely of brick, with terra cotta keystones to the arches. There is nothing in the brickwork so effective as the story in stone from which it rises, but it is all unpretentious, sober and straightforward, and the front gives an agreeable variety in Broadway without suggesting that the designer has been racking his brains for a novelty.

Another interesting 25-foot front is No. 51 Liberty street, now in course of erection. It is a more satisfactory object than the one we have just been looking at, inasmuch as the designer was not required to achieve an architectural impossibility, and was left at liberty to set his building upon a substantial wall. The basement and first story are of brown stone, with the arched openings in the latter of unequal width, the narrower being the doorway. This disposition produces an awkward arrangement of lines, the narrower opening being covered with a round and the wider with an elliptic arch. The use of segmental arches offers a better opportunity of reconciling two arches of different spans than the forms adopted here. The design, however, is very good. The openings are not large enough to disturb the visible sufficiency of the wall, they are well modelled, and the spandrils are decorated in low relief, with graceful designs of the Italian Renaissance. Above this the whole front becomes one feature—a projecting bay, framed in iron, between two massive brick piers. This is a rational use of iron, protected as the ironwork is here by being framed in masonry. The piers are crowned with terra cotta capitals, rather extravagant in scale and in every case questionable features in such a situation, although the building at present is built no further, and it would be unfair to comment upon what is done without knowing what is to be done. If what is to come fulfils the promise of what is already in place it will be an unusually successful front.

Our Prophetic Department.

INVESTOR—Is not this a good time to buy, Sir Oracle? Surely prices cannot go much lower.

SIR ORACLE—We have been saying that for three years past, but somehow with occasional reactions stocks continue to decline. The trouble seems to be that, whereas in 1879 there was 512 persons in the country for every mile of railroad, to-day there are only 320 persons to every mile. Thus, although population and business have largely increased of late years, our railroad building has went ahead of the wants of the community. The same is true of house building in centres of population, especially the manufacturing centres. We have constructed factories and houses in advance of the wants of the population. We have changed so much floating into fixed capital that we lack means for engaging in new enterprises.

INVESTOR—How do you account then for the accumulations of money in the banks? Why, the bank balances are so large that they cannot be profitably employed.

SIR O.—There you are mistaking the effect for the cause. The reason why the little money we have is so abundant is because it is unemployed. It is the stagnation in trade, the reluctance to produce, which accounts for the unemployed money. Then there is confusion which arises from confounding currency with capital. It is the latter that is scarce.

INVESTOR—All this seems to me to be the metaphysics of finance. What I want to know is the proper time to buy and sell. What is the prospect between now and the day of the general election?

SIR O.—A dull market which any accident such as a broken bank or a great failure may turn into a bear one. There is only one event as far as I can see that would advance the price of stocks, and that would be some disposition of the West Shore road which would stop its being a competitor of the New York Central.

INVESTOR—Well, after the election, what then?

SIR O.—In my judgment there will be a lively bull movement sometime in November, based upon the better prospect of the railroads in carrying corn. These larger receipts will not occur before December, but the street never waits for the event. Good as well as bad times are always discounted. Indeed I look for a falling off in values again in December to be followed by the usual January rise.

INVESTOR—What factors are likely to operate to bring about a higher range of values?

SIR O.—First, the ending of the political uncertainty; second, the moving of the corn crop, and, third, the probability of gold coming in some quantities from the other side. We are bound to sell our cotton, grain, petroleum and provisions, no matter what the price. This will make exchange, and imports of gold always stimulate values in the stock market.

INVESTOR—Do you look for a revival of general business?

SIR O.—I cannot say that I do. The fall trade has been injured by the untimely warm weather, the farming class are poor because they have been speculating heavily in lands, and I expect to see heavy failures among dry-goods and other merchants; but the worst may not come before next February. No; the business outlook is not over-promising, but I do not believe there is any danger of a stock panic, and those who can buy good securities will secure good investments no matter what the market price may be.

Our Platform.

The following are a few of the topics we propose to discuss and advocate in this paper:

1st. A thorough reform in our land laws, so that real property can be bought and sold with as much expedition, cheapness and certainty as personal property. In other words we will never rest satisfied until a house can be transferred as readily and as cheaply as a hundred or a thousand shares of stock.

2d. We shall continue to advocate an enlargement of the powers of executive government officers at the expense of the authority now so unwisely invested in Congresses, State Legislatures and Boards of Aldermen and Supervisors, so as to secure responsible and economical government.

3d. We shall advocate a union of New York and Brooklyn, and an enlargement of the boundaries of the city in every direction, so that the metropolis may the sooner take its proper place among the great cities of the world. We believe that this consolidation of kindred local communities is essential to a complete reform in our municipal governments—that the larger and more populous the city, the better chance is there of superior men being chosen for its rulers.

4th. We shall continue to oppose the exclusive rule of any one class as we hold that the monopoly of power by one profession is hurtful to the public weal. Our courts should be thoroughly reorganized. Justice must be prompt, certain and inexpensive. This is a business age and will not long tolerate the procrastinating methods and the intolerable expenses which have heretofore characterized our court machinery.

5th. Bi-metallism will be advocated so that the commerce of the world will have the benefit of the two precious metals at their full value. History is full of warnings on this subject. Whenever the money metals have been scarce or only one has been in use the world has been impoverished ; when both are used and are abundant prosperity has been the rule in all nations.

But no commitment to theories of our own will interfere with a clear presentation from the ablest pens of all the financial and economical questions of the day.

An extensive shoe factory is about to be erected on the corner of Centre and White streets. This is another indication that capitalists are appreciating the value of New York city as a manufacturing centre. This is no longer a ship-building port, and we have lost a good deal of our jobbing trade to the interior cities, but the census shows that this city has grown to be the most important and the largest manufacturing centre in the country. The monopolizing of shoe making by the Eastern States was always a mystery. New York, as the chief distributing mart for the whole country, should long ago have had a larger part of the manufacture of boots and shoes. We should cultivate all sorts of manufacturing, and the best way to do so would be to elect a Mayor and secure legislation which will reduce taxation on real estate.

Some Interesting Interviews.

"I know Robert Garrett very well," said a well-known telegraph constructor to the writer, "and I am sure that he will seriously damage the Baltimore & Ohio Company if he retains its control. He is rather a dull young man, with a good opinion of himself and easily swayed by a crowd of people who have their own axes to grind in the various schemes they suggest to him. His telegraph enterprise is one that loses him money, and in the conduct of the fight against the Western Union he shows bad judgment. For instance, he cut down the charges one-half to all points. Now, as a matter of fact, business people who use the telegraph care less about the price than they do about the time it takes to send the message. Were I to enter the telegraph business again, I would have special rates charging as high as two dollars between here and Chicago, but I would agree to get an answer within five minutes. To business people an economy in time is of more importance than the saving of twenty-five cents on a message. A new enterprise like the Baltimore & Ohio Telegraph is at a disadvantage with a company having the resources of the Western Union. I am an outsider as regards the latter company, but I believe that it honestly earns 7 per cent. I do not think it possible for any rival company to supplant it or even to get a share in its profitable business. Young Garrett's quarrel with the Pullman Car people, the express companies, the Pennsylvania road and the Vanderbilts will end in his discomfiture at every point."

"I take no stock," said a well-known Wall street man, "in the stories so often circulated that Jay Gould is or has been in financial difficulties; I really believe that it would be a good thing for the street were that extraordinary operator to fail. There would be a deluge of Missouri Pacific, Western Union and others of his stocks thrown upon the market, but the stock liquidation would be complete and everybody who had money would rush in and buy. It would seem as if he ought to fail as a matter of natural if not poetical justice, but I happen to know that the other day Gould received a check of $600,000 as his share of the last quarterly dividend of the Western Union. His income per annum is over two millions from that one corporation. For a long time past he has been reinvesting his Western Union dividends in Western Union stock. Then his income from Missouri Pacific, Manhattan and the bonds of the Union Pacific is very large. You will notice that while the Vanderbilt dividend securities are decreasing those of the Gould stocks hold their own. I see no present evidence, not the slightest, of Gould going under."

"What do I think of the stock market outlook ?" said John G. Moore to the writer, "well, it seems mixed. The banks are in a splendid condition. They have heavy reserves and their collaterals are such that they can at once turn them into money. They will take no risks in the mercantile world and their position toward the leading operators of the street is one of entire independence. I do not believe that any great speculator could borrow a million dollars from the banks upon any ordinary security; but the future of the market is to be a puzzle. The outlook seems doubtful. I should not be surprised to see stocks go lower and would be very well satisfied if they went higher."

"There is no speculation in real estate," said ex-Mayor Smith Ely, "but the condition of the market is wholesome. There is a steady increase in business month by month and year by year. This is shown by the conveyances in the Register's Office. Investment property is in good demand, more particularly business property, while lots in the line of immediate improvement do not go begging; but there is, as I said, no speculation. It is like the leather business, with which I am familiar. People must keep on wearing boots and shoes, and as our population increases there is a better demand for leather. But speculative periods when more leather is called for than the market wants are very rare. So with real estate. I insist that all the recent sales here in the Exchange showed fair average prices. There is no present demand for high-priced houses, but there are plenty purchasers for good investment property and lots that will soon be built upon."

"I have no fault to find with the fall renting," said Mr. S. F. Jayne. "There is a dearth of the kind of houses I have in charge, but of course I speak only of the district to which my business is confined, that is south of Central Park, and mainly on the west side. I am told that the large and costly flats are not doing well. That the suites of rooms have had to be offered for from 10 to 30 per cent. below former prices. Nor is there any call for houses of costly rentals; but the demand for moderate houses to rent is in excess of the supply. I daily have calls from persons who wish to pay moderate rents for residences which I cannot meet. My impression is that the population of the city is steadily increasing, and that there are no more houses built than are really needed. The strikes have been a bad thing, for they have put a stop to building and injured no class more than the workmen themselves."

"There was never a better time to build than now," said Mr. Cyrus Clark recently. "Building material of all kind are low, in fact never so cheap. Just look for instance at lumber and brick. The only item at all formidable is that of labor; but then the collapse of the strikes has so lowered the prestige of the labor unions that employers can do far better than in times past. They now can choose their men and get 25 per cent. more out of them than when business was brisk, for then the unions would employ a walking committeeman who put a stop to workmen doing more than an average day's labor. The man who could lay 2,500 brick were forced by the public opinion of their fellows and the trade unions to lay only a thousand or fifteen hundred, but there is an end to this foolishness. I am interested in the west side and I look for quite a heavy building movement next spring in that quarter. The rate of wages must come down and no builder will be afraid to take contracts. I repeat that it is a good time to build."

It has over and over again been suggested in these columns that elevators should be placed at various elevated road stations where the ascent to be made is unusually high. There are three points at which they are sorely needed for the aged and infirm. These are at Eighth avenue and One Hundred and Sixteenth street, Second avenue and Ninety-second street and Second avenue and Fiftieth street. At the first-named station private enterprise will eventually supply the needed means of ascent, but at the two latter places it is high time that the Manhattan Company erected elevators for the convenience of their passengers. At Ninety-second street sixty-two stairs have to be climbed, and at Fiftieth street sixty-five. The writer was ascending the latter recently and half-way up overtook an old gentleman, out of breath and looking very much exhausted, and on proffering him his arm to assist him to the top of the stairs, he said "Yes, sir, sixty five steps. I've got to do it every day. I can't get to business down town quick enough by the horse cars, and I am forced to go by the elevated roads. It is the same thing coming home. It takes too long by the street cars. Well, I guess I'll have to go on doing it till I die." Now, why should this be so? Why does not the elevated railroad company erect elevators at these high stations for the use of aged folk, and for the numbers of men and women suffering from diseases which make the ascent a torture to them ? The increased business which would result from the erection of these elevators would compensate a hundred fold for the cost of machinery, plant and working expenses, as there are thousands of people who would then use the elevated roads who now use horse cars in consequence of their infirmities.

W. F. Morse announces an international star series of entertainments at Chickering Hall during November and December, which address themselves to that portion of the public that does not depend solely upon the theatre for its amusement. There is nothing of the variety show in these entertainments; the evenings are occupied alternately by Shakespearian readings by Mr. Samuel Brandram; an Illustrated Tour of Foreign Travel, by Mr. Henry H. Ragan, who is a native of New York State, a graduate of Yale, and whose "Glimpses of Scotland," "Walks in Wales and the Isle of Wight," and "Ramblings in Spain" have won the highest encomiums. With these will be associated three lectures by Prof. R. A. Proctor, whose lectures on "The Sun," "Planets, and Their Families," and "Comets and Meteors" will take place early in December and be illustrated by the oxyhydrogen light. The musical feature will be evening concerts given by the famous Hungarian band of singers and instrumentalists, and afternoon recitals of chamber music. The programme is novel and brilliant, and the course—tickets promise to be all taken up in a very brief space of time.

Amos R. Eno is again to be seen in his old haunts around Pine street and lower Broadway. The unfortunate occurrences of last June kept him away from the real estate market for several months, but on Wednesday last he turned up at the Exchange and was an interested looker-on at the sale of the estate of Catherine B. Fish. Mr. Eno has been forced to dispose of a good deal of his property to meet the debts caused by his son's recklessness; but in time he will doubtless be in the market again to pick up any good property that is offered at low prices.

Mr. John H. Sherwood has entirely recovered his health and is again in harness for active business. Mr. Sherwood has in view several improvements to add to the value of property north of the Central Park.

Home Decorative Notes.

—Among the new fancies are the Italian aprons made of silk or linen, with bands of lace insertion and edging, and Greek aprons of satin or surah richly decorated with embroidery.

—An extremely pretty work pocket is of bright yellow silk and decorated with poppies wrought in chenille.

—A very elegant candelabra of Royal Worcester has three branches of gold and black, with broad leaves; the branches bear pink lotus flowers, and the base is formed of three leaves, on one of which is perched a small green frog.

—Among the new designs in embroidery are disks with sprays of flowers, gayly plumaged birds, butterflies of brilliant coloring, and geometrical figures wrought in them.

—White Astrachan rugs are now used on dark wood floors.

—Doilies of very fine linen lawn are embroidered with blue silk; tiny blue silk tassels are caught in with the fringe.

—A call at the attractive rooms of Joseph McHugh & Co., of No. 3 West Forty-second street, will show one very readily of the advances made in furnishing and art matters during the past ten or fifteen years; their order work is done for the finest houses, and from original designs, particular attention is also given to interior decoration; a new and very beautiful material extensively used by this firm for hangings and upholstry purposes is the Sultan plush, which may be procured in the most exquisite shades.

—Silk sheeting is an admirable material for a fire screen, and a very effective design for the embroidery is a mass of deep maroon chrysanthemums, shading to the dull pinks common to these flowers.

—A long round cushion to support the head is a very essential addition to the luxury of a rocking chair; it may be of any soft material, shaped like a bolster and stuffed with wool, then a cord is attached to both ends by means of which it hangs over the back of the chair.

—Fine table-cloth linens show many new and beautiful patterns, among the newest designs are square satin blocks, moons and crescents in the centre and sides, the lily-of-the-valley is a delicate and favorite pattern; carving cloths have sprung into popularity and are generally purchased to accompany handsome table-cloths.

—An interesting screen panel has an oblong of old gold Turkish satin with a branch of rich purple grapes wrought in velours, the whole effect is very rich and elegant.

—A modern freak of fashion is to imitate from the antique specimens a table-cloth made of several breadths of damask, joined by an insertion one-fourth of an inch in width executed in a variety of open herring-bone stitch and worked in cotton to match the prominent color of cross-stitch embroidery, which further serves to decorate the cloth, this embroidery may be in red or blue cotton a la Russe.

—Brass bedsteads with four high posts are the latest fancy in those durable and handsome pieces for chamber furnishing.

—An exceedingly attractive oblong pin-cushion has a cover of olive green plush decorated with a bunch of pomegranates, the leaves and stems are worked up in various shades of olive green embroidery silk, while the pomegranates are wrought in feather stitch with orange and red silk crossed with gold, plush crescents in colors corresponding with the embroidery surround the four sides of the cushion.

—Colored bronzes applied to ceiling decoration light up well and are effective at night.

—Mother of pearl after a long rest comes to the fore again and appears in various articles of use and beauty.

—A highly artistic fire-place in bronze has a back representing in high relief two salamanders or fire fiends grappled in combat, their mouths, eyes and fore talons forming a wierd tableau back of the flames, while their tails in rich volutes decorate the sides of the cavity.

—A bag for an opera glass is made of terra cotta plush, the shirr an inch or more from the top, a wide satin ribbon corresponding in shade forms the handle.

—Window curtains of colored China silks extending the whole length of the sash are intended to give a pretty tint to the room, rose pink and yellow are the colors most in favor.

—Polished brass tea urns are reinstating the silver of the past.

—A novel umbrella holder is a hugh dolphin of mahogany elaborately carved, the mouth of the grotesque creature, which is extended and lined with brass, forms the receptable for the umbrella.

—The Queen Anne darning stitch is still popular and is seen in a greater variety of forms that last season.

—Turkish lanterns adapted to gas fixtures shed their soft colored light through many halls.

—Scrim is used as a ground work for coverlids embroidered in Kensington stitch, peacock feathers scattered here and there in bunches of two and three in a place are very effective as decoration for these spreads, the design may be wrought with colored silks or very fine crewels; a round bolster should accompany this spread and also adorned with feathers thrown on at random.

—The demand for old furniture has been a steady one for a dozen years or more, and the desire for the possession of antique designs one that will probably exist for many years, there is a good deal of antique furniture so called that has just come fresh from the factory, and many persons prefer new furniture made in imitation of the old to the antique itself, the price is just as high and sometimes higher; the latest craze is for antique clocks; a large variety of Dutch clocks in very elegant cases and sufficiently antiquated to suit the most fastidious are now offered by Sypher & Co., of Broadway and Seventeenth street.

Rufus Hatch Replied to by a Real Estate Broker.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

As a real estate broker largely interested in the renting of offices "below Chambers street," I respectfully ask a little of your valuable space with a view to correct, if possible, the impression that careless readers are likely to form from opinions expressed in your last issue by so eminent a personage as Mr. Rufus Hatch, as well as to afford me an opportunity to ventilate my own views.

I will not attempt to question his statement that there have been 3,000 new offices provided south of Chambers street in the last two years, because I have not counted them, though I wish some one who has the time would do so, as positive knowledge of the fact would add force to my argument. I wish, however, that it may be borne in mind that these 3,000 offices are largely on the sites of former offices, and not in new buildings covering former vacant lots, except the new Mutual Life building.

Neither will I question Mr. Hatch's judgment as to the number of buildings that are fully occupied and are "paying investments." I assume that his idea of "paying investments" must necessarily be formed from his experience with the right side of the stock market. As I know nothing about this, I will attempt no comparisons. I do, however, "think" that there is not a piece of office property in the district he names that will not pay, well, say 5 per cent. on its actual value, if properly managed, which, I believe, in these 3 per cent days is generally considered a "paying" rate. He admits that at least one building probably pays 33⅓ per cent. net. I confess to the "extortion" of as much from another building, and from that all the way down to 6 per cent. on the actual values of about all I manage.

But the point I wish to make is emphasized by Mr. Hatch's "experience as a tenant" of an office in a "tumble-down old edifice," costing originally but $16,000. This office, for which he paid in 1865 $8,500, now rents for $1,200. What does this prove? That rents are off? I claim that it only shows that things have changed in twenty years. What were called "offices" in 1865 are called "lofts" in 1884, though such as he describes do not now rent at war prices. Rooms with 12-inch hemlock floors, ceilings 8 feet high, windows 2x6, glazed six lights to the sash, and furnished with pine tables, hard chairs and sawdust box spittoons, are not now in demand, though goodness knows how soon they may be fashionable. The demand of the times is for such offices as now occupy the site of 17 Broad street, which are but samples of the thousands that are being provided in the office centres of this great city; in short the popular taste has been educated up to a higher standard. But other causes have operated to produce these results. New York is growing at the rate of many thousands in population every year. The natural increase in the number of business men creates an ever-growing demand for offices. New York is the recognized commercial centre of the Western Hemisphere. Every concern of importance in the world finds it convenient, if not necessary, to have representation here. The methods of conducting business to day make two or three offices essential where one sufficed formerly. The facilities for communication, travel and transportation that the past quarter century has produced have completely metamorphosed the commercial business of this country. It is no longer necessary to carry large stocks of merchandise in immense stores in New York. Even the dry-goods trade begins to recognize this fact. The largest manufacturers to-day sell by sample, or brand, or catalogue in small offices and ship direct from place of manufacture at immense saving of time, rent, cartage and wear and tear.

The grain that will not be planted until next spring will be sold a hundred times over by as many different office occupants before the seed is ready to sow. The same is true of oil as yet not struck, gold and silver undiscovered, wool on the backs of sheep unborn, and so on ad lib.

Although we real estate brokers have only made a beginning in this direction, we, too, expect before another year to be auctioning off quarter sections of the North Pole, undiscovered farms in Africa and town lots in the swamps of Florida, and "shares—?" Speaking of shares, there is the stock interest, tremendous in its possibilities, and —, but I will not attempt the subject. Mr. Hatch knows all about it, and about the hundreds of brokers whose business it is to sell matter before it is created, and water its prospective profits with the ocean of "expectations." All these people require offices, and generally that is all they do require. If these have to be within jumping distance of the great Exchanges, so much the worse for the brokers, but they need not blame the owners of surrounding property for accepting rents the brokers themselves fix. These offices may cost a year's rent to decorate in a style to suit the taste these modern financiers affect. Then there are chances to be considered in the matter of collecting the rents, to say nothing of operating expenses.

My observation of this whole subject leads me to the conclusion that there is also here a law of supply and demand that regulates the building up of a city or any portion of a city, and, while it may be true (which I do not admit) that there is a surplus of offices just now that were made to supply a former demand, this is due solely to the present depressed condition of business, and, while this state of things will stop building temporarily, when business does revive there will not be enough offices to go around, rents will again go up, new buildings will follow until another healthy reaction sets in, and so, I take it, there will always be an "up and down," each "up" taking us to a higher plane of values, until in time real estate in New York city will command as high prices as that in any city in the world, if not far higher.

Applying this law of supply and demand locally, it may not be illogical or unreasonable to expect that the same cause that makes large cities larger, viz., the disposition of the human race to herd, may also operate to concentrate the office district about the great Exchanges that are building for the centuries, until in time the demand for room will result in the erection of twenty-story steel buildings covering entire blocks with parks in the centre, streets on the roof, elevators in every corner, moving sidewalks all around, each floor and the building generally containing in itself all the elements of a city. Though this may be what our friend might call discounting the future, nevertheless it is as likely to happen as some of his predictions. I might say with him; "much more could be added, but it is unnecessary" (more stories, I mean).

Respectfully, FERDINAND FISH.

All About Tiles.

LARGE SALES OF DOMESTICS—THEIR GROWING SUPERIORITY—INCREASED BUSINESS DURING THE PAST YEAR—ADVANCE IN PUBLIC TASTE—SPLENDID PROSPECTS AHEAD.

"We are selling more than double the quantity of tiles we sold last year," said William G. Flammer, secretary of the American Encaustic Tile Co. "Our sales in 1883 amounted to about 485,000 square feet and in 1882 nearly 280,000. This year our books show that we have sold about 1,000,000 square feet. The general dullness in trade does not seem to have affected us. Our hands are working night and day, and we are unable to fill our orders. We do a larger trade in the West than in the East. But while we sell more goods in the West, we find that the choice in the East is more æsthetic. New York is the leading centre both in style and taste. There is a growing demand from the South, and we ship to such places as New Orleans, Charleston, Lynchburg, Louisville and Dallas, Texas. There is very little demand from South America. What there is of it is mostly Spanish, and the buyers are more bent on getting a cheap than a tasteful article. The great drawback is that they can't lay tile and we can't send men so far away as South America to do the work. I think American manufactured are in every respect as good as English tiles. They are as artistic as the latter and the embossed and relief tiles are as good. There was a time, of course, when the domestic article could not compare with the English, but during the past three or four years we have been perfecting the process of manufacture on this side of the water, and we are now able to turn out as good an article as the English. We are not employing a single European in our factories. We have 235 hands, all of whom are Americans. Seven years ago we only had ten hands. The cost of labor is higher with us than it was two or three years ago, as is the cost of material. Oxide of zinc, cobalt, umber, manganese and many other chemicals used in the process of manufacture are all higher. Notwithstanding this we are able, with our improved machinery and owing to the large quantities sold by us, to sell at the same figures. The industry is still in its infancy and we expect a larger business year after year."

"Business during the past season has not been as satisfactory as we might have desired," said Thos. Aspinwall & Son. "The crash in Wall street, no doubt, diminished the number of private residences built this season, while the strikes in the building trade seriously affected everyone connected with the supply of material for buildings. We import the best and most artistic class of tiles of different manufacturers. We find that the tendency in America is more and more towards goods of a higher taste. People seem to be using tiles as extensively as they do in England, where they are placed on the walls of buildings, hotels, restaurants, private houses and stores. They are being specially demanded for mantels and grates. I think the domestic tiles are good, some of them very good, but I don't think they are quite up to the English tile."

"We find things first-class," said Orrin D. Person. "We have never done as much business as we have done this year. We are full of orders. Our sales are fifty per cent. larger than they were in 1883. In that year we sold 10,000 squares, which is equivalent to 1,000,000 tiles, a square consisting of 100 tiles. By the end of this year we expect we shall have sold 1,500,000 considering the orders we have on hand. We do a large trade West and South, and we did a first-class business throughout New York State during the past year. We find the price of labor and the cost of material about the same as they were a year ago. We have about eighty hands at work at present. Our prices have not varied. Our roofing tiles are manufactured in various patterns—the diamond, round corner, etc.—in red and buff. We have had a large call for other shades, and we propose shortly to manufacture them in all colors."

Gardens in the Air.

The utilization of house-tops as gardens was long ago advocated by O. B. Bruce in Appleton's Journal. This beautifying the roof by substituting flowers for pulley lines has been adopted by a Boston lady, who occupies the two upper stories of a white marble building near the corner of Washington street and Temple place. Passers-by are much edified at this unusual display, and often take a devious course to catch a glimpse of it. Why should not the flower garden on the roof become an institution among us? Here is an open space "far from the madding crowd" overlooking the city for miles in every direction, away from the summer's stifling heat indoors and bearing a charm and novelty fully compensating for the trouble and expense incurred in planting the flowers and tending their growth. The ancients sought the house-top in the cool of the evening, and in southern and Oriental climes the custom still survives. There are houses in this city whose roofs would give a space of from 1,000 to 2,000 square feet for planting purposes, and the imagination calls up with pleasure the scene of rows of streets with thousands of families enjoying the balmy breeze of a summer's eve on the house-tops, surrounded by flowers planted with their own hands. Indeed New York is specially fitted for this. In no city in the Union is there such a vast congregation of houses and so few gardens. For miles it is naught but brick and stone. Gardens and shrubberies are rare. European cities present a great contrast to this. Gardens front and back of houses meet the eye everywhere. Land is too valuable in this city for garden space; why not create it, therefore, on the house top? Our large apartment palaces might be made more attractive by utilizing the large space on their roofs for this purpose. The proposed addition to the "Florence" is to contain a flower-garden with fountain for the use of guests which is to be 40 square feet in size, and the large apartment building on the northwest corner of Fifty-seventh street and Seventh avenue is to have a croquet lawn on its spacious roof. These are steps in the right direction and a great deal of pleasure might be afforded to thousands of families if they emulated the example of the lady whose botanical ingenuity has evoked the admiration of the cultivated Bostonians.

Exhaustion of the Public Lands.

Apropos of our remarks on Spaulding's book on the public lands comes the report which has been submitted by Commissioner McFarlane to the Secretary of the Interior on the operations of that office for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1884, from which it appears that the sales, entries and selections of public lands were 26 834,041 acres, and of Indian lands 697,129, a total of 27.531,170, or an increase over the preceding year of 8,101,137, and over 1882 of 13,222,003 acres. The receipts from public lands sold were $12,779,130, being an increase over the previous year of $1,073,364, and over 1882 of $4,392,750. The total number of entries and filings was 286,812, aggregating 40,625,000 acres, being a slight increase over 1883. The agricultural patents numbered 51,337, an increase of 855, and the entries under pre-emption and other laws 60,276, an increase of 6,429. The number of private cash entries was 9,894, and 3,206,095 acres were sold under the pre-emption law, an increase of 920,385 acres over the preceding year. The amount of receipts from cash sales was $10,302,582, an average of a fraction over $1.32 per acre. Three thousand one hundred and eighteen tracts of land, embracing 200,002 acres, were sold at public sale, at an average price of $2.94 an acre. The commissioner recommends the repeal of the pre-emption laws. He finds that the most valuable lands are entered in fictitious names, and that lands thus become speculative holdings. The commutation feature of the homestead law is equally abused. The repeal of the Desert Land Law and the Timber and Stone Land Act is recommended, owing to the fraudulent practices of speculators in these lands. The railroad grants were 8,343,154 acres, an increase of 6,423,318 over 1883, and lists of selections aggregating 11,861,608 acres were awaiting action at the end of the fiscal year. The railroad mileage reported constructed under various grants during the year was 1,076, making a total of 18,525 up to date. The issue of patents has been suspended in all cases affected by pending Congressional action on the forfeiture of certain railroad grants. The total of 52,796,520 acres of land was surveyed by the United States during the year. After dealing with the unsettled private land claims of New Mexico, Colorado and Mexico, the commissioner makes a very important statement: "The time is near at hand," says he, "when there will be no public lands to invite settlements or afford citizens of the country an opportunity to secure cheap homes. Meanwhile vast stretches of uncultivated lands are everywhere observable, title to which has been acquired by evasions of law. The time has fully arrived when wastefulness should cease, and that that portion still remaining should be economized for the use of actual settlers only. An act reserving the public lands, except mineral and timber reserves for entry under the homestead law, with amendments to prevent evasion of its wise restrictions, would be a measure meeting this end." In conclusion, the commissioner points out the necessity for the immediate adoption of some measure by which the natural forests may be preserved at the head waters of important rivers and their tributaries, and in such other situations where their preservation is expedient for climatic effect and other reasons of utility. He says there is no good reason why lands, worth from $25 to $100 per acre for timber should be sold for $1.25 and $2.50 per acre, as at present, and he favors the withdrawal from sale or entry under existing laws of all the distinctively timber lands of the United States until an examination and appraisement of them can be made. After examination permanent timber reserves should be established where deemed desirable, and provision made for the sale at not less than appraised valueof the remainder.

Appraisement of Advertised Property.

The Real Estate Chronicle continues its estimate of the value of property advertised for sale in the public press. Of course, there is always a question as to the appraisement put upon any real estate. There is no absolute standard. What is valuable to one purchaser does not seem so desirable to another. People who sell property want to get a top price, and they resent of course any lower figure than they ask. Mr. Goodman in the Chronicle probably errs on the side of the purchaser, and some of the statements made to us make a good case, not against his sincerity, but his judgment. The following are his appraisements condensed from this week's Chronicle:

The question has arisen out in Kansas as to whom a homestead belongs after the owner of it dies; one-half of it belongs to his wife certainly, but in the case of Martindale vs. Smith the husband had made his will, giving the whole of the homestead to his wife, and it was claimed that he could not will away one-half of it, but that that half would go to his son, who did not occupy it as a homestead, and who resided in another State; the Supreme Court of Kansas have declared that the will was valid and that the wife could have the whole.

An Important Decision to Real Estate Brokers.

A decision was rendered a few days since in the case of Fox vs. Byrnes, which was tried before Judge Truax and a jury in the Superior Court, that is of considerable interest to real estate brokers. It seems that on May 8th last, Matthew Byrnes employed Thomas Fox, a broker, to sell four lots on the corner of Sixth avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street and his country seat at Stamford, Conn. Fox procured a customer, Bernard Spaulding, who offered, in exchange for the above property, the Englewood apartment house on the corner of Lexington avenue and Eighty-first street, which was satisfactory to Mr. Byrnes. Upon May the 13th the contract was to be signed, but on that day Byrnes informed Spaulding that he had transferred his property to his son, Matthew Byrnes, Jr., and that he had sole control of it. Two days later, Spaulding and Byrnes, Jr., signed a contract for the exchange of the property upon the same terms as those made by Fox, whereupon the latter claimed his commission, and Byrnes refused to pay it. The broker brought suit, and on May 20th, through his lawyers, served the papers in the case, whereupon Byrnes, Sr., transferred the property in question to Byrnes, Jr. The jury returned a verdict for the full amount claimed, $1,280, and, in affirming their decision, Judge Truax said that an owner of property who employed a broker to sell it for him could not dissolve his liability to the latter by merely disposing of his property if the brok r procured a customer upon the terms agreed upon. S. A. & D. J. Noyes appeared for the plaintiff, and Arnoux, Ritch & Woodford for th deefendant.

It is as much a matter of course for a court of equity to decree specific performance of a written contract respecting real property as it is for a court of law to give damages for the breach of it, provided the contract is certain, fair in all its parts, for an adequate consideration, and capable of being performed. And a mistake in a written contract may be proven by parol, and the contract rectified, and then specific performance ordered in the same suit. This was done in the suit of Poppline vs. Foley, determined by the Court of Appeals of Maryland, where the contract was for a lease which was intended to be for ninety-nine years, renewable forever, and the contract omitted to state for how long a time the lease was to be made.

If you buy land bounded by a stream you want to be careful how the contract and deed are worded as to the boundaries. Unless the terms of the deed clearly show the intention to stop at the margin of the river, simply bounding upon the river, or its margin (provided it is above tide water), will give the buyer to the centre thread of the current; but this is only presumption, for one man may own the bed of such a stream and another man may own the banks. The Supreme Court of Illinois, in the suit of Piper vs. Connelly, say that the question of intention must be settled by the language of the deed and by all the attendant circumstances in evidence. So the best way is, as we said above, to have it all clearly expressed in writing.

If you hire a piece of land for, say six years, and do not have the lease n writing, it is void under what is called the statute of frauds. But where a lessee, by virtue of such a lease, takes possession of the property, and continues in possession over five years, such lease will be taken out of the statute, because it has been partly performed, and will be valid for the rest of the term of the lease.

One would think that the diminution of water power arising from improvements to a navigable stream by the State Legislature would amount to a "taking" within the meaning of the statue, but Judge Shipman, of the United States Circuit Court, has decided in the suit of the Holyoke Water Power Company vs. Connecticut River Company that this is not so, that damages thus arising to the owner of the adjoining shore are too remote. An interesting question in this suit was whether the owner of property situated in one State could recover damages caused by the exercise of the right ot eminent domain by the Legislature of an adjoining State (in which the property is not situated); this question has never arisen before, and as the judge decided as above stated, it has not yet been finally determined.

Out in Colorado some private parties tried to copy the records of the County Clerk's office, and the Supreme Court there has held that, while those records are to be opened to any person for inspection during business hours, the clerk cannot be compelled by mandamus to allow private parties to occupy his office for months, in order to make abstracts of the entire record of the county for the purpose of making money by the sale of abstracts of title, and to continue to occupy it every day thereafter to make abstracts from the conveyances as they are filed. This is bad tor the Colorado Title Co. The same court has also decided that if the papers are properly made out for record, and the Recorder makes a mistake in recording them, that will not excuse or benefit the persons who deal in the property according to the records as he has made them. This is bad for the owners of property, and is one of those mistakes which would be absolutely prevented by a properly managed Title Company, indexing conveyances, mortgages, &c., by a locality index, and not by a name index.

Sometimes the buyer of a piece of property which is sold by trustees under a will, who are ordered by the will to invest or pay over the proceeds of the sale in some particular manner, fears that it is his duty to follow the matter up and see that the trustees apply the money as the will di ects, but this is not so, and the decision has been reiterated by the Maryland Court of Appeals, in the suit of Keister vs. Scott, that where the di-position of the proceeds depends in any material particular upon the discretion of the trustees, or where an interval must or may properly elapse between the sale and the application of the purchase money, or where the trustees are required to sell and invest for the same trusts, the purchaser will be freed from liability by a payment to the trustees, and will not be responsible for a subsequent misappropriation by the latter.

A verdict for $3,250 was rendered on October 15th by a jury, before Judge Barrett, against Walter L. Ranney and Catharine H. Ranney, as executors of Dr. Lafayette Ranney, deceased, for the refusal of the latter in his lifetime to convey to Dr. Louis De V. Wilder, the plaintiff, the house now occupied by the latter at No. 237 West Thirty-fourth street, New York, in accordance with a contract Lafayette Ranney had made as one of the executors of his brother, Dr. Henry D. Ranney, deceased. A prior action to compel a specific performance of the contract had been defeated on the ground that Thomas Russell, a co-executor with Lafayette Ranney, had not also signed the contract, the Court of Appeals holding that the estate of Henry D. Ranney was not bound without the action of both the executors. This second suit followed against Lafayette Ranney personally for damages for breach of the contract and for his assuming to act for both executors without authority; and he having died before the trial, the verdict went against his son and widow as his executors.

Financial Points.

The weakness in Western Union is said to be due to negotiations pending between Robert Garrett and Wm. K. Vanderbilt. It is known that the B. & O. telegraph line is losing money heavily and is a grievous burden to Mr. Garrett. The Vanderbilts, it is rumored, in continuing their war against Mr. Jay Gould propose to take hold of the Baltimore & Ohio Telegraph Company and to make it a real rival to the Western Union. In addition to the railroads they have a proprietary interest in tens of thousands of miles of telegraph wires leased to the Western Union. These they may turn over to the B. & O. It is said that Wm. H. Vanderbilt has always been sore over the way he was tricked into surrendering Western Union for Union Pacific stock, and he is anxious to give Jay Gould a "Roland for his Oliver." Should this programme be carried out the Baltimore & Ohio will withdraw its support from the West Shore, and a handsome deal in the Vanderbilt stocks will be in order.

Petroleum on its merits is said to be worth 90 cents a barrel, notwithstanding the great production of the gushers like the Phillips & Christie wells. The consumption, especially the domestic consumption, is increasing amazingly, and the production does not keep up with the demand for oil.

Notwithstanding the blue outlook of the stock market there are a number of wealthy operators picking up stocks as they believe that November will see an important rise in prices. They think that some morning it will be announced that the West Shore difficulty has been disposed of, and then the gold imports will help to stimulate a market all ready for a handsome rise. The Vanderbilts will lead the advance as they have the decline.

The number of delinquents in the Real Estate Exchange and Auction Room (Limited) out of 500 stockholders is now reduced to two. One of these, Mr. Charles Treichel, has sold his stock through Messrs. Edey Bros., and there is no trace of the buyer's name. The buyer would do well to redeem the stock, which is now selling freely at par, before the 5th day of November, at which time it will be sold at auction.

A Needed Local Railroad.

The Manhattanville, St. Nicholas Avenue & Forty-second Street Rail road are pushing forward their road bed as fast as possible. Wm. Wharton, of Philadelphia, has the contract for building all that portion of the road above Forty-second street. The road, when finished, will be about fourteen miles in length, in fact nearly double that of any other in the city. Mr. Wharton has made a commencement on One Hundred and Tenth street, East River, and already has several blocks under way. The company expect, with favorable weather, to have the west branch up Broadway and the Boulevard, at least as far as Seventy-second street, ready before Chistmas.

The Forty-second street section is increasing daily in its receipts, now reaching nearly $700. The road will shortly be finished to the East River, and when completed with its further extension to Thirty-fourth street Ferry, will then connect with the Long Island Railroad, which must contribute to swell its receipts to probably $1,000 per day—a sum amply sufficient to pay interest upon its bonds and a moderate dividend upon the stock. This estimate is for the Forty-second street section alone without taking into calculation the receipts and daily growth of the upper section. This exhibit shows how much this road was needed. Most roads have to wait to build up their business with the growth of the locality. Even the Third avenue road is an instance of this. It is estimated that from 80,000 to 100,000 people enter or depart daily from the Grand Central Depot. This alone is a good sized city of itself, and it therefore ought not to be a surprise, as we understand it has been to experienced horse railroad managers, that some of the one-horse cars in Forty-second street have turned in $30 per day—a thing heretofore unprecedented in horse railroad experience.

The question of the durability of small wrought-iron pipes for conveying water often comes before the architect, but seems to be less frequently considered by those better fitted to obtain definite information on the subject. According to the Sanitary News, the superintendent of the Philadelphia water supply, Col. Ludlow, recently read a paper before the Engineers' Club of that city, in which he stated, as the result of his experience, that wrought-iron pipe cannot be depended upon, when laid under ground, to carry its full volume of water for more than ten or twelve years. In one case, where a service pipe had been in for about twelve years, the pressure in the main of seventeen pounds to the square inch was reduced in the house, at nearly the same level, to seven pounds, by obstructions in the pipe; and other pipes when taken up had been found nearly closed. This agrees with the experience of most others who have used wrought-iron pipes; but Col. Ludlow is said to have reported that a coating of coal-tar pitch on the inside of the pipe would prevent deposit, but we think the evidence tends to show that, as tarred pipes are generally used, the rusting still goes on at the joints to a serious extent.

The World of Business.

The Latest Theory of Depression.

The nature and causes of commercial panic and depression has been a favorite study of economists, especially in modern times. The number of theories which are evolved each year, thrust upon the attention of the public and knocked out of shape by an unforseen and unexpected turn of affairs, is something marvelous. One of the theories which has become a favorite in certain quarters is that panics are governed by some mysterious law of periodicy. If one must have a reason for everything, this attempt to induce arithmetical formularies on economic science is perhaps as harmless as any that might be suggested. As a matter of fact the relations between industrial agents and communities have become so complex that the interpretation of phenomena and problems is an exceedingly difficult matter. A war, a pestilence, a series of prosperous seasons, a period of general dearth, may affect the economical condition of the world. A new and very ingenious theory as to the causes which lead to periods of high prosperity and extreme depression was given to the public at the recent meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Mr. William Kent in the form of an elaborate paper entitled "Irregularity in Railroad Building and Recent Business Depressions." The paper has been briefly summarized as follows:

The author presented a table of statistics for each year from 1860 to 1883, inclusive, of miles of railroad built in the United States, of production of pig iron, iron rails, steel rails and of rolled iron other than rails, of rail importations, of prices of pig iron and of iron and steel rails and of immigration; also, a diagram made from the figures, which showed how the fluctuations in railroad building, in production, importation and prices and in immigration coincide with each other. The speaker divided the twenty-four years from 1860 to 1883, inclusive, into four periods:

1. The period of modern development, 1860–68, in which railroads built, pig iron and rails produced and number of immigrants all increased at an even rate.

2. The first period of violent development, 1869–73, inclusive, in which railroad building, pig iron and rail production, importation and prices and immigration all enormously increased.

3. The period of depression, 1874–78, characterized by diminished rate of railroad building, diminished production and greatly diminished prices of pig iron and rails in almost absolute cessation of importation of rails and in greatly diminished immigration.

4. The second period of violent development, 1879–83, characterized by great increase of railroad building, of production of pig iron, of production and importation of rails, of immigration and of prices.

It was shown that the actual cost of railroads built in 1875 was more than $200,000,000 less than that of the railroads built in 1872; that the cost of rails produced in 1875 was over $47,000,000 less than in 1872; of rails imported $44,000,000 less, and of pig iron produced $82,000,000 less. The decrease in expenditure for railroad building of $200,000,000 caused the throwing out of employment of many thousands of laborers, the stoppage of mines, furnaces, mills and equipment shops of all kinds, diminished the incomes of remaining employed and consequently their purchasing power. The effect was continued distress throughout the whole commercial world.

Mr. Kent believes, therefore, that irregularity in railroad building is the chief proximate cause of both the depression of business of 1873–78 and that through which we are now passing. The present depression, according to Mr. Kent, is because too many miles of railroad were built in 1879–83, and too few will be built in 1884–88 to keep our furnaces and mills (whose capacity can easily build 12,000 miles per year) employed. In other words, the railroads are not built at the right time. The essayist has a great deal to say about the "insanity of capital," which he defines as "the spirit which takes a fever at one time and causes speculation and overconfidence in the stability of all things financial; at another it is in a state of collapse and causes stoppage of the best investments, decline of the best securities, want of confidence and panic." The "insanity of capital," so we are assured, "is the only explanation that can be offered of the strange delusion which leads men to build railroads in the years when it costs the most to build them, and in not building them when they cost least. In 1877 and 1878 iron and steel of all kinds touched the lowest figures reached during the century, and the wages of labor were lower than they had been since the beginning of the war. The country was then really prosperous, and there was an abundance of money waiting for investment. Yet in each of these years there were fewer miles of railroad built than in 1876, and fewer than in any of the six years from 1868 to 1873, inclusive, in which prices of iron and steel were more than double and wages of labor nearly double what they were in 1877 and 1878. In 1879 railroad building began again, and what might be called the reasonable number of 4,721 miles were constructed in that year, but the insanity of capital pushed the prices of iron and steel up to the extravagant figures of February, 1880, which should have checked every railroad enterprise. But, instead of checking, the high prices seemed to increase the fever, and, notwithstanding continued high prices, the insanity did not reach its climax until it had caused the building of 11,591 miles in 1882."—Age of Steel.

The Record of Failures.

The insolvency record of the passing year as compiled by the commercial agencies does not indicate that the country has yet passed out of the trough of the sea of business troubles. Bradstreet's predicted early in the year that the commercial mortality would be heavier than the year before, and the results so far exceed its expectations. It ciphered out that there was a likelihood of 10,400 business deaths within the current year, but it now states that the number will probably reach 11,500. The acceleration of the downward tendency has been most marked in the last three months. As business is now very quiet, and the hopes entertained during the summer that good crops would give us a good fall trade are certainly doomed to see their fulfillment deferred, it is not likely that the remaining months of the year will see any change for the better in these statistics. Since 1880, when failures fell off, there has been a steady deterioration in the solvency of our business concerns, and 1884 will be the worst of the last four years in that respect. The country can afford to hear the truth about this, for it is in all essential points in a sound condition. Newspapers might well hesitate to tell such unpleasant facts as these if there were danger that the terrors of panic would be precipitated by their frankness. But there is no panic in the air. We are passing through a crisis without a panic. There is not an unliquidated speculation in the United States to-day except in the case of a few stock cliques and stock-clique banks in Wall street, for which the country at large cares nothing. All prices are low. There is no widespread debt. There has been no real estate speculation. The currency is sound and the banks are solvent. That, all this being so, we should have had as many failures and as many breaks in prices as have occurred in the last four years has been a genuine surprise to the most careful observers. Not only were the shrewdest manipulators of Wall street caught off their guard by the reverses of the market, but the thoughtful students of business problems were at fault in their outlook. The commercial journals may be searched in vain for any warnings in 1880 that the country was on the eve of so severe an ebb in the tide of prosperity. The millions on millions that have been dropped by the leaders of Wall street—the richest and most powerful being as a rule the heaviest losers—are proof enough of their complete misapprehension of the tendencies of the last four years. As this crisis has had its origin in the excesses of the speculative spirit, and its most sensational castrophes have been furnished from the speculative centre, it is in that direction we must listen for the last thunderclaps of the storm. If there are stocks held by cliques at prices above their real values, these must come down and the cliques must be swept away by the irresistible current of liquidation. If there are banks in New York which are loaded up with poor securities and bad loans, they must make up their minds to write them off their books. Apart from such speculative values as may still be sustained in New York, it is as nearly certain as anything can be that values at large are at the bottom, and, with plenty and abundance on every hand, we may rationally look for a healthy revival in business and finance as soon as the atmosphere is cleared of the shadows cast by the failures that really occurred months or years ago, but are only now being announced. An increase in the number of announcements this fall seems to be likely, but no one need be frightened. The failures are really old; it is the announcement that is new.—Chicago Tribune.

The Greatest Manufacturing Nation.

The United States is now the largest manufacturing country on the globe. This is shown by Mr. Nimmo in his annual report recently made to the Secretary of the Treasury. The report just made shows that the value of the products of the various industries of the United States is seven times the value of the foreign commerce of this country, nearly three times the total value of the foreign commerce of Great Britain and Ireland, and five times the total value of the foreign commerce of France, including both imports and exports. The total value of the industrial products of the United States is shown to exceed more than twice the total value of the merchandise of all the countries of Europe. As showing the extent and value of our home markets, the report also shows that 99 per cent. of the coal mined here, 95 per cent. of iron and steel products, 95 per cent. of leather, 99 per cent. of wool and cotton products, more than 99 per cent. of silk manufactured, and 97 per cent. of our products of glass, glassware, earthenware and stoneware are consumed in the United States. The value of products of American manufacture consumed at home is more than fourteen times the value of the exports of manufactured products from France to all other countries, and is five times the value of the manufactured products of Great Britain and Ireland exported to other countries. This statement indicates the overshadowing value of our home markets and the enormous consumptive capacity of our population. In reference to periods of depression and of prosperity which have succeeded each other in the history of our industrial and commercial growth, Mr. Nimmo says: "Experience has proved these fluctuations to be but symptoms of an exuberant and uncontrollable spirit of enterprise, outrunning the possibilities of a healthy and well-proportioned development, even in this land of abounding natural resources." We are now passing through the reactionary effects of this overflow of industrial enterprise, and pending the adjustment between supply and demand, manufacturing and commercial interests are alike depressed. There is cause for just pride, however, in the fact that the United States leads the world in the extent of her manufactures, the largest part of which have been developed within the last twenty years. At the beginning of that period the greater part of our cutlery, iron, steel, glassware, woolens, cottons and silks were imported; now home products supply the largest portion of home markets, and our gold is kept here instead of flowing abroad to pay for foreign goods. The balance of trade is in our favor, and gold from Europe flows to our shores. Our wealth consists not alone in our soil and minerals—the product of the forge and loom are also a great element in our prosperity.—American Grocer.

The Dominion and the Antilles.

A commissioner, duly accredited by the local government of the island of Jamaica, recently appeared at Ottowa, Canada, asking that the island be admitted into the confederation of the Dominion. The proposition was regarded with great favor by the members of the cabinet, but the commissioner was informed that no action could be taken in the matter till the consent of the British government could be obtained. The proposition to admit Jamaica into the Dominion confederation would appear to be a desirable one to both parties. It is true that the island is a long distance from any portion of Canada, but it is still further from any portion of Great Britain. The trade between Jamaica and Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island is now large and is constantly increasing. The people of the island that enjoys a tropical climate desire the grain, meat and pine lumber produced in Canada and the fish that are caught along the coast. The Canadians wish the tropical fruits, spices, coffee and ornamental wood that are produced in Jamaica. The Canadians desire a winter resort that is under their own government. The inhabitants of the heated island entertain similar views in relation to a summer resort. The people of Jamaica have for some time past complained much of their treatment by the British government. The feeling is that the island has been neglected during the past few years. At one time it received much attention. All its products found a ready market in England. At present England has so many possessions in the tropics that the productions of Jamaica come in competition with those of many other countries. The people accordingly wish to establish close relations with a country that will afford a better market for their products. It is reported that most of the work on the Panama canal is being performed by laborers from the island of Jamaica. When the canal is completed, if it ever is, an immense trade might be established between Jamaica and British Columbia, if both were under the same government. The productions of the two countries are entirely dissimilar. The voyage from Kingston to Victoria would be comparatively short, and, owing to the peculiar products of the two countries, cargoes could be obtained both ways. General Grant, when President, strongly urged the annexation of one of the West India islands to the United States in the interest of commerce and our food supply. He believed that the island would soon be developed by means of American enterprise and capital if our goverment was extended over it. That both Jamaica and Canada would be benefited by admitting the latter into the confederation seems probable.

Wheat in the British Possessions.

With the wheat market in the present condition it must be very discouraging to farmers to see the London Miller coming out with an illuminated map of the great British Northwest, showing how a direct and nearly all-water route is to be opened up between Liverpool and 260,000,000 acres of the finest wheat lands in the world. The records of the Hudson's Bay Company show that navigation by the Hudson's Bay route to England is open from the end of June to the first of October. From Fort York on the west shore of the bay, the Nelson River is navigable for light draft vessels hundreds of miles inland and it is believed that a small expenditure would open it to vessels of the size of a St. Lawrence propeller. In other words, the wheat belt of the Manitoba region is practically within 400 miles of tide-water. A railroad is to be built spanning this 400 miles. The Canadian Pacific is already taking in the population destined to raise the wheat. A great network of lakes and rivers navigable for tows and barges cuts this blizzardous region in every direction. It is estimated that at least one-third of the wheat area would be provided with tolerable means of transportation by the construction of a single railroad from Winnipeg to Fort York, the lakes and rivers acting as feeders to the railroad. The Canadian government now has an expedition out making a survey of the Hudson Bay route and this year witnesses considerable progress towards realizing the hope of the Manitobans. As the Miller remarks the great thing necessary to the utilization of this enormous wheat belt is the bone and sinew to grow the wheat. Settling a wilderness is a work of time, but the people of the United States have their own example to prove that with good management the best part of the Manitoba country need not wait very long for a pretty numerous population. It occurs to mind, however, that it will be an open question which is the more discouraging—American prices to Canadian settlers or Canadian improvements to American wheat growers.—Missouri Republican.

Dangerous Banking.

In an article on the financial excesses of the recent "boom" the conservative Journal of Commerce of New York says:

We reckoned at the beginning of the trouble that 320 millions had been borrowed in this market alone and wholly spent, this vast sum being represented only by collaterals in the hands of lenders. About half of this has been adjusted, a small portion by being paid in full and the remainder of the moiety by a compromise in which the holder has accepted the security or sold it for what it would bring and settled with the borrower on the best possible terms. About 160 millions still hang over the market, much of it waiting for a rise in securities which will not now redeem the loan and can only be held for a more buoyant market. This shows that economy must be the order of the day for some time to come, and the people will not be able "to buy and consume more," even with the aid of Butler's eloquence, until further liquidation has been accomplished.

The significance of these statements lies in the revelation they give of the methods which have been pursued by the banks of New York. A very large proportion of the unliquidated $160,000,000 is of course in the hands of the banks and trust companies. It was through them the advances were obtained, and it is in their hands the bogus watered stocks and bonds that were put up as security for the loans are now reposing. Every one who has observed the conduct of the financiers of the metropolis knew that there had been bad banking there, but few supposed it to be as bad as the figures of the Journal of Commerce, as good an authority as there can be on New York business matters, show that it is. Not the least unpromising feature about the $160,000,000 of unliquidated loans which still "hang over the market" is that it has necessarily been the best loans that have been settled, the best securities that have been sold, the best borrowers who have been released. The banks have had to nurse the bad borrowers because they couldn't pay, and have had to call on the good borrowers because they could pay. The demands of the depositors had to be met, and that promptly. Weak borrowers, with securities that had slumped out of sight, were broken reeds in such an emergency. The money the New York banks had to have in the crisis they got from their best borrowers and from their best collaterals. The poor trash they have been carrying ever since in the hope of a rise of prices, which has not come, and of which, notwithstanding the interested predictions of Gould and Vanderbilt, there seems to be no speedy prospect. The purchasing power of the country is apparently as completely exhausted in stocks as in cottons and in iron. There is a very direct connection between the overloading of the New York banks with this worthless stuff and the undue development of the stock-gambling Exchanges. Bankers, of course, do not as a rule loan money for either patriotic or treasonable objects. They loan to get interest and the repayment of their advances. The Stock Exchange is a place where prices are made with a certainty, a precision, and a reliability—for the moment—that is not attained in the ordinary channels of trade. The man who loans on silks finds it troublesome to keep posted as to the changes in their values, and if the borrower defaults he may have the greatest difficulty in finding a market for the security which he must sell. But he who loans on stocks lets the tape of the stock-ticker run through his fingers, and if he wants to sell, in the case of default by his borrower, he merely sends a note to his broker, and the whole thing is done in a few minutes. This facility of doing business on Stock Exchange collaterals has proved a fatal facility. The bankers have been seduced from loaning on goods which have a real value, if it is sometimes slow in coming out, into loaning on stocks and bonds that have no value. They have found out too late that in many cases the stocks were bogus, the transactions were bogus, and the quotations were bogus. The tape still runs through their fingers, but their securities are no longer quoted there, and if they should send over a messenger to sell the collaterals out for what they would bring, there would be a tumble which would bring on a panic in a minute. The simple truth is, that the Stock Exchanges, good things in their original idea and still capable of doing vast service, have been frightfully abused. Manipulators and gamblers have got hold of their instrumentalities to prostitute them into mere agencies of fraud. The only bad spot in our whole financial situation is down among the Wall street banks of New York, which have been bunkoed by stock-exchange sharpers, and are waiting for a chance to sell unsalable collaterals. Their only salvation is to write off these bad debts and take a fresh start on a more cautious road. —Chicago Tribune.

Insanity of Capital.

There is an epidemic disease which has been called the "insanity of capital," a figure of speech which locates in the instrument the mental affections of the agent. It is a forcible expression which describes an epidemic, which in one form or another is of frequent recurrence in this halcyon land of ours, seriously affecting the relative positions of the currency, of the banks, and of borrowers. The Director of the Mint states the total volume of currency on October 1 at $1,856,423,084, which is about $65,000,000 greater than a year ago, and $140,000,000 greater than two years ago. It is at least $350,000,000 greater than the average during the boom of 1879–81, and is largely in excess of the circulation any previous year. The banks of most cities are also well supplied with money, the banks of New York especially, where the country's exchanges centralize, having been carrying by far the largest reserves ever known. In this situation there is a general stringency of money, which is presenting its hardest side to commerce. The causes which led up to this state of affairs was a freak of capital a few years ago to indulge in wild extremes of laxity, tempting business men into an excessive expansion of their undertakings, whether in railroad building, mining, smelting, manufacturing or trade, to say nothing of sundry loose habits in the conduct of their business. An immense net-work of corporate and private debt was one of its most important general products. This freak of insanity capital is now compelling the country to atone for, carrying its expiations to as great an extreme as its previous excesses. Indulgence is temporarily more agreeable than expiation, but while present experiences are less pleasant than those of the boom there is some consolation in the knowledge that the natural sequence of this is expansion. Capital is exceedingly wise as a theorist, but when it "gets into the game" it loses its head as completely as a "fresh" operator on 'Change. And when it awakens to a sense of its follies it is as zealous and fanatic a reformer as a repentant profligate who rushes from debauchery into a monastery.—Exchange.

The Fall Trade.

The latest conclusions arrived at by some of the best posted manufacturers and merchants in this city indicate a slight improvement in confidence as to the volume of the late autumn and early winter business. The moderate distribution of dry-goods continues. Carpets are active and mills are busy. Hosiery is dull and over-production is still complained of. Clothing is coming into better demand and more labor is at present engaged in its manufacture than since June. The hat and cap establishments of this city and Reading and in New Jersey are quite busily employed, although much more work could be done if demand was made. Trunk-makers have had a comparatively busy season. Boot and shoemakers report moderate activity and a little freer movement in low-priced goods. The notion manufacturers are very busy on holiday wear. The reports from traveling agents representing all these interests are in the main encouraging, but retailers are indisposed to make extensive purchases, and competition is very sharp and margins correspondingly close. In the other direction there is less to say. The iron trade is weak and the barest requirements are being provided for. Restriction is forcing itself upon the trade and in time some good will come of it. There are indications of considerable improvement in railroad building next spring. Prices show an upward tendency, but a greater demand than is now apparent would be necessary in order to prevent a decline in prices to their August level. The coal trade lacks animation despite the curtailment. It is evident that prices will continue unsatisfactory until there is a general revival in the industries. Crop reports continue encouraging, but shipments from the Northwest are still below expectations. Abundance on all sides is a guarantee for a reign of low prices. Speculation is at a standstill in all except two or three channels. The foundations are being laid for a broad and permanent improvement in values and in the volume of business. At present the country's manufacturing facilities are somewhat in excess of its agricultural resources, but this inequality is being gently remedied, and the two great factors will soon work in harmony.—Philadelphia Times.

The Cause of Small Railroad Earnings.

The theory has been generally accepted that the smallness of the earnings of the railroads for July, August and September was due to the Western farmer's disinclination to sell his wheat at the prices offered, but data collected by the Railroad Gazette show clearly that the movement of wheat to the primary markets has been larger this year than ever before in the history of the country. The receipts at Chicago, St. Louis, Milwaukee, Peoria, Duluth, Detroit, Toledo and Cleveland for the month of August and for the three weeks ending September 20, when compared with those of the same period in years extending as far back as 1870, are found, for the seven weeks, to be 22 per cent. greater than those of 1880, when the country was in the full flush of prosperity. The August receipts were never equaled, and the September receipts were exceeded only in 1879 and 1873. The same increase for the present year is found to apply also to flour. The decrease of railroad earnings must therefore be attributed to other causes. These causes the Gazette finds in diminished railroad construction and the stoppage of other productive enterprises that give them the bulk of their freights. Manufactures of all kinds are comparatively inactive. When will the revival come? Not this year, says the Gazette. The big crops of 1873 did not avert the panic of that year, nor will the fine crops of 1884 show immediate results. "We may reasonably hope to grow better soon, but we shall have to wait a while."

San Francisco Losing Business.

San Francisco has been to some extent superseded by other cities in the markets of the Pacific Coast. The Northern Pacific and the Southern Pacific have made Oregon and Southern California as much tributary to Chicago and St. Louis, respectively, as they are to San Francisco. The monopoly that has thus been lost will never be regained. We must recoup ourselves by reaching out for new fields, and, if possible, by invading those of the rivals who have invaded ours. With a great many classes of goods this is, of course, not possible. But it is possible and practicable to a far greater extent than our manufacturers and merchants are accustomed to think. Because Eastern cities have the advantage of us in wages and other elements in the cost of production, it does not follow that we cannot occasionally invade their markets, if we show the proper spirit of enterprise. Raw materials of manufacture are in some cases cheaper on this coast than in the East, and where that is not true, quality is oftentimes more important than price. Then there is a long line of manufactures in which patents negative the advantages of cost of production. Any one who will study the list of our domestic exports, as furnished by the monthly statements of railroad shipments, will be surprised at the variety of articles with which we are already supplying the East, and will be likely to get at the same time a vivid perception of what we might do in this line if we only tried a little harder.—Alta.

Checks Upon Over-credits.

Bankers cannot afford to dispense with any convenient and practical methods calculated to improve their security without needlessly encumbering honest trade. It is rendered convenient and practicable to establish a check upon over-credit at bank by the system now being operated by fifteen of the banks of Louisville, though the value of the system is impaired by the refusal of six banks to enter the association. If this system was practiced by all the banks it would be impossible for a borrower to go beyond his means, but without it a sharp fellow who can show up for $25,000 can borrow say $10,000 from each of a dozen banks. As to the security and value of commercial collateral, and the guarantee against over-issue of collateral, the system generally practiced in all our large cities is supposed to be entirely satisfactory. One of the principal sources from which loose banking may gradually arise is excessive competition, and this increases in proportion to the number of managing establishments fixed upon the aggregate banking fund of a city, needlessly increasing the fixed charges to be met before profits can begin, subdividing the separate interests so much as to fritter away resources in paying needless salaries and rents which might go to dividends and to reducing the rates of interest and to the incidental expenses of more efficient management. But according to the experience of some cities in the current year, though these considerations would appear to be conclusive, the principal evil appears to be that a man may multiply the amount which he may steal by the number of banks, or thereabouts.—Louisville Courier.

Locomotive Works.

There are at present sixteen locomotive works in the country, not including the shops owned by railway companies. Pennsylvania has five of these, New Jersey and Massachusetts three each, New York two, Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Maine one each. These works give employment to 14,000 men, and every year add about 2,600 to the 20,000 now in daily use. At present five men have to work an entire year to complete one of these huge machines. The engines of the best kind weigh about fifty tons, have steel axles, driving wheels 68 inches in diameter, or as tall as the average man, run on paper trucks, have few polished surfaces and are guaranteed to make 60 miles an hour with a train of seven cars. The tanks hold 3,600 gallons of water. Even the minutest parts are interchangeable, and the greatest pieces are made with microscopical exactness, so that a broken or worn out part can be immediately replaced. —Exchange.

Curious Facts about Japanese Money.

Andrew Murray Hunt, assistant engineer of the United States flagship Richmond, who recently returned from Japan, talking with the reporter of the Indianapolis Journal said: "When I went to Japan two years ago the paper currency there was at a discount of about 55 per cent. It held at that rate for a year, and then began gradually to increase in value, and in the course of two months had appreciated so that it was discounted only 4 or 5 per cent. There was no apparent cause for this appreciation, and Europeans and Americans could not understand it. There had been a plentiful rice crop, and it was expected by foreigners as well as natives that the price of rice and other commodities, which are generally paid for in paper money, would fall. The only thing which did fall at all in price was rice, and that merely to a slight extent. The Japanese government closed up all the shops where silver is exchanged for paper money, and in some manner forced the price of paper up to the place it held, and as almost all foreigners distrusted this rapid advance in the value of the rag money, the Japanese arbitrarily maintained all prices in paper currency as they were afraid that the paper would otherwise depreciate again. No one seemed to know exactly how this financiering was done, but it seems as if these Yankees of the Orient knew some things about fiat money and maintaining an equilibrium of values that other nations have not discovered as yet. Silver money in Japan," continues Mr. Hunt, "does not amount to 20 per cent. of the currency. Paper money is very plentiful. Foreigners charge that Japan has a great deal more paper currency than the government will admit. The unit of value of the Japanese corresponding to our dollar is the 'yen,' which is the same value as the Mexican dollar. The Mexican dollar is the dollar of the Chinese coast; and the trade dollar about which so much talk has been had in former years as a commercial dollar for the Chinese trade, is never seen either in China or Japan. The smallest denomination in paper money is ten sen; the smallest coin is the cash, one-tenth of a cent, and the next smallest is the tempo, four-fifths of a cent."

Railroad Building for Nine Months.

The record for the nine months from January 1 to September 1 show that track-laying has been in progress on at least 120 lines in forty of the forty-seven States and territories, and has reached thus far this year an aggregate of 3,553 miles—reference being had to main lines only and not including sidings or additional tracks. The records for the corresponding period of 1883 showed 4,244 miles, and for nine months of 1882, 8,075 miles. The only States in which no track appears to have been laid this year are New Hampshire, Vermont, South Carolina and Rhode Island. The only territories not in the list are Nevada, Wyoming and Indian territory. From present appearance the total length of new track laid in 1884 will not much exceed 4,000 miles. This is the smallest mileage which has been added in any year since 1878, when the total was only 2 687. Ten years ago, in 1875, the aggregate was only 1,712 miles—in comparison with which even 4,000 miles for 1884 seems very respectable. While the work of construction is still in progress on a considerable number of roads they are mostly short lines. The principal lines of importance now building are the South Pennsylvania (the extension of the Philadelphia & Reading), the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's extension to Reading and beyond, the Baltimore & Ohio line from Baltimore to Philadelphia, the several extensions of the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Northern in Iowa, Minnesota and Dakota, those of the Northern Pacific in Wisconsin and Washington territory, the main line of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company—now lacking only twenty-five miles to finish—the Wisconsin Central's extension to St. Paul, and the important line across Wisconsin being built by the Minneapolis, Sault Ste. Marie & Atlantic Company. There are also several enterprises of importance on which grading has begun or is soon to be undertaken, and the number of new lines projected during the year is surprisingly large. With the return of better times, apparently near at hand, it is certain that the construction of railways will increase very greatly.—Railway Age.

Facts to be Borne in Mind.

There is no nation now that can control its own markets—tariff or no tariff. Foreign goods will come in and sell in certain quantities. Each nation is both an importer and exporter of the same kind, if not the same class and quality of goods. Great Britain exports cotton goods worth more than three hundred million dollars yearly, but she cannot exclude from her own markets foreign manufactures of cotton amounting to eighteen or twenty millions. Her exports of woolen manufactures amount to $80,000,000 or $90,000,000, and her imports to about $30,000,000. France exports $70,000,000 or $80,000,000 worth of wool manufactures, and imports from $15,000,000 to $25,000,000 worth. Her exports and imports of cotton are about an offset. The United States finds Great Britain one of her best customers for those classes of manufactured goods, in which the latter country is thought to beat the world. Excepting China, we sell more cotton manufactures in England than anywhere else. Our cutlery and edge tools go directly into the English cities, which are the largest manufacturers of those goods. This shows principally two things—first, that transportation has been cheapened more rapidly than any other branch of industry; and, secondly, that the increasing specialization of manufactures makes it impossible for any one nation to hold a monopoly in the supply of a single class of goods.—Alta California.

A Look at the Real Paris.

Not long ago many visitors to Paris returned home full of enthusiasm for that beautiful city, and anxious to know why London and New York and Philadelphia and other great towns could not be made like the French capital. Now the French themselves are criticising the municipal administration of Paris, and from the account given of it in a recent number of their leading review, our people can get some useful hints. With a population approaching two millions and a half, less than a third are natives of the city, for it is a central point for skilled workmen and men of all pursuits from far and near. It has about 80,000 houses, with over a million separate apartments, of which two-thirds are used as dwellings and one-third for business; and of the former, three-fourths rent for less than a hundred dollars a year, housing one million of its working population. While London has more than three hundred building associations, with over a hundred thousand members, Paris owes its new houses mainly to large speculative corporations which look more to their own profit, eked out by long terms of exemption from taxation, than to the health or comfort of the workingmen. Even the important matter of public conveyances is left to great companies, and with their 9,000 cabs and 1,200 omnibuses and horse cars, and 13,000 private carriages, there is still complaint of a want of cheap and convenient means of transportation to the growing suburbs. The great omnibus company, in return for an exclusive privilege lasting until 1912 and at prices fixed by law, pays to the city half a million of dollars annually. The gas and water companies are also private corporations, with long terms of exclusive right to supplying the city, and they pay over five millions of dollars annually into the city treasury. Water is scarce and gas is dear as compared with supply and prices in other European capitals, but in spite of suits brought by the city the companies hold to the letter of their contracts and refuse to meet the growing demand for a concession in the interest of the consumer. Paris has a police force counting over 11,000 men in its service, and the annual arrests made average 40,000, of which number 20,000 are old offenders and 3,000 are strangers. The firemen number 1,700 men, costing $400,000 a year. Over 400,600 persons receive public assistance at a cost of nearly seven millions of dollars, and 125,000 poor are registered as entitled to alms, while 22,000 beds in the hospital supply care for the sick and wounded. There are charity "homes" for old men and women, with room for 9,000 inmates, while for children over a million of dollars was spent in fighting the dreadful mortality that cuts off the future population in its infancy. Over five millions of dollars were spent in 1883 on education for a hundred and seventy thousand children in the public schools, while seventy thousand were in private schools, supported by subscription and taught mostly by clergymen and members of different religious orders. The income and expenditures of the city of Paris in 1883 were over fifty millions of dollars, and of its receipts nearly thirty millions were produced by the tax called "Octroi"—the "King's eighth"—levied at the gates of Paris on all provisions that enter the city, thus adding to the cost of living. The largest item of expenditure was the interest on the municipal debt, and as that grows faster than the taxable value of property, now put at four hundred millions of dollars, and the indirect sources of income, the "octroi" and the percentages of profits paid by the gas, water and transportation monopolies, the future, with its growing needs for sewerage and drainage and the other recognized demands of better methods of making and keeping Paris healthy, is a matter of earnest discussion. Much attention is paid to the numerous reforms proposed in this country and elsewhere for a change in existing municipal governments. In Paris there is a Council elected by universal suffrage, but its action is largely subject to revision and veto by the Prefect, who is appointed by the general government, and hence a constant conflict, one party trying to make the local authority sovereign and independent, the other seeking to reduce it to a representation of taxpayers. The decision is still to be made; but it is of immense importance for the future of Paris, and it is of interest for all cities struggling to balance receipts and expenditures, and at the same time to meet the requirements of great and growing population crowded in the principal cities of both the old world and the new.

That Cotton Picker.

The high expectations excited in the South by the invention of a cotton picker by a citizen of Charleston have not been realized. The machine is there, and exhibits automatic processes that are marvellous; but it is not the thing wanted. There are defects in it which must be remedied before it can be made available. The inventor has overcome some defects, and is now endeavoring to overcome the others, and it is hoped he will be successful. But the cotton picker which the South needs must be a perfect, or nearly perfect machine that will do its work with little assistance from rude and unskilful negroes; no half-way appliance will answer. One of the difficulties in cotton planting is that in the rich bottom districts one hand can raise more than he can pick, and as there is a scarcity of pickers in the fall, much unpicked cotton is left in the fields every year to rot, or be plowed under in the spring. This is a great waste, but planters say it cannot be avoided under the existing method. An effective cotton picker, capable of being driven through a field and gathering the cotton from the bolls, would be a no greater marvel than the harvester which every wheat grower in the West employs. It will be invented, probably, some day, and when it comes it will save the South two cents a pound, or $50,000,000 a year on the cotton crop.

British Iron Industries.

The depression in steel and iron manufacturing in Great Britain is far more severe than in America. Fifty per cent. of the blast furnaces in the United Kingdom are idle, and a paralysis has struck English shipbuilding as severe as that which closed our shipyards in 1857 to 1860. They attribute the failure in these industries to the fact that other countries, and especially the United States, have become their own manufacturers of iron and steel. The London Statist tries to take comfort in the fact that Great Britain has still her home trade left, and that "the home trade is of more value in every country than the foreign trade." That would be a proper statement to make in America, but the fact remains that the British iron manufacture was developed with a view to the foreign trade. One-half the furnaces of that country are ample to supply the home demand. But the indications are that she cannot hold her home markets. German firms are filling contracts for iron and steel work for the British navy, and American pig iron is superseding Scotch in the manufacture of stoves in Glasgow, and American bells are finding a market in Manchester. It would seem that she will have, even of the home market, only what foreign nations are unable to supply.—Exchange.

"A Western View."

Hon. Joseph O. Rutter, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, has published a series of articles in the Current on "The Financial Situation." In the main his articles have been free from the narrowness and selfish unpopularity that so strangely infect New York and Boston financial opinion: a stupid blunder that deprives the financial institutions of the East of all weight and influence in the councils of the nation and has built up against everything they propose a solid wall of popular prejudice and opposition. But in his latest contribution at hand Mr. Rutter adopts some of those Bourbon views of Eastern journals and gives us a Western view on finances such as we do not often get. He favors doing away with the legal tender character of the greenbacks and to issue in place of them interest bearing bonds of small denominations, upon a cumulative rate of interest, too; relieving national banks from the necessity of depositing bonds in the United States Treasury to secure circulation; repealing the tax upon national bank circulation and monometalism. These views from a Western bank official only show that everywhere men's opinions are apt to be colored by their interests.—Merchant's Review.

The Law of Attachments in Civil Cases.

It occurs in the business of almost every man that he desires to get an attachment against the property of some one who owes him money. You can do that in this State, provided you desire to recover a sum of money only, either for a breach of contract (other than a contract to marry), or for wrongful conversion of personal property (such as borrowing your diamonds from you and then selling them), or for any other injury to personal property in consequence of negligence, fraud or other wrongful act, when your claim is against a foreign corporation or a person not a resident of the State, or against a person who is a resident of the State but has left it with intent to defraud his creditors or to avoid the service of a summons, or has hidden himself in the State with like intent, or has removed or is about to remove property from the State, or has assigned or disposed of or secreted, or is about to assign, dispose of, or secrete property with intent to defraud his creditors. As this is held by our courts to be a purely statutory remedy (although, indeed, it originated in the civil law of the Romans and was preserved by the English common law), you must follow the requirements of our code very strictly, and it is obvious that many nice close questions arise, such as whether a corporation, like a national bank for instance, is a foreign corporation; whether the cause of action, as for example a promissory note made in Michigan and payable in New York, arose within this State; whether a man be a non-resident (suppose he used to board here and has been hunting in Dakota for six months); whether, when he is about to dispose of his property, it means next week or next spring; what are the indications of a design to defraud creditors; and scores of similar questions. Great care, therefore, must be exercised in stating the facts in your affidavits, and in the forms of your undertaking and warrant; and you will naturally desire to know how to aid the sheriff in the execution of a warrant, as well as many other points connected with this protection which the law gives you in carrying on your business. All this you will find most thoroughly and clearly set forth in the new book just written by Mr. S. F. Kneeland, of the New York Bar, and published by Geo. S. Diossy.* Mr. Kneeland has dedicated his book to the young members of the Bar, with the wittily-expressed hope that "their actions may always prove worthy, their attachments enduring, and their judgments fruitful;" but, while thus dedicated, all active business men will find this work, by a practical lawyer, to be of practical value to them in their business. It is very clearly written, and we advise you to get a copy and prepare yourself for the next occasion when you will require to obtain an attachment. "In time of peace prepare for war."

Some West Side Residences.

The west side is going up rapidly; of that there can be no doubt. To be convinced of this one has only to pass along Eighth, Ninth and Tenth avenues above Sixty-seventh street, where houses are seen going up on almost every street, and where whole blocks of dwellings are occupied by citizens of good social standing. There has been particular activity between Eighty-second and Eighty-fourth streets, where a score of elegant private dwellings have been erected. Mr. Da Cunha's three houses look very well, and their fronts are quite a feature, while the Messrs. Jardine's three houses are not far from completion. Michael Brennan has a row of seven on Eighty-fourth street, and Terence Kiernan three more. One of the largest builders of private houses on the west side during the past season has been Richard Deeves, who has erected six four-story bigh stoop houses on the south side of Eighty-third street, between Ninth avenue and Central Park, one of which is 20x52, another 18x52, two 25x60, and one 19x52. The fronts are of Philadelphia brick, with Nova Scotia trimmings. The interiors are in hardwoods, the first floors being in mahogany and cherry, with the exception of the dining room, which is in oak. The second and third floors are in cherry, and the fourth floor contains five rooms, servants' toilet, etc. There are electric bells and speaking tubes throughout each house; the halls are finished in oak, the plumbing is of a sanitary character, and there is registered heat and an abundance of closet room on each story, as well as butler's pantry. The same owner has built three four-story high stoop brick and Nova Scotia stone dwellings, 16.8x52 each, on the north side of Eighty-second street, near Ninth avenue. These houses are at once noticeable on approaching the street from the avenue, and present a pleasing appearance. They are similar in interior to the houses above described. They are entered through massive carved oaken doors, the halls being trimmed in the same material. The drawing and dining rooms are in mahogany and cherry, the mantels being a feature. The second and third floors are in cherry and the top stories in whitewood. There are no less than twenty-four closets in each house, and first-class plumbing, heat, electrical apparatus, tubes and the other accessories of a modern residence are supplied throughout. An examination of the setting of the brick and stone work in all these houses show that it has been done by good hands and under scrupulous and skillful supervision. Four of the houses on Eighty-third street remain unsold, as are those on Eighty-second street. The price asked by the owner seems to be much less than they are worth, and are from 30 to 40 per cent. lower than the cost of similar houses on the east side. Mr. Deeves' structures are a sample of the class of dwellings constructed on the west side, and from the description of them given above it will be seen that for appearance, comfort and general arrangement they are desirable residences for citizens moving in good social circles.

The Splendors of Berlin.

A well-known member of the Stock Exchange in a private letter gives the following information about the capital of the German Empire, which will be news to the untravelled Americans:

"London and Paris are noble cities, but I confess that Berlin offers greater inducements to visitors than either of them. Things here have changed for the better wonderfully since I was here last in 1868. To begin with the city, one sees everywhere a ruling, masterly hand, cleanliness, good pavements, either block or asphalt, noble public and private buildings, handsomely laid-out squares and parks, avenues, etc., etc. Add to this the museums, galleries, theatres and opera, monuments and other endless things of interest, among which the military here is not the least, with its arsenal splendidly arranged, and you can form an idea of what it is here, to say nothing of the surroundings, such as Charlottenburg, Potsdam, etc., with a good system of railway and omnibus communication, and the many private art collections open to everybody during stated hours. It fairly bewilders one to know where to begin a days' work and where to end it."

NEW YORK, October 23, 1884.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

In your issue of June 10th last, you will notice that a plan was filed in the Department of Buildings for the erection of an apartment house at No. 57 West Tenth street, the same to be 86 feet deep and afford accommodations for one family on each floor. I own the lot in the rear of the above, and intend to improve it shortly. When the walls of said apartment house were being put up I measured the distance from them to the fence and found it to be only 8 feet. The lot is 94.10 feet. I called the attention of the Health Department to this fact and they sent an inspector, who reported a violation. Complaint No. 94 was sent to the law department on August 28th. As the walls were still being put up I sent again. This time I received the reply that they could not interfere as the owner had filed no plans with them, but had stated that the proposed building was to be used as a hotel.

What I want to know is, can a man file plans in the Building Department for the erection of an apartment house and go to the Health Department and state verbally that said building is to be used as a hotel and thus violate the law? I altered a house in the same street and was compelled to leave a yard fully 10 feet deep.

An answer through your columns will oblige a subscriber.

Yours, respectfully,
L. J. CALLANAN.

Our correspondent should call at the Health Board and Building Department for the information he seeks.—Ed. RECORD AND GUIDE.

A new industry is now being developed in the way of utilizing the petrified forest timbers of Arkansas. Companies are now being organized who are entering large tracts of land containing this timber which has heretofore been considered worthless, and preparations are being made to cut this timber by machinery in a way that it will subserve the various wants of mechanical arts. It is considered far superior for ornamental pieces of house furniture, such as mantel pieces, stands, table tops, etc., as it is susceptible of a finer finish and richer polish than the different varieties of wood used. No doubt many of our readers are familiar with a description of the petrified forest of Egypt, situated about eight miles south of Cairo; but we have no account given us in history which leads us to conclude that there has ever been an effort made by the artisans of that country to cut these trees into slabs or boards, which have thus been changed by some mysterious agency from wood to solid stone. With the present prospect of success, it will not be a great while until articles of furniture manufactured from the same will be offered for sale in our shops and adorn the parlors and reception rooms of many of our fine dwelling houses.

As we go to press we learn that Mr. Lewis J. Phillips has declined the nomination for the mayoralty on the Republican county ticket.

The Hebrew Orphan Asylum building was formally opened on Thursday last, when the dedication services took place in the presence of a large and fashionable assemblage. The building presents a noble appearance and is one of the largest benevolent institutions in the country. It has cost $600,000. The architect, William H. Hume, and all those connected with this splendid structure are to be congratulated on its completion.

Real Estate Department.

There has been a better market during the past week. There is always a good deal doing at this time of the year, and after all it is activity which interests brokers, dealers and auctioneers rather than price. The number of official transfers of real estate shows an increase over last year, which shows that more business is doing. There is not the buoyant prices which characterized last spring, but the sale of the Catharine Fish estate last Wednesday shows that good property is not being sacrificed and can command very fair prices under the hammer. The Nassau street property and the Seventy-third street house in the sale of the Fish estate brought very fair prices, while the Seventh Ward parcels were nearly up to the top figures of the experts. The impression is general that after the presidential election matters will mend. Quite a number of dealers say that their customers decline to close transactions until after the 4th of November. Of course there is no reason for this hesitancy because the country is safe no matter who is chosen President, but still undoubtedly a feeling of hesitation exists.

There was a large attendance at the Exchange on Tuesday, when the continuation sale of the Fox estate lots was held. The bidding was not as spirited as at the sale held last week, nor were the prices realized as satisfactory. Sixty-six lots on Intervale avenue, Kelly, Tiffany, Fox and One Hundred and Sixty-seventh streets brought $14,135.

On Tuesday, October 28th, James L. Wells will sell 20 acres of land on this island with the riparian rights attached. This property is situated at the junction of the Hudson River and Spuyten Duyvil Creek just north of Two Hundred and Twenty-sixth street and near the Inwood Station. The location is beautiful and the property has splendid possibilities in every way

Mr. Richard V. Harnett will sell on Tuesday, October 28th, the five-story tenement No. 1122 First avenue.

On Wednesday, October 29th, John F. B. Smyth will sell the houses No. 243 Division street and No. 249 Monroe street. Property in these neighborhoods has been in demand lately.

Messrs. Fairchild & De Walltearss will sell on Thursday, November 13, twenty-four lots on Sixth and Seventh avenues, One Hundred and Forty-first and One Hundred and Forty-second streets, by order of assignee and trustees.

The Conveyances recorded the past week make a good showing as compared with the corresponding week last year. There is an increase in the transactions and in the aggregate consideration, while the mortgage indebtedness is far less than it was last year. Here is the table:

Gossip of the Week.

C. P. Huntington has sold the elegant four-story brown stone dwelling and stable, No. 4 West Fifty-fourth street, south side, 143.4 west of Fifth avenue, with plot 141.8x100.5, to John D. Rockefeller, for $650,000, and has taken in exchange nine lots on the northeast corner of Fifth avenue and Seventy-second street, five on the avenue and four on the street, at $450,000, which he has resold to Leland Stanford, ex-Governor of California, for $400,000. It is reported that it is Mr. Stanford's intention to commence immediately the erection of a handsome and costly residence on the site.

Oscar C. Ferris has purchased the block front on the west side of Ninth avenue, between Ninetieth and Ninety-first streets, 201.5x100, for about $40,000, and two lots on the southwest corner of Ninth avenue and Ninety-eighth street, for $8,000.

C. L. Mead has sold for James Wood the four-story brick house, No. 2334 Fourth avenue, between One Hundred and Twenty-sixth and One Hundred and Twenty-Seventh streets, 20x75, for $10,250, to Christian Brand.

A Sixth avenue broker sends word that he has sold the four-story brown stone house, No. 131 West Fifty-eighth street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues, for $30,000.

The same broker claims to have disposed of an excavated lot on West Fifty-seventh street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues, adjoining the Calvary Baptist church on the west, and in size 23x100.5, for $29,500 cash. It is reported the purchaser intends immediately improving this lot with a private residence.

Hurd & Burling have sold for H. T. Leftchild 26 lots with house and other buildings on the Southern Boulevard, corner Oliver street, Bedford Park, Twenty-third Ward, for $18,000, and for W. L. Jukes the three-story brick dwelling No. 116 East One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, for $9,000.

Charles Riley has sold the four-story brown stone flat on the north side of One Hundred and Sixteenth street, 100 feet east of Second avenue, 20x67x100.11, for $16,000, to Mrs. Fanny Jacobs.

F. G. Swartwout & Co. have sold for Mrs. A. M. Crakow the three-story and basement brown stone dwelling No. 232 East One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street, 20x50x100, for $10,500.

Bennett & Wells have sold for Frederick Gebhard the three-story stable at No. 33 West Thirteenth street, and has leased the lot, 25x103, for twenty-one years to Henry Demorest, at an annual rental of $1,000, with the option of two renewals of twenty-one years each. Mr. Demorest proposes to improve the property.

Breen & Bellamy have sold for Wallace B. Finn the four-story brown stone dwelling No. 122 East Seventy-second street, 20x65, extension 12 feet x100.2, for $37,000, to J. C. Orr.

Victor Freund & Son have sold for Felix Connor and John Graham nine five-story brick and stone tenements on the northeast corner of Second avenue and Sixty-third street. The corner is 20.5x65x80, the avenue houses with stores, 25x65x80, and those on the street, 29x82x100.5. It is understood that the property has been purchased by a syndicate of South American capitalists, the figure being $210,000. It may be added that the lots were purchased for $50,000 in February, 1883, and the buildings are entered in the plans as costing $170,000.

M. B. Baer & Co. have sold for Alexander Blumstein the four-story high stoop brown stone private dwelling, No. 120 East Seventy-ninth street, 18x68x102, to Mrs. Anna Radway for $29,000.

It is reported that the four-story dwelling, No. 18 East Sixty-second street, has been sold.

We hear that Newman Cowen has sold four lots on the northwest corner of Sixth avenue and One Hundred and Nineteenth street, for immediate improvement.

Brooklyn.

W. F. Corwith has sold the house and lot No. 149 Newell street, for $1,700.

Out Among the Builders.

William Rankin will shortly commence the erection of nine five-story flats on the northeast corner of Ninth avenue and Forty-fifth street. There will be three on the avenue, 25x75 each, with stores, and five on the street, 27x86 each, the corner being 25x90, with store. The fronts will be of brick, with brown stone and terra cotta trimmings. They will contain a number of improvements and are estimated to cost $180,000. Architect, M. L. Ungrich.

Brown & Woodruff intend to build two five-story tenements on the north side of Ninety-ninth street, 160 feet east of Third avenue.

A. B. Ogden has the plans under way for a six-story piano factory, 50x90, to be built on the north side of One Hundred and Twenty-eighth street, 150 feet east of Lexington avenue. The front will be of brick with Wyoming blue stone trimmings. The building will contain an elevator, and will cost about $30,000. Owner, —— Lassalle.

W. J. Merritt is drawing the plans for seven three-story and basement brick, stone and terra cotta private dwellings, which he proposes to erect on the northwest corner of Seventh avenue and One Hundred and Thirty-fourth street.

The excavations have been commenced for a one-story brick skating rink, to be erected on Lexington and Fourth avenues and One Hundred and Seventh street. It will have a frontage of 100 feet on Lexington, 150 feet on Fourth avenue and 335 feet on One Hundred and Seventh street. The structure will contain ladies' and gentlemen's dressing rooms and other accessories. The plans are being drawn by Elbert D. Howes & Co.

Another skating-rink is to be added to those already built or in contemplation. Architect A. B. Ogden is drawing the designs for a one-story rink, of brick, which is to be erected on Broadway, Seventh avenue and Fifty-third street, having a frontage of 75 feet on Broadway, 75 on the avenue and 200 feet on the street. The building will contain galleries for the use of visitors. It will be 30 feet high and will cost about $25,000 to $30,000.

Thom & Wilson are engaged in plans for two five-story improved brown stone tenements, 25x87 each, to be built on the north side of Seventy-seventh street, 75 feet west of Lexington avenue, for Messrs. Kennedy & Dunn, at a cost of $40,000.

Excavations have been commenced for the erection of three five-story brick and stone tenements and stores, the corner 25x96 and the remainder 25x84, to be erected on the northwest corner of Tenth avenue and Thirty-seventh street, for Joseph Schwarzler, at a cost of $54,000. This improvement was postponed on account of the strike. Architects, Thom & Wilson.

Ernest W. Greis has the designs on the board for a five-story brick, terra cotta and Ohio stone trimmed flat, with improvements, to be erected at No. 328 East Seventy-seventh street, for Mrs. G. Sossau, at a cost of $18,000.

Julius Kastner has the plans under way for a three-story and basement frame cottage, 40x40, with cupola, to be built for Jacob Stahl, on One Hundred and Sixty-ninth street and Fulton avenue, at a cost of $10,000.

Marcus Kohner intends to erect two five-story stores and loft buildings at Nos. 17 and 19 Bowery. The walls are already up and the completion of the structure will, therefore, only involve an expenditure of about $12,000.

Excavations will be commenced on Monday for the erection of the Coliseum on Eighth avenue, Fifty-sixth and Fifty-seventh streets. This is the same structure to which reference has already been made in these columns, and for which plans have been drawn by McElfatrick, Sons & De Baud. The principal contracts have already been awarded, and the building will be pushed forward with all rapidity. The owners, the Coliseum Company, being desirous in completing the structure by January next.

John Brandt has the designs for a two-story and French roof frame parsonage, 22x52, to be erected for the Rev. A. H. Goodenough, of the Methodist Church, on the south side of Temple street, 121 feet east of Crescent street, Astoria, L. I.

Arthur Crooks has the sketches on the boards for two three-story and basement ornate frame villas to be erected on Ocean avenue, to the west of the West End, for D. M. Hildreth. The villas cover a frontage of 100 feet and a depth of 68 feet, and will cost about $20,000. One will be occupied by Mr. Hildreth and the other rented.

H. Edwards-Ficken has the designs on the boards for a two-story basement and attic frame cottage, 30x40, to be erected at Lawrence, L. I., for James Baker at a cost of $6,000.

Brooklyn.

Mercein Thomas is preparing plans for a two-story brick (stone front) chapel, 26x85, for St. Mark's Episcopal Church, to be erected on Adelphi street, between De Kalb and Willoughby avenues; the cost will be about $8,500.

E. F. Gaylor has plans in hand for a four-story brick double tenement, 35x54, to be erected on the corner of South First and Eighth streets, for Mrs. John Baldwin, at a cost of about $10,000.

Th. Engelhardt has the plans for two three-story frame tenements, 25x50 each, to be erected on the south side of Varet street, 50 feet west of Bushwick avenue, for Mrs. Wengler; cost, $8,000.

Robert Dixon is drawing plans for three three-story brick (stone front) stores and flats, to be erected on the northeast corner of Seventh avenue and Eleventh street, for Chas. Nickening; the cost will be about $10,000 each; also a four-story brick (brown stone trimmed) double tenement, 25x55, to be erected on the south side of Wyckoff street, 75 feet west of Nevins street, for the estate of D. Dixon; estimated cost, $9,000.

Contractors' Notes.

Bids will be received by the Commissioner of Public Works at 31 Chambers street until Friday, October 31st, at 12 o'clock, for paving and building sewers.

Proposals for repairs to the steam heating works, east wing, Insane Asylum, Ward's Island, will be received at the office of the Department of Public Charities and Correction, No. 66 3d avenue, in the city of New York, until 9.30 o'clock A. M. Friday, October 31.

Proposals will be received at the Hall of the Board of Education, corner of Grand and Elm streets, by the School Trustees of the Twentieth Ward, until 9½ o'clock A. M. on Wednesday, the 5th day of November, for the desks, seats and other furniture for the new building for Grammar School No. 33, on West 28th street, between 9th and 10th avenues.

Sealed proposals will also be received at the same place and time for new steam heating apparatus for said building.

TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRATA.—In our last week's interviews on cement read (Sinclair & Babson) "German (Alsen's) is $2.75" for "$2.25," and (Hiram Snyder) "our present price is $1.00" instead of "90 cents."

Special Notices.

McCabe & Gliddon have received the contract for placing electric bells, annunciators, speaking tubes, and other electrical apparatus in the large apartment house erected by Thomas Osborne on the northwest corner of Fifty-seventh street and Seventh avenue. This is the same firm that supplied the electrical work for the Dakota, which proved highly satisfactory. They also manufacture burglar and fire alarms, door openers and letter boxes, and contract for gas lighting by electricity. Messrs. McCabe & Gliddon are both practical men. Their business is at No. 3 West Third street, city.

Culbert Brothers, the well-known manufacturers of builders' hardware, have removed from their old quarters at No. 148 Baxter street to their new and spacious six-story and basement factory and warehouse, 25x100, at No. 311 West Fortieth street. Among the various articles made by them may be mentioned door locks, knobs, hinges, blank keys, fine brass, bronze, silver and nickel plated goods, and locksmiths' and bellhangers' supplies. This firm is one of the oldest in their line in this city, having been established in 1867.

H. Mecke has just invented an iron folding flower-stand, which is in every way superior to the cumbersome old-fashioned stands. Its merits are that it saves room, looks tasteful, and is simple in construction. The flower-stands are finished in green and bronze or in brown and bronze, and each contains a castor. When folded they occupy a space of but two inches in width. They can be seen at Mr. Mecke's iron and wire works, No. 888 Eighth avenue, corner of Fifty-third street, where railings and doors for offices, counters and store fronts, screens, &c., are turned out in large quantities.

Butchers' fixtures, tools, refrigerators and similar goods are manufactured by Ed. L. Gallon, who also contracts with architects and builders for supplying French flats, apartment houses and other buildings with refrigerators, &c. Mr. Gallon's is the oldest established house in the business. His works are at Nos. 305, 307 and 309 West Forty-first street.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

BRICKS.—Weekly history continues to repeat itself so far as the market for Common Hards is concerned, and there is scarcely a change to note in the situation since our last. Demand does not make much display or show any great anxiety, but still appears to take all the stock afloat, and, indeed, occasionally overruns. This was noticeable within a day or two, when, through the influence of low tides, vessels were unable to leave their docks at primary points, and as a result arrivals were curtailed. Dealers, however, did not appear to be much troubled, but simply drew upon accumulations on hand and waited, with apparent confidence that shipments would be resumed on the first opportunity. Prices, too, keep within about the former range, the small fluctuations being entirely the result of temporary influences and not affecting the average cost. Sellers report that as near as they can judge the major portion of the stock handled goes almost directly into consumption, and that only here and there a cargo is taken for stock. A very large proportion of the "Up River" yards have quit work for the season, and the prospects are that by the time this reaches our readers the production along the entire Hudson will have ceased. Pales remain fairly steady in price and meet with some demand, but the anxiety to become owners of stock is not extending beyond ordinary limits and offerings are ample for all outlets.

GLASS—Demand for window is only moderately active and steadily falling away, with a considerable amount of quiet grumbling taking place. Holders are by no means overburdened with stock as yet, but the accumulation increases instead of diminishes and this naturally is not an agreeable matter for contemplation. Values remain about as before though on the whole lacking in strength.

HARDWARE.—Operations are of an irregular character and without any noticeable increase in general volume. Indeed some of the trade commences to abandon hopes of making any very full distribution this fall and simply look for a steady sort of business in jobbing parcels, with possibly a little fuller spurt before the close of navigation. Offerings in quantity and assortment are ample, with manufacturers finding some difficulty in keeping production adjusted to wants of the market. The former irregularity on values continues and nearly all list rates are now nominal quotations only. The manufacturers of cordage have made a reduction of ½c. per lb. in the price of Manilla rope.

LATH.—Arrivals have again been moderate, but as the demand was a little slow the offering proved quite enough to satisfy the outlet. Indeed, receivers who state matters fluently confess to a little satisfaction that cargoes did not come to hand with greater rapidity, on the belief that it would have been difficult to place them. As matters stand, however, about the old range of prices appears to be current, with possibly $2.15 an average operating basis, though more is asked in some instances on parcels to arrive.

LIME.—A steady market may be recorded, and demand enough to take out all the stock as it comes to hand. Arrivals are moderate, to be sure, and not likely to increase, which may prove an incentive to buyers to handle cargoes whenever the opportunity is presented.

LUMBER.—Occasional reports of a somewhat better feeling are to be heard and there is no doubt that on some grades of stock sellers labor under fewer disadvantages than earlier in the season. The market, however, is not one that would exhaust any important additional supplies and for such small gains as can fairly be admitted credit is due more to a careful adjustment of supply to outlet than to any aid obtained through the character and volume of demand. Some of the yards are certainly doing a first-rate trade but either through stock in hand or coming forward dealers feel equipped to meet all natural calls and are unwilling to handle additions unless tempted by something very attractive either as to assortment or cost. From a portion of the arrivals now and then coming to hand it would appear that there has been a great deal of shopping around during the summer, especially among interior sources of supply, with a probability that many cheap lots of stock as a result fell into dealers hands who were in a position to relieve the urgent wants of sellers at primary points.

Eastern Spruce has a market simply according to the amount offering from first hands. Cargoes coming along slowly at a day or two's interval can generally be placed by ordinary management and even small sizes find an outlet without much delay, but when the arrivals run full enough to create competition for the limited natural demand, the seller who makes the first shading generally overcomes the difficulties of the position in the most expeditious manner and escapes many minor annoyances. It is not likely, however, that there will be any great amount of stock offering during the balance of this season and the position is in shape to become much firmer should any respectable demand arise. About $11.50 up to $16.00 covers the range for poor randoms up to the asking rate on specials.

White Pine is by some of the trade considered quite as badly demoralized as any other grade of lumber sold on this market. There is some home sale for it and now and then fair export orders come to the front, but the entire outlet makes very little show and business seems to be under a constant drag so far as our regular local dealers are concerned. Another class of sellers have been meeting with more or less disappointment in the effort to place parcels from interior accumulations as they find that between supplies on hand and moving forward a large proportion of the trade is provided for and New York not a good market to unload upon. The export trade continues fair and still keeps a little ahead of last year. We quote at $16@17 for West India shipping boards; $18@27 for South American do.; $13@14 for box boards, and $16@18 for extra do.

Yellow Pine still lacks a regular open and free demand, and the appearance of orders, large or small, draws out such a prompt and liberal response in the way of offering "for almost any delivery" as to keep advantage entirely in the hands of buyers. In fact, there is no positive improvement in the market as yet, and reported sales at better figures occasionally made generally have a tale to them, that when fully understood shows an absence of any real gain for the seller. Advices from the South continue tame, and generally it appears impossible to obtain encouraging features. We quote as follows: Randoms, $17@19.50 per M; Specials, $19.50@21 do.; Green Flooring Boards, $22@22; Dry, do., do., $22@23; Siding, $20@22 do.; Cargoes f. o. b. at Atlantic ports, $18@15 for rough, and $18@20 for dressed Cargoes f. o. b. at Gulf ports, $15@14 for rough, and $20@21 for dressed.

Hardwoods are in fair form and tend to some improvement. Cherry, poplar and walnut appear to have rather the best position, though fine lots of all grades are well held. Export clearances continue fair, and embrace a numer of small lots for France and Germany. We quote at wholesale rates by car load as follows: Walnut, $65@100 per M.; ash, $33@40 do.; oak, $30@55 do.; maple, $20@32.50 do.; chestnut, $25@30 do.; cherry, $50@80 do.; whitewood, $27@35 do., do.; elm, $22@25; hickory, $45@50 do.

Shingles are dull on home account, but meet with an occasional export order, and remain about steady for all principal descriptions, as the accumulation on hand is of moderate proportions. We quote Cypress at $8.0 @8.50 per M. for 5x20 and $11.00 @ 12.00 do. for 6x20 regularly assorted shipping. Pine shipping stock $2.00@2.50 for 18 inch, and Eastern saw grades at $2.00@2.50 for 16 inch, as to quality and to quantity. Eastern shaved cedar $4.00 @4.50 per M. Machine dressed cedar shingles quoted as follows: for 30 inch, $15.00@20.00 for A, and $22@28.50 for No. 1; for 24 inch, $13.00@15 for A and $18.50@20.50 for No. 1; for 20 inch, $8@9.50 for A and $11.00@12.50 for No. 1.

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

THE WEST.

Saginaw Valley.

Lumberman's Gazette,
Bay City, Mich.

The lumber market on the Saginaw River seems to be in a sort of comatose condition, minus life or activity. The fact is, there have been few buyers here since our last report, and transactions are few and far between. Prices are beyond the reach of any reasonable calculation. Unless the sales are of good lots and the prices satisfactory, one might about as well attempt the feat of drawing blood out of a turnip as to secure prices on lumber sold. Every manufacturer appears to be "going it blind," or "on his own hook," as one expresses it. Still, with all this unfruitfulness and unsatisfactory conditions, the slaughter of pine continues at nearly every mill on the river, and appearances do not indicate that there is any intention to change the present policy. The motto seems to be, every man for himself, and unless this policy is desisted from there is no telling what the final outcome is to be. That this is the opportune time for buyers is admitted by everybody, for two reasons which are undeniable and unanswerable, viz: Low prices of both lumber and freights. Although the shipments last week aggregated about 25,000,000 feet, yet the week closed with freights dull, and as a prominent vessel agent says: "There are no loads to be had."

The fact is, that unless lumber continues to move some of the mills will soon close for lack of piling room. The Saginaw River, to use the words of a prominent mill man, "is piled full on both sides from its mouth to the Saginaws." This means nearly 500,000,000 feet on the docks, which is double the amount that has usually been held over here; and the worst feature of the situation is that the percentage of lumber sold is less than formerly.

The following sales are reported during the week. Probably they not include all the transactions, but the few sales reported is undoubtedly an index of the slack business of the week: J. H. Hill & Sons, 750,000 feet to Eastern parties at $8.50, $17 and $37, and 250,000 at $8, $16 and $35; a sale of 400,000 feet is reported at Saginaw destined for Ohio; Hamilton & McCure, 500,000 feet to Eastern parties, private terms; A. W. Wright, 1,000,000 feet to Eastern parties at $9, $18 and $38; Mosher & Fisher, 330,000 feet private terms.

The Northwestern Lumberman as follows:

The fact that the market for piece stuff sustained such a pressure as it did on Tuesday, and did not break, is considered by commission men and yard merchants alike as nearly conclusive that prices have touched bottom. Since Tuesday receipts have been light, and it is stated that the purpose of the manufacturers is to withhold shipments during the remainder of the season sufficiently to avoid crowding the market. To accomplish this purpose the mills will be shut down if necessary, it is claimed. The stock in cross-pile will be allowed to stay there until it is wanted. This seems to be the present programme.

The inch lumber arriving is largely coarse No. 2 stock, which is exceedingly druggy and slow of sale. Medium and No. 1 stock is in better request and sells for quoted prices with more readiness. No change of quotations on either class is necessary.

Piece stuff, green	$ —@ 8 00
Long timbers and joists, green	10 00@12 00
Coarse common	9 00@ 9 50
Boards and strips, No. 2, green	9 50@11 00
" medium, green	11 00@15 00
" No. 1, green	15 00@18 00
High grade	18 00@22 00

In the report of stocks on hand in the yards of this city, made by the secretary of the Lumberman's Exchange, it appears that stocks increased through September to the amount of 58,162,565 feet, while the stock of shingles decreased to the extent of over 16,000,000. By the same report it is shown that on October 1 there was 53,955,274 feet more of lumber in pile than at a corresponding date last year, and 46,650,864 less shingles. The secretary's estimate makes out a decrease of sales and shipments this year, up to September 20, of 37,032,427 feet of lumber, and an increase of shingle sales of 13,857,366 over last year.

There is little to say as to the present movement of hardwoods. It is steady at the usual slow rate, and no improvement in any line is to be noted. Receipts continue sufficient for the requirement of an oversupply of poor grades.

Butternut is not in as much request as during the spring and early summer. The fashion now is for red woods, and while that holds sway cherry and its imitations will be in demand. The activity in the bright woods is coincident with the slow demand for walnut, and when that comes into favor again the others must suffer; but though the change will come sometime, there it no sign of it yet.

Lumberman and Manufacturer,
Minneapolis, Minn.

The movement of lumber from the northwest s now limited to the entire carrying capacity of the railroads. There are now booked more orders than can be filled in the next thirty days, and orders gaining on shipments all the time. The movement of grain from Minnesota is immense. Over a million dollars was distributed by the Minneapolis millers during the last week among the farmers for wheat, and this, we estimate, is not more than one-fourth the amount bought. It is safe to say that $30,000,000 will be paid to the farmers of the State for grain between October 1st and December 1st. This will keep up the demand for lumber to its present maximum until winter stops building operations, which may continue until near the holidays. We are inclined again to repeat what we have repeatedly asserted that January 1st will find the lumber stocks from St. Louis to Lake Superior no larger than it was at the beginning of this year. The freight war seems to have little influence on the volume of business done in the Northwest, and the determination to maintain the trade within the legitimate territory without reference to prices (as against Chicago,) becomes more and more manifest daily. That the Northwestern railroads are unwilling to meet Chicago rates to the Missouri valley is still a matter of most bitter complaint, all feeling that the lines should at least divide losses with the lumbermen on their lines sooner than have their business totally suspended.

Last week trade at St. Louis was somewhat lighter than the preceding week, although they have trouble to secure what they do ship. Prices in the city are steady, and no trouble about collections. Receipts by both river and rail are liberal.

At Minneapolis the trade could only secure 417 cars to load for the week. St. Paul is fighting for cars and is full of orders.

All indications point to an immense cut of logs this winter.

ENGLAND.

The London Timber Trade's Journal reports:

Spruce keeps low, but there is nevertheless a general increase in buying, and we are informed that round the coast importers are ready to do business at even a shade above late prices. It is usually in this way that any upward movement begins, and the scarcity of stock at the Canadian shipping ports, with the present extraordinarily low rates of freight would appear to warrant some movements of the kind.

Cedar.—Although no sales have been held, there appears to be a good demand, and the wood which we notice lately landed from Belize is pretty sure to meet with a ready sale.

American black walnut wood.—The consumption is still good, and much of the small and poor wood which has been recently imported seems now to have been sold, and is fast going away; and if shippers do not over-supply the market we should think that prices for good stuff especially are more likely to rise than to fall.

American whitewood.—We believe some further considerable sales have been made, which shows that the trade in this wood is clearly extending its area.

Liverpool.

With the continuance of a moderate importation the market shows no alteration in prices, and with the exception of some considerable quantities of oak timber, which are being forwarded up the country, there are no indications of any improvement in business. The demand is dull and languid all round, and no improvement is looked for until the new year. Meanwhile the state of business in the adjacent manufacturing districts continues as unsatisfactory as ever, and so long as this condition of affairs obtains it is useless to look for any improvement in the timber trade.

NAILS.—The general distribution for sometime past, coupled with a more careful production in many quarters, it is claimed, has materially reduced the excess of supply and now affords an opportunity for a closer control of the offering. Sellers generally appear quite well satisfied with the condition of the market at all events, and reports have a reasonably cheerful form. Exporters hand in fair orders occasionally but the major portion of the distribution is on regular home outlets and embraces about an average assortment. The quotations are placed at $2.10@$2.20 per keg for 10d to 60d according to size of invoice, but laterly some car lots are said to have sold lower under pressure to realize.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—Business is in somewhat irregular form and not as full as expected according to the promises received from some interior points. Local consumption, too, has suddenly fallen away in one or two quarters where a better trade was expected, and as a whole the market is dull. Dealers in consequence do no speak very cheerfully, yet a conservative portion of the trade admit that matter are on about a par with other lines of merchandise, and to await the movement of buyers is about the only course to be pursued. Linseed Oil selling fairly and closes at about 53@54 for domestic and 54@56 for foreign. Spirits Turpentine not active outside the jobbing call, but less plenty and firmer at 31@33c according to quantity, package, etc.

PITCH AND TAR.—The general movement of supplies is fair and for most parcels changing hands full former rates are obtained with little difficulty. We quote Pitch $2.25@$2.30 per bbl.; Tar $2.50@$2.00, according to quantity, quality and delivery.

LUMBER MARKET QUOTATIONS.

The Albany Argus gives yard quotations for the week ending October 21, 1884, as follows:

Pine, good, 2½ in. and upwards, per M.	$52 00@ 55 00
Pine, 4ths, do per M.	48 00@ 50 00
Pine, selects, do per M.	43 00@ 45 00

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as headings are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

JUDGMENTS.

In these lists of judgments the names alphabetically arranged, and which are first on each line, are those of the judgment debtor. The letter (D) means judgment for deficiency. (*) means not summoned. (†) signifies that the first name is fictitious, real name being unknown. Judgments entered during the week, and satisfied before day of publication, do not appear in this column but in list of Satisfied Judgments.

J. T. LINDSEY, Business Manager.

NOVEMBER 1, 1884.

The proposed amendment to the State constitution, limiting the local debts of cities to ten per cent. of the real estate valuation, is to be voted upon before the next issue of this publication. As we regard it as of vastly more importance to tax-payers than the result of the presidential election, we earnestly entreat all our readers to vote for the amendment and get all their friends to do likewise. Elsewhere will be found a ticket containing an approval of the amendment, which can be cut out by persons wishing to vote for it. Anyone wanting ballots to give their friends can procure them at the office of THE RECORD AND GUIDE, 191 Broadway, up to the close of business hours on Monday next. This amendment is substantially a copy of provisions of the same kind in the constitutions of Missouri, Illinois and other States. The time is coming, we hope, when a further amendment will restrict local indebtedness to five per cent. of the assessed valuation of real estate, but the ten per cent. restriction will be a good beginning to a reform which, if adopted, will permanently improve the value of real property.

Notwithstanding the enthusiastic approval of our city press when Judge Gresham was appointed Secretary of the Treasury, we ventured to question his fitness for that position. His resignation after having held that office for so short a term was unquestionably due to the fact that his experience as an army officer and a judge on a local western circuit was not such as to qualify him for being the head of a department which required not only special technical knowledge but a wide acquaintance with all questions affecting the finances of the government. The selection of Mr. Hugh McCulloch in place of Judge Gresham is a wise one. That gentleman has not only the experience in the business department, but is a man of sound practical judgment. Secretary McCulloch is a bimetallist, although originally he favored the gold unit of value. He probably is opposed to the further coinage of silver dollars, but he will give silver a fair chance and his influence in the cabinet will be exerted towards bringing about international treaties, reinstating if possible silver in its old place as a money metal having equal power with gold in establishing prices. Mr. McCulloch had to leave the cabinet before because he favored equalizing the price of gold and greenbacks; but subsequent events have justified the position he took. Mr. McCulloch will stand head and shoulders above any other member of the cabinet of President Arthur. This is not much to say, for it must be confessed that the other advisers of the President are none of them men of mark. Secretary Chandler is not lacking in ability, but he does lack about every other quality which should be possessed by a cabinet officer.

The new Secretary of the Treasury is on record as having recently criticised the decision of the Supreme Court on the legal-tender question adversely. He holds that gold and silver is the only constitutional currency, and that no mere act of Congress can give value to a piece of paper. It is strange how this astonishing decision of our highest court should have been passed by in silence. Neither in the press, in political conventions nor in State legislatures has its legality or justice been impugned; but yet if it holds good we will certainly be treated to another trial of fiat money. Irredeemable paper currency has been tested over and over again and always with the most disastrous results. This legal-tender decision is as important in its way as was the Dred-Scott decision and is quite as surprising. We believe that the one will finally be set aside just as the other was, for it is not in the power of all the governments on earth to give value to a piece of paper, unless the latter is convertible into one or both of the precious metals.

Among the questions with which Secretary McCulloch will have to deal is the bank note circulation. In four years the banks have voluntarily surrendered $67,000,000, but within the same period nearly $200,000,000 gold and silver bullion has been [illegible] the most of which has entered into the currency of the country in the shape of coin certificates. It is estimated that the net increase of currency in four years' time is about $129,000,000. A writer in the Commercial Bulletin predicts that the Treasury Department will have to double its gold and silver notes within the next few months in substitution of surrendered bank circulation, as the same returns for redemption. The writer adds:

In view of the early surrender of more than half the national bank circulation, the following estimate of the note circulation six months or a year hence may not be out of place:

Fives, greenback	$280,000,000
Tens, silver	200,000,000
Twenties, gold	300,000,000
Ones and twos, greenback	66,681,000
Total Treasury	$846,681,000
Bank notes	150,000,000
Grand total	$946,681,000
Present Circulation	869,681,000
Allowed for increase	$77,000,000

It really looks as if the entire bank circulation would in a few years be replaced by gold notes, silver certificates or greenbacks. For safety this would be an ideal currency, but something should be done to make it elastic, that is, to devise something that would vary with the wants of the business world. The banks in the long run would get along quite as well without the power to issue notes, and there would be an advantage in a circulation which could not be rapidly contracted by frightened and irresponsible corporations. It is evident that the money question will be a leading topic for discussion for several years to come, yet strange enough all reference to it has been carefully excluded from the national platforms of the two parties.

The Republicans have made an excellent nomination for Mayor in the person of Senator Gibbs, who so heartily seconded Theodore Roosevelt in the reform measures passed by the Legislature last winter. It is very evident, however, that Mr. John J. O'Brien has no desire to elect a Republican Mayor, nor does he take an interest in any Republican candidate, save his nominee for District Attorney, Charles S. Spencer. In view of the division between Tammany and the County Democracy and the large vote Blaine will poll the Republicans had a "dead sure thing" if a good candidate was nominated, who would be heartily supported by the machine; but a candidate who could be elected would have to be a first-class man, and such an one in office would have antagonized Mr. O'Brien at once. So that worthy has made a deal, and we have no doubt that there is somewhere in existence a document apportioning the offices to be appointed by the Mayor during his forthcoming term between Johnny O'Brien and--well, with whom it is difficult to say. The popular impression is that the deal is with Tammany, but there are many reasons for believing that Hubert O. Thompson is one of the parties to the bargain. Mr. O'Brien seems to have arranged matters very ingeniously for destroying every chance the Republicans had of carrying their county ticket. In the meantime the Tammany ticket is not losing strength, for upon the whole it is an excellent one, and should Mayor Grace be returned he will bring experience at least to the discharge of his duties. All New York should be grateful to him for his creation of our very efficient street cleaning commission.

In Switzerland all general laws must be referred to the great body of the voters for endorsement before they can become laws. In that pure Democracy no authority is given to the Legislature which the people can exercise themselves; hence, what is called the Referendum. The most keenly contested elections are those in which important laws are submitted to the people for their endorsement. How different are elections in this country! All our political contests are personal. There is really no vital issue between the parties. The mighty struggle going on is between two men and the matter to be decided is not a programme of principles, but a distribution of the public patronage. Constitutional amendments of the utmost importance receive little attention from the voters. There is an amendment pending to be voted upon next Tuesday which is of the utmost moment to every one who pays taxes, and yet the newspapers which daily give up page after page to personal politics have only had occasional paragraphs touching the necessity of endorsing the constitutional amendment limiting all local debts hereafter to 10 per cent. of the valuation of real estate, and forbidding taxing officers from levying annually more than 2 per cent. Of the 225,000 ballots which will probably be cast next Tuesday we doubt if 40,000 will be deposited for or against this vital amendment.

In our Business World of last week we gave a condensation of Engineer Kent's address on the "Insanity of Capital," which waits until prices are high before engaging in any enterprise. Railways [illegible] into their construction are at the very highest. The same is true of house building and the construction of factories and stores. The rule invariably being to build at the costliest price and to stop expenditure when prices are at their lowest and the largest return can be made for the outlay of money. The Baltimore & Ohio corporation under the management of Robert Garrett, recently deceased, furnished perhaps the only exception to this rule. The extension of that system to Chicago was made when prices were lowest, in 1876–77, and a saving was effected of fully 40 per cent. compared with the prices current in 1880 and 1881.

But the action of the general government is equally fatuous. It cuts down expenses when prices are at their lowest and is profuse in its outlays when the cost is greatest. The Democratic House of Representatives, elected in 1876, under the leadership of Mr. Randall did all it could to increase the prevalent distress by reducing the appropriations to the lowest possible point. It is of course inevitable that individuals should economize when times are hard but there is no such necessity for a corporation or a great government whose credit is good. In periods of business depression all necessary work of a business character should be encouraged as helps to alleviate the distress of the times, but when labor is well employed at good prices the central government should not compete with employers in making production much more costly.

The Cotton Exchange.

The problem presented by the Cotton Exchange was very difficult. There was the difficulty of combining a large hall for the uses of a mercantile exchange with several stories of office, which no architect can be said to have completely overcome, and which is perhaps insuperable. In the Cotton Exchange this difficulty was complicated with the difficulty of putting such a building upon an irregular plot, the site in this case being a trapezoid. This last difficulty indeed may become an opportunity in the hands of a skillful and fortunate designer. Mr. Post, the architect of the Cotton Exchange, has achieved a decided success in the Post building, where this difficulty was presented, though the site of that building is less trying than the site of the Cotton Exchange.

The three visible fronts of the Cotton Exchange are not very unequal. That upon William street seems somewhat the longest. The corner of William street and Hanover square is a right angle or nearly so, while that of Beaver and William appears to be less than a right angle. Hanover square is here an open space of sufficient area to allow the southern front of the building to be well seen, and the most effective arrangement of the building would seem to be that which should make the most of this front, and, if there were to be a dominating feature, should establish this at the southeast corner, the most conspicuous point, and lead the lines of the front which meet here up to this feature. This, however, is not the arrangement adopted. The dominant feature of the building is the tower, which is erected at the less conspicuous corner of William and Beaver, signalizing the main entrance to the Cotton Exchange, and the stress of the design is thrown upon the William street front, which is the least conspicuous of the three. This front shows a round tower of large dimensions, rounded from the foundation, at the north end, and a square pavilion of nearly equal area but of less height at the south, the two features being detached above the Exchange room, which occupies the principal story, by the withdrawal of the wall between them, forming the same kind of recess with which Mr. Post has made us familiar in the Post building and the Mills building. The rear wall of this recess is not parallel with the front, the two terminal features are quite different in form, and the front is not wide enough to make them effective terminations to it. They are not features of one building, but two buildings huddled together.

From this treatment of the principal front it results that the other two fronts are unsymmetrical also, one side of the steeply roofed round tower being at one end of the one, and one side of the only less steeply roofed pavillion at one end of the other, with no balancing feature at the opposite end of either. On the Hanover square front the arrangement of openings is one at the left, then three, then two pairs at the right. There are six stories between the basement and the cornice, in three divisions of two stories each, the lower two divisions being united into one where the large windows of the Exchange appear. The parapet story consists of groups of windows aligned above those below, and each group united under a round pediment. The vertical divisions are marked by "orders" of pilasters running through the two stories, and seeming to carry cornices. The cornice over the Exchange room has a function, as evidently marking off that portion of the building from the offices above. But the division by the same member of the four stories above into two groups is obviously without meaning, and it has the very bad effect of cutting the building vertically into three divisions of equal size and importance. The object of the arrangement, if it had an object, was probably to increase the relative importance of the Exchange room, but no device can make two stories equal to four of the same height. If the four stories of offices had not been divided they would have counted as a single predominant feature of the front, and that is precisely what each of the fronts lacks. In the tower, the stone work of the basement, treated very simply and massively, is carried to the top of the Exchange story. If the meaningless order in the brickwork above had been suppressed the tower would have been an extremely satisfactory object, consisting, as it then would, of a sufficient base, a shaft and a crowning member, instead of having the shaft meaninglessly sub-divided into two equal parts. As it is, this tower, when it is roofed, will be much the best part of the building. The roof is not yet on, but the dormers at its base are set, and consisting as they do of single openings sufficiently detached, they offer a grateful contrast to the huddled groups of openings which elsewhere break the lines of the roof.

It is conceivable that the awkwardness of the general arrangement might have been overcome, and its discords resolved, but nobody will say that it has been overcome or that either of the three fronts is an harmonious composition. The placing of two competing masses of different forms, and of nearly the same value, at the ends of the principal fronts, was a mistake that no treatment of detail could have redeemed. But the very free treatment of the masses should have been accompanied by a free and romantic treatment of detail, whereas the structural detail here is all formalized to the last degree. Wherever the orders may be in place they are not in place in a building composed with the entire disregard of convention that is shown here. A defect of the structural detail is that it everywhere ignores the material. The Cotton Exchange is a design for a brick and stone building executed in brick and terra cotta. The decorative detail consists of reliefs in terra cotta in the spandrils of the openings of the Exchange itself, and here the plasticity of the material and its capabilities are fully recognized.

The defects of which we have spoken forbid us to call the Cotton Exchange a successful piece of architecture, but it is not without many merits. Up to the top of the Exchange itself it is excellent, the basement is simply and strongly treated. The choice and contrast of material is effective, though blue stone would be more effective still in combination with this yellow brick and terra cotta. The great room, which is the chief fact of the building, is unmistakably expressed, and the arrangement by which its great windows are harmonized with the two tiers of smaller openings would leave nothing to be desired, if the meagre orders were abolished. The great windows themselves, consisting of three round arched openings under a large arch at the northern and southern ends, where only one window appears, and of a large arch turned over two sub-arches on the west front, are particularly well designed. The row of three of these latter openings is perhaps the most successful feature of the whole, except the tower, of which we have already spoken. But above this there is nothing to praise, and the general aspect of the building is huddled, confused and incoherent.

Our Prophetic Department.

CITIZEN—Suppose we have a little chat about politics; indeed no other topic seems to be tolerated just now. Everybody one meets and all the newspapers seem to have nothing else to talk about. Can you answer the conundrum as to who is to be elected President?

SIR ORACLE—Bother politics. I am heartily sick of the great war of words which is raging between the contesting parties. What especially angers me are the false issues which have been raised. There are vital questions which will demand a settlement within the next four years, but these do not seem to enter into the canvass at all, while a tremendous dust is raised about one issue which really has no significance.

CITIZEN—To what do you refer?

SIR O.—The tariff question. Personally I am neither a protectionist nor a free-trader. I suppose of course that all large-minded citizens of the world look forward to the day when custom houses will be abolished and when the productions of every country will be freely interchanged; but this ideal cannot be carried out for many long years. Democratic communities all over the world believe in the protection of home industriess, as witness the United States, France, Australia and the other colonies of Great Britain in the Pacific Ocean, and Canada. Outside of Great Britain it is only semi-civilized communities which tolerate absolute free trade. The prosperity of any nation, from my point of view, is entirely irrespective of tariffs. France is one of the richest nations on earth and has become so under a high protective tariff. Our periods of greatest prosperity were when our import duties were very high. Yet our years of greatest prosperity were under the very liberal tariff of 1846 which was manipulated by that well-known theoretical free-trader, Robert J. Walker.

CITIZEN—But is it not true, as pointed out in Mr. Blaine's "Twenty Years in Congress," that the great business activity of the country then was not due to the low tariff of 1846 but to the discovery of gold in California? Then the war in Europe and the Irish famine created a large demand for our breadstuffs.

SIR O.—Now you have entered upon what I regard as a vital matter. It is the abundance or scarcity of the precious metals which is a vital factor in making tim s good or bad. Our tariff to-day is very high, so is that of France, and yet industry is depressed in both countries, the reason being, from my point of view, in the falling off in the supply of gold from the mines and the demonetization of silver by the leading commercial nations. It is the scarcity of real money which is depressing the industries of the world.

CITIZEN—But is it not true that all the free-traders will vote for Mr. Cleveland, and if he should succeed would there not be danger of anti-protectionist legislation?

SIR O.—Not at all. While it is quite true that nearly all the free-traders will vote for Mr. Cleveland, there is an influential section of the Democratic party which is protectionist to the core. In the last House of Representatives the Democrats had seventy majority but they were unable to pass through that body the very modest, moderate and conservative tariff bill proposed by Mr. Morrison, of Illinois. For myself I think that measure should have been passed, and I am not a free-trader either. By reducing the duty on raw material it would have given our manufacturers a better chance to compete with those of foreign lands in the markets of the world. Now, even should Mr. Cleveland be elected, there is no likelihood of seventy majority for the Democrats in the House, and I feel quite sure, from the expression of public opinion in this canvass, that were they to have a hundred majority in the popular branch of the National Legislature there would be no possible danger of free trade or even revenue reform legislation.

CITIZEN—Then all this hulabaloo about the tariff is raising a dust touching a question which has no real vitality in the politics of the country?

SIR O.—From my point of view it is not a practical question at all.

CITIZEN—What are, then, the important issues likely to come to the front within the next four years?

SIR O.—The foreign policy of the country is to my mind the most serious. Count de Lesseps says that the great ship canal at Panama will be practically completed by the close of 1886. Before a ship passes through, the United States and the powers of Western Europe will engage in a serious diplomatic fight if not in actual hostilities. Great Britain, France and Germany will claim the right to control that canal, because French money constructed it, and the continent of Europe is more interested in the trade with Asia than is the United States. The people of this country will try to enforce the Monroe doctrine, and will tell Europe to keep its hands off any part of this country not now in its possession. If a weak President is chosen we will come out second best in the conflict. If a man like Blaine, there is real danger of foreign war.

CITIZEN—What other question or questions will come up for settlement?

SIR O.—There's the silver question. A determined effort will be made by the creditor and banking interests to discontinue the coinage of the silver dollar. This will lead to a widespread agitation. Then there is the Blair Educational Bill, which has passed through the Senate and is on the table of the House to be acted upon. Under the provisions of this proposed enactment nearly a hundred million dollars is appropriated in the form of land grants to diminish the illiteracy now so common in all parts of the Union, but particularly at the South. An effort also will be made to give us a navy and to resuscitate our merchant marine. Should Mr. Cleveland be chosen he will probably veto the Blair Educational Bill and all appropriations looking to the enlargement of our navy or an increase in our merchant marine. Mr. Cleveland is a "strict construction of the constitution" Democrat, and as much of his reputation is due to his vetoes as GOVERNOR, he would not scruple to decline approving any measure which would take money out of the public treasury.

CITIZEN—Now for the important question of all. Which shall be chosen, Mr. Blaine or Mr. Cleveland?

SIR O.—I hardly like to answer that question, as political feeling runs so high just now that an unbiased judgment would be regarded as partisanship. I have repeatedly said in these conversations that were the election to have been held a month after the nominations Mr. Cleveland would have been chosen by a large majority of the electoral college; but the tide has, I think, changed. It is true that I meet a surprising number of Republicans who say they will not vote for Mr. Blaine and many of them will vote for Mr. Cleveland, but actual election returns tell the story better than the personal experience of any individual. It is very few of us that know the preferences of a hundred voters, but a vote involving 700,000 persons furnishes data which has very great weight. We have had the returns from four States. Vermont showed a very slight falling off in the Republican vote. Before the Maine election was held I made up my mind if the Republicans did not carry the State by 8,000 majority that the "jig was up" with Mr. Blaine; but, to my surprise, the Republican Governor was chosen by over 19,000 majority. But then I called to mind the misleading character of the Maine election four years ago. In the vote of 1880 it seemed as if the Republican party had gone to pieces, but, nevertheless, Garfield was elected because of the moral effect of the Ohio State election. Well, what has been the effect of the Ohio State contest this year? Why, Republican pluralities which have varied from 11,000 to 19,000 for the Republican ticket, yet the Democrats carried the election last year by over 12,000 majority. The West Virginia election was a drawn battle and without significance. I certainly think that the chances are in favor of Mr. Blaine, but I think that the majority in the House of Representatives will be very small either way, with the chances in favor of the Democrats. It looks to me as if New York and Connecticut will go Republican, New Jersey Democratic, while Indiana is very doubtful.

CITIZEN—How about the vote in New York city?

SIR O.—The registry was nearly 241,000. The actual vote will be about 226,000. Blaine will, I think, poll over 90,000 votes; Butler 10,000 and St. John a couple of thousand. Kings County will go 15,000 to 16,000 majority for Cleveland. St. John will poll a small vote from the difficulty of getting electoral tickets, and the Butler vote will be smaller than it would otherwise have been, owing to the desire of the rank and file of the Peoples' party to defeat Cleveland; but, of course, these estimates are liable to be far out of the way. Blaine may not poll 80,000 votes in New York and he may poll 100,000. It is the unexpected that often happens in politics, but in my judgment the chances are slightly in favor of Mr. Blaine's election as President of the United States.

CITIZEN—Do you not think that Mr. Blaine's personal canvass has helped him?

SIR O.—As to that I am doubtful. Mr. Greeley was received with uproarious applause when on his presidential tour, but he was badly beaten notwithstanding. I doubt the efficacy of processions, mass meetings and the clamorous appeals of the party organs. It is very few people who are impressed by these ad captandum demonstrations. In any event, the country is safe no matter who is chosen.

Again the Newspapers.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

There is trouble in the newspaper offices. The Herald has lost so much in circulation and income that it has cut down its editorial staff by twenty-two persons and reduced salaries all around. Mr. Bennett has made a great many errors in judgment of late years. The reduction of his paper from three to two cents was a sad mistake, as advertisers avoid cheap papers, and invariably patronize those whose price is such as to give an assurance that well-to-do people take it. A constituency of the laboring classes is not attractive to an advertiser who wishes to bring his wares before the purchasing public. Then the war on the newsmen was a very silly matter; but apart from these business mistakes the Herald is entirely lacking in political sagacity. It wants to be on the winning side, but for years it has been advocating the unsuccessful candidates. Its local quarrels have all been unfortunate. In his earlier career the young Mr. Bennett did some striking things, such as the employing of Stanley to discover Livingston and the Congo land. The North Pole expedition showed enterprise, but the fatal results which followed the foundering of the Jeannette seems to have demoralized Mr. Bennett, and he has done nothing striking for several years. In the meantime the editorial page is imbecility itself.

The Times does not circulate any more papers at two cents as it did at four, and it has lost advertising patronage by its political course; but the real estate property of the Times is still very valuable, and it pays a good dividend to the stockholders. As a newspaper property the Times is not worth as much by one-half at it was when Horace Greeley was running for the Presidency.

The Sun honestly confesses that it has lost circulation and patronage in opposing Cleveland. Its weekly circulation has been almost entirely cut off. Country subscribers will not tolerate any eccentricity in their newspaper organs. When the World called upon Frank Blair to withdraw from the Seymour ticket it lost nearly all its weekly subscribers. When Mr. Greeley became the Democratic nominee for the Presidency, the Tribune subscribers went over en masse to the Times, particularly those in the country districts; and now the Sun and Times have both lost circulation for bolting the nominees of their respective parties.

The Tribune has made heavy gains because it has been about the only Blaine paper in this end of the State. As the business public is mainly Republican it has had large additions, not only to its subscription list but to its advertising columns.

None of the evening papers are making any money except, perhaps, the Daily News. Several of them must consolidate or pass out of existence before the 1st of January, 1886. The Evening Post and Commercial Advertiser, one Cleveland and the other Blaine, are both falling behind. The former because of its violent partisanship and the latter for its want of newspaper sense.

The future of the morning press is very much mixed. The World has increased its circulation but it cannot be making much money. The Herald, while Mr. Bennett owns it, will never be the paper it was. It keeps a great part of its advertising patronage because of the stupidity of its rivals in not excluding displayed advertisements from their colums The great advertising sheets of all the capitals of the world never permit one advertiser to have any typographical superiority over another.

New York needs a better newspaper than any it now has. They all give the news, but that department of the paper is rarely well edited. The Sun is by all odds the best written and the best edited paper in New York. It is under a cloud just now on account of its opposition to Cleveland. It would go to the front again next year if it rigidly excluded displayed advertisements, printed a double sheet and raised its price to three cents. By this course it would soon get the Herald's advertising, and when it gave more reading matter its circulation would be increased largely. Should Mr. Blaine be elected, the Tribune will become an important paper as it will be the organ of the administration, but it is not likely to retain its pre-eminence in the event of a Republican success. Mr. Whitelaw Reid will probably be sent abroad as minister to some foreign capital. So far he has not been happy in his choice of managers, and the paper will probably deteriorate during his absence from New York.

There is an opening in this city for a first-class journal. Neither the Sun or Tribune can yet claim to be such, and they are the best we have so far.

AN OLD EDITOR.

All About Fire-Brick.

UNUSUALLY LARGE SHIPMENTS FROM ABROAD—AN UNFAVORABLE SEASON FOR DOMESTICS—PROTECTION NO PANACEA—"WHAT WE WANT IS A MARKET."

"Business has been very unsatisfactory with us this season," said William Poillon, president of the Salamander Works. "This has been due to the general depression in trade, to the stagnation in the iron industry, and to the unusually large influx of foreign fire-brick. The latter came in sufficient quantities to demoralize the home market. They were generally sold to arrive, so that large shipments were ordered from Europe which were practically sold on their arrival at this port. Large quantities are also forwarded here as ballast, or at a nominal cost for freights, and they are then thrown on the market, which becomes glutted. They are often disposed of at very low figures so as to save the cost of storage, there being no special price for imported brick. I am not in favor of protecting our industry under present circumstances. Protection as we now have it," continued Mr. Poillon, "is all a farce in my judgment. The import duty on fire-brick is only 20 per cent. The cost of brick is $11 per ton on board at Liverpool, which would make it $13.20, inclusive of duty. If it were raised to 30 per cent. it would be of some service to us. I admit that a higher duty might increase the price. If we are to have protection, however, it should be effectual; at present it is almost useless to us. I am in favor of an advance in the direction of free trade. I would introduce a graduating scale downwards; that is, I would reduce the import duty so much every year till it was abolished. By this means we would eventually be enabled to compete with Europe, for the manufacturer would know what he had to expect, and he would then perfect his machinery and implements with his profits and so be enabled to produce at a smaller cost. The great advantage of a sliding scale would be that prices would be steady instead of vascillating. We would know what to expect, instead of being in a continual state of anxiety as to what will come next. I don't think prices would become exorbitant if a very high tariff were to exclude foreign material, and thus force domestic goods on consumers, for there are always capitalists ready to go into anything profitable, and competition would very soon reduce our prices to a reasonable basis. I think American fire-brick is equal to foreign, generally speaking. It is better for some purposes and not as good for others. In nine cases out of ten it is as good as required in this market. The prices of foreign and domestic brick are somewhat apart. The present cost of delivering the former is about $30 in New York city; our figure—No. 1—is about $35. Of course if ordered in truck loads the cost is greater than in quantities. Our prices are a little lower this year, one of the principal causes being over-production. The iron interest, which has always taken the largest share of brick, is prostrated, and to crown all the building strikes have done us great injury. Our out-of-town is about as large as our local trade. We ship all over New York State and throughout the Eastern States. We do very little South, where we once did a fair business. The English shipowners take fire-brick out at a nominal sum or as ballast to fill up their cargoes, and get the advantage of return freights, so that the South has ceased to be an outlet for our material."

"We have done no business in fire-brick to speak of this year," said W. C. Hall, vice-president of the Perth Amboy Terra Cotta Co. "We have never been so dull. Two-thirds of the blast furnaces of the country are shut down, and the rest are doing very little, simply keeping up a supply to meet the demand. The iron trade is a reflex of the fire-brick business, so that you can judge we have reason for complaint. Our prices are lower at present than I have ever known them to be. After the panic of 1873, our figure was $28. Three months after it rose to $55; it is now $26. This is the price at our factory. I think our brick will stand a good comparison with the imported article. The latter is mostly of inferior quality. Imported fire brick is good for setting boilers, but not for furnaces." "Would a higher protective duty benefit you?" asked the reporter. "We don't want any protection," was the reply. "What we want is a market."

"We have imported more fire-brick this season than in any previous year," said Fred. R. Gillespie, of Hammill & Gillespie. "Trade was very brisk in the early part of the year, though it has fallen off during the last month or two, but in the aggregate I should think, though I cannot give the exact figures, our business has been from 25 to 33 per cent. larger than it was in 1883. I think American fire brick is better shaped and nicer in appearance than the English. This would apply especially to the article turned out by one or two well-known manufacturers. On the other hand the average English brick stands heat better than the average American. The steel and glass works had during recent years created a special demand for Dinas (Welsh) brick. Our prices have been 10 to 20 per cent. lower this year than last. I attribute this to the dull times, and to increased competition among importers. There has has been a good deal of competition on the other side also, and English manufacturers have sent over an unusually large stock this year. They are sending goods across at a very low margin and in several instances at a loss. It is necessary for them to keep up their furnaces, and this often results in a surplus, which must be disposed of at any cost. The present protective tariff does not injure foreign manufacturers. If the duty were raised to 30 per cent. it would not materially affect them. If increased to 40 per cent., however, it would hurt them rather seriously, though there are certain bricks which the United States must have for particular purposes. A duty of 50 per cent. would be necessary to exclude foreign brick, and this would only stop the lower qualities from coming here, that is, presuming the price of domestics were not higher than they are at present. Consumers in the United States would pay a very large price for Dinas fire-brick, and no matter what the duty it would continue to be imported, though in placing on a higher duty the United States would be taxing its own citizens, while the English would not be affected to any great extent. There is a peculiar notion on the part of some people that fire-brick is imported as ballast. Now I should not deny it if it were true, for it would enable us to sell cheaper to the consumer on this side. But I emphatically state that such is not the case. We have never imported a brick to this country as ballast. We now pay 10s. per ton by steamer. This is the lowest figure for the season; in the earlier part of the year we paid as high as 15s. from Glasgow, while we now have a cargo on the way by the ship "Constance," from Liverpool, at 5s. 6d. per ton, and another from Bristol at 8s. per ton. A thousand fire-bricks weigh three tons, so that the freight per M is 16s. 6d. and 24s. respectively by sail, and 30s. by steam. It is true that some steamers have taken shipments under the regular rates, so as to get weight on the vessels, but the English shipowners have combined to maintain freights. Should there be no agitation on the tariff question I expect a prosperous season during the forthcoming year. In any event I anticipate a large business."

"There has been considerable trade done," said S. L. Merchant, "but at prices that have left but a small margin of profit to the importer. Figures have been 10 per cent. lower this year than last, but this has been equalized by a reduction in freights. Although an importer, I am free to confess that on the whole American fire-brick is superior to foreign. The great drawback to most of the imported fire-brick is that it is irregular in size and inferior in quality. If the British manufacturers were to stick to a good rather than an inferior article and be more careful as to the manner of shipment and handling, so that the brick arrived here in proper condition, I think there would be a much larger sale of foreign brick than there is at present, for people on this side would then have greater confidence in the imported article. The difficulty is that we cannot rely on a uniform quality being sent from the other side. For instance, we imported 35,000 brick last year which were in excellent condition and of good quality, and therefore readily found a market here, as well as giving satisfaction. This year we received from the same parties a shipment which was of inferior quality, and which we found it difficult to dispose of. English manufacturers can never expect to maintain a market for their fire-brick in this country if they pursue such a short-sighted policy. They will have to send us a good article of uniform quality, or they will have to bid adieu to their trade with the United States in the future, for the consumer will come to prefer the domestic brick. The Dinas is, of course, an exception, and is not open to the objections stated. It is used for glass works, as it can stand a constant steady heat better than other brick. I understand that there is a good domestic luminous brick manufactured somewhere in the East which is equal if not superior to the Dinas, but it is more expensive. I don't think a high tariff would benefit the home producer. It would not reduce the foreign imports to any extent, nor would it increase the profits of the manufacturer, while it might raise the cost to the consumer."

"We have found the demand to be about the same as last year," said Henry Maurer, "and our sales have not shown a falling off. Our prices are lower by 10 per cent. in some grades, and somewhat less in others. Our out-of-town is larger than our local trade. We ship West and South and throughout the Eastern States. We find the demand increasing. While the stagnation in the iron industry has affected us, our sales have been made up by increased out-of-town orders. We do not come into competition with imported brick so that we have not been affected by the large shipments from England this year. Free trade in fire-brick would hurt us to some extent, but would not seriously affect us. We should get as many orders in a certain class of goods while in others we should probably get less."

The Mechanics' and Traders' Exchange have resolved to erect a building of their own to supersede their quarters in Vesey street. The Board of Managers have for some time been engaged in obtaining the subscriptions of members, the capital stock required being $250,000 in 2,500 shares of $100 each. The signatures of two-thirds of the members to 600 shares is requisite before any action can be taken. Eighty-one members have already signed for 324 shares. The membership of the Exchange is 300, so that there is every likelihood of the remaining shares being taken up and the required number of members subscribing. Some sixty or seventy more promises have been made, in addition to those whose signatures have been obtained. It is intended to turn over to the treasurer of the building $15,000 of the accumulated monies of the Exchange, and issue therefor to each member a scrip to the value of $50, convertible into stock. Members subscribing for the second share will be entitled to a deduction from the amount of their membership admission fee. It is expected that the entire capital stock will be subscribed for and the requisite number of members obtained before the end of the year.

It is noted as a singular fact that the United States, with all its triumphs in the application of electricity, has only one electric railway, a mile in length, while in France, Germany and Ireland all have several roads of that kind eight or ten miles long. The latest invention in this line, by the way, provides for using the waste power of the engine in lighting the streets through which the railway may pass.

Home Decorative Notes.

—Pongee is greatly used for bureau coverings and chair backs; it may also be successfully employed for bookcase hangings without embroidery, but simply outline with colored silks suitable mottoes in quaint Old English lettering. The following are excellent mottoes: "Not how many books thou hast, but how good;" very quaint is the Old English of Chaucer, who says: "Outen olde books come all this new knowledge that men learne;" very suitable also would be papyrus reeds grouped on one side, embroidered in dull red, while across the top would be embroidered one of the following mottoes: "Without books God is silent;" "Thoughts are the blossoms of the mind;" "Refresh me with a great thought."

—Cherry in its natural state but polished highly is the fashionable wood for rich chamber furniture.

—Dull pale blue is a handsome color for portieres, with a band of old gold plush embroidered in dull blue iris lilies, or lotus flowers.

—Ice cream sets in cut glass have square saucers.

—An odd foot-rest has an elephant's head in ebony with ivory tusks tipped in brass, the top is ornamented with cardinal plush.

—Mahogany tea tables for 5 o'clock teas are set on a pedestal of brass made in the form of a tripod.

—Silks, brocades and all the richest fabrics are used to make an Oriental-like luxury for the bed; lace and flowered brocade is most in favor; guipure lace is still the fashionable bed trimming.

—Figured velveteens come in very artistic and beautiful designs for furniture covering.

—A spray of jasmine gracefully arranged is specially suitable for a tea-cosey; embroider on velvet in natural colors with filoselle.

—Among new characteristic dining-room wall coverings may be mentioned jute tapestries in two shades of a quiet color, with linen rope netted friezes finished with tassels of same material; sometimes a dado of Japanese matting in deep maroon accompanies this tapestry, or a dado of plush, but dados, except for a dining-room, are virtually out of date.

—Very beautiful brass vases are seen in displays of wedding gifts; a most sumptuous effect is made by these vases when filled with Catherine de Mermet roses.

—A handy folding table has recently been patented, when folded it occupies scarcely any more space than the top board alone, and when erected for use it is firm and strong, taking it down or putting up is but the work of a moment.

—Silver platters for serving roasts as well as entrees are now made of heavy weight coin silver.

—Riding whips for ladies of the English pattern of dog whip have a jewel set into the top of the handle.

—A happy sign of the time is that the growth of taste is gaining steadily on our desire for luxury; the more a people have their taste cultivated the more correct will be their appraisement of articles into which artistic taste enters; an immense zeal and activity is noticed among American designs of furniture to produce something that shall be the expression of a generation or an epoch. G. Epple & Son, 916 Broadway, exhibit many novel and choice designs in furniture and interior decoration.

—The newest thing in brass ash-receivers for smokers use is a concave crescent, with the profile of the man-in-the moon forming the inner edge.

—The variety and styles of lambrequins are endless, and the various devices in designs eagerly sought after; a lovely lambrequin adapted for a "blue room" is of white broadcloth, with tiny fans of satin or brocades in blue applied; canary-colored silk or gilt cord may be used to outline and ornament; the edge may be cut in deep points.

—Jute velours, draperies for window curtains and portiers have been brought to a wonderful degree of perfection; the double pile thrown up on both sides is fully an inch thick, and has a very soft and velvety appearance.

—Old San Domingo mahogany in Colonial or Old English style is the rage for furnishing dining-rooms and libraries.

—All sorts of odd and expensive silks are used for sash curtains to Queen Anne windows; Japanese gauze and the Verona silks are particularly adapted for this purpose, the latter ranges in color from blush pink to copper and pomegranate, intermingled with many greens and blues.

—Many beautiful designs suitable for gifts are made of New Jersey pottery, which is admired much for its delicacy and artistic beauty.

—Eider down flannel, embroidered in floss silks and Kensington wools, have in a measure replaced the luxurious eider down quilts.

—All sorts of elaborate and artistic cases are made for the useful and aromatic sofa pillows; those of pongee silk, with a fitting motto in etching silks, are pretty and appropriate for the purpose; "Give me of your balm, oh, fir-tree," is a favorite quotation for these soothing pillows.

—Parquet or ornamental hardwood flooring may be said now to have been adopted in all houses that claim to embrace the modern improvements or are considered in the first class of modern buildings; the great variety of our elegantly grained native woods, when arranged in the innumerable changes susceptible of formation by geometrical lines, alone make an endless diversity of forms and figures, and a little experience with the numerous advantages of a cool, sweet, cleanly wood, with a rug here and there or a fur skin will recommend the parquet for these qualities as well as for its decorative and furnishing attributes; some very beautiful specimens of this geometrical flooring was noticed at the warerooms of the National Wood Manufacturing Company, of Eighteenth street and Union square.

The Elevator Building at the Corner of 8th Av. and 116th St.

Last spring John H. Sherwood and other public-spirited property holders made public a plan for erecting a fine building at the corner of One Hundred and Sixteenth street and Eighth avenue, in which would be located an elevator to convey passengers to the Manhattan station at that point. This station is now the highest in the city, being some 65 feet in all, and it has been noticed that the building for some years past has been on and above One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, where the stations are easier of access. The Sherwood plan was to raise some $100,000, and erect an apartment and store building which would rent well and in which would be an elevator. The plan was for each property holder to take $50 worth of stock for every lot he held. It was hoped at the time that the building would be erected this fall, but although the improvement would add $1,000 to the value of the lots, but very few of the owners have so far tendered their subscriptions. Less than $40,000 has been raised. The work will probably go on in any event, but will be made a private instead of a public matter, and only those who subscribed will secure the privileges of the elevator. There are several enterprises now under way which will add to the value of real estate extending from the Central Park to One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street.

A horse-car road is organizing to run on One Hundred and Sixteenth street from river to river, that is, it will run from the East River to Morningside avenue, then north to One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street, terminating at the North River near the ferries in that neighborhood. Of course, this road will be a feeder to the One Hundred and Sixteenth street station. The Madison avenue road is about to be extended from Eighty-sixth street to Harlem River. It is to be a cable road. If the service proves economical on the new line, the Madison and Fourth avenue sections will also be worked by cable.

The delay in the One Hundred and Sixteenth street elevator enterprise is in great part due to the severe and prolonged illness of Mr. John H. Sherwood. But his health being now fully restored the work will be prosecuted vigorously. The Jardine Brothers are drawing the plans. The following documents tell their own story:

SIXTH AVENUE BOULEVARD AND 115TH STREET,
NEW YORK, October 20th, 1884.

SIR—I address you as a co-owner of property in that part of the city of New York lying between One Hundred and Tenth and One Hundred and Twentieth streets, Morningside Park to the west and Fifth avenue to the east, and having interests in common.

During the five years that the Manhattan Elevated Road has traversed that region and placed a station at One Hundred and Sixteenth street and Eighth avenue, not a single building has been erected in the vicinity of the station, and but very few improvements have been made upon the plateau, which embraces lots more favorably situated for building purposes, both as to soil and proximity to Central Park, than almost any other section in the city of New York. During this same period upwards of two thousand fine dwellings, stores and flats have been erected in the vicinity of the stations at One Hundred and Twenty-fifth and One Hundred and Thirty-fifth streets, a mile beyond. The price of building lots has materially risen in that section, whilst they have been neglected and unsalable at a price anything near their intrinsic value below One Hundred and Twentieth street.

The reason of this fact is obviously that the station at One Hundred and Sixteenth street is too high for practical use. Women, children and infirm persons can make use of it only at serious inconvenience and detriment to health. On stormy and windy days it is positively dangerous to ascend or descend. It is 65 feet above the level of the street, and involves mounting eighty eight steps to the platform.

This region, therefore, is practically not served with rapid transit. There is but one, and that an extremely simple way, to remedy these defects, to make lots within the territory from Morningside Park to Fifth avenue as available and productive for building purposes and at least as valuable as lots beyond One Hundred and Twentieth street, and that is, to build elevators at the stations at One Hundred and Sixteenth street and Eighth avenue. It is safe to say that when the elevators are constructed an immediate advance in the value of the property upon this plateau will take place of from 50 to 100 per cent. To say that it will enhance the value of each lot at least $1,000 is surely to be very much within the limits of the truth.

The heavy assessments for the Boulevard and sewers have all been paid, and owners are carrying the lots at a cost of three to six hundred dollars a year, when they might make them available for building purposes, or sell them to builders by a very slight voluntary assessment upon themselves of considerably less than any one year's taxes.

To produce this desirable result of making these lots available and marketable, a number of gentlemen have associated themselves under the name of the North Central Park Improvement Company to build these elevators. They have not the slightest personal interest in relation to the business of the enterprise, nor do they receive any benefits from its management that is not entirely in common with every person from whom they ask a payment.

A circular was sent in the spring of this year to property owners, and resulted in a subscription of something less than $30,000. A copy of this circular is herewith enclosed. A lot was purchased at the corner of One Hundred and Sixteenth street and Eighth avenue, and we now ask the property owners to complete the subscription upon the basis of $50 a lot, so that the elevators may be built. If any subscriptions are received in excess of the amount necessary they will be returned pro rata to the subscribers.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

With the building of these elevators the One Hundred and Sixteenth street station will become, from being the most inaccessible, the most convenient of access of all the stations along the line of the road. This improvement will certainly not be undertaken unless the property owners will subscribe. In other words, it will be impossible for any property owner to avail himself of the desire on the part of certain of the property owners to improve their property without themselves contributing towards the accomplishment of that end.

If the property owners generally subscribe, it is proposed to make the elevators open to the public without fee. If the property holders fail, however, so to subscribe, and the burden of building these elevators falls upon a few of the owners of property in the district they will naturally regard the elevators as their private property and allow the use thereof by card only to the occupants of such lots as have contributed towards the building. This will make a perpetual discrimination against the lots which have failed to contribute, outweighing a score of times in value the saving of the $50 a lot.

Respectfully,
JOHN H. SHERWOOD,
President of the North Central Park Improvement Company.

The following statement is submitted to the subscribers to the fund for building elevators and a seven-story structure (fire-proof), at One Hundred and Sixteenth street and Eighth avenue:

Estimated cost of corner lot, 26x100	$12,000
" " 3,000 square feet of vault space	2,250
" " seven-story fire-proof building, 26x100	50,000
" " two vaults under street, 20x100 and 50x20	8,000
" " three large powerful elevators	15,000
" " boilers, steam fitting, engine, pumps, &c	12,000
" " plumbing, painting, mantles, grates, &c	5,750
	$105,000

The trustees believe an annual income may be reasonably expected from the property, after the first year, as follows:

Rent of store and basement, 26x75	$1,500
" six apartments, 26x75, $800 each	4,800
	$6,300
Less taxes, insurance, &c	1,300
	$5,000

This sum will pay a dividend of 4 per cent. at least, independent of the benefit to your lots.

JOHN H. SHERWOOD,
President of North Central Park Improvement Company.

The special committee of the Sons of the Revolution have requested us to make an appeal on behalf of the pedestal fund of the Statue of Liberty. They have inaugurated a $1 subscription list, headed by President Arthur, and are making great efforts to raise the balance required to complete the pedestal—$125,000. It would hardly seem necessary to put forth special effort to raise so comparatively small a sum in this wealthy country of ours; New York city alone could, without any difficulty, contribute the sum. The Statue of Liberty appeals essentially to the patriotic instincts of citizens of the United States. Germany, France and England have their national monuments which commemorate triumphs by land and sea, but America will have a statue which will be the emblem of freedom to all men. Every citizen should contribute his quota to such a noble monument. The office of the committee is at No. 55 Liberty street.

An owner of premises in the city of New York is not liable to any penalty for failing to put up a fire-escape where the notice is only subscribed by the Inspector of Buildings; it must be issued in the name of the Fire Department, besides being subscribed by the inspector. This has just been decided by the General Term of the Supreme Court in the suit of the Fire Department vs. the owners of the Sturtevant House.

Before the purchaser of land can successfully resist the performance of his contract on the ground of defect of title, there must be at least a reasonable doubt as to the seller's title, such as affects its value and would interfere with its sale to a reasonable purchaser. A defect in the record title may be cured or removed by parol evidence. If you make a contract to buy a house and take a deed at a future day you cannot make the seller keep the premises in good repair unless you have his agreement to do so written in your contract.

If you hire premises and then the landlord fails to give you possession of them, you can make him pay damages, which will be the difference between the rental value of the premises and the rent that you agreed to pay; and you cannot include in those damages the value of your time employed in hunting up carpenters and painters to make alterations in those premises, nor your labor spent in hunting for other premises after the landlord failed to give you possession, nor the rent you had to pay for such other premises. So decided October 8, by the General Term of the Supreme Court in the suit of Michael A. Coleman vs. Walter G. King.

Not Money But Confidence.

The condition of affairs on the Paris Bourse, as described by the London Times, is peculiar and interesting. There, as here, new enterprises appeal in vain to people with money. Bank failures and intemporate stock speculation have put an almost absolute quietus on speculation and even investment. No matter how alluringly the advertisements of new undertakings are worded the public refuses to put a sou in them. The offers of the leading banks are treated with silent contempt, and a short time ago a railway company of the best credit found itself unable to sell an issue of bonds, although there was not the slightest doubt that the bonds were good. So distrustful of all Bourse securities have the public been made by the failure of the Union Generale and by the reaction from the blind mania of two years ago that it would now, the Times says, be distrustful of even an offer of gold sovereigns at a discount. But the sullen public makes three exceptions which prove that it is not money but confidence that is lacking. It is willing to invest to any extent in three things: M. de Lesseps' enterprises, the Credit Foncier, and Government loans. So complete is the hold which the canal builder has on the public of France that he recently applied with brilliant success for a new supply of money, not because he needed it, but because he wanted to have it ready when he might need it later on. With the proceeds of the new loan M. de Lesseps now has $64,000,000 at his command. The Credit Foncier is a land mortgage bank which receives money from the investing public, and lends it on real estate security. Its loans average a million of francs a day, and such are its opportunities for the employment of capital, largely by loans to municipalities who want money for public improvements, that it is about to issue a new series of bonds to the amount of $60,000,000. Its shares stand almost as high now as in the best days of the Bourse, and there will be a scramble for its new securities. There is something a good deal like this in the fact that the business of our Stock Exchanges is almost stagnant, although the accumulations of funds in our banks are very large, and the money market is so easy that lenders are almost discouraged. There is plenty of money in the country and in the banks. There are hundreds of millions of actual gold in the hands of the people and hundreds of millions on deposit in the banks for which the owners can find no permanent use. There is plenty of money, but no confidence. We have had bank failures like those which have disturbed French confidence, and we are suffering from the same speculative excesses that have given French stock exchange gamblers the headache, but we have had one calamity which they have not experienced this time to any such extent as we. Our investing public have been affrighted by the conscienceless way in which they have seen the directors of corporations use their power for their own enrichment at the expense of their wards, and confidence has received a shock which it will take years to recover from.—Chicago Tribune.

An Ambitious Railroad Project.

Comparative little new mileage has been built by the railroad companies this year, and little is projected for next year. One of the new roads designed is an air line between Punxsutaway, Pa., and Council Bluffs, Ia. It is asserted by Mr. H. A. Schwanecke, one of its projectors, that it will nowhere depart a greater distance than two miles from an exact line. It is to cross the northern part of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, and is to have branches to Chicago and St. Louis. We would regard it as a mere project, but it is stated that the money, $40,000,000, is already secured, that the charters are obtained from all the five States, and that the location is to be fixed this year and construction to begin early next season. It is also stated that none of the stocks and bonds are to be put on the market, and that certain gentlemen of New York and Pennsylvania, whose names are given, are in it. The statements are so positive that we suppose the road is really to be built. It is claimed for it that it will be 150 miles shorter than any other roads connecting the same points, and that it will be of easier grades than any other, not even excepting the New York Central. It is to be connected with Pittsburg by the Pittsburg & Western, and the distance between Pittsburg and New York is to be 30 miles shorter than via the Pennsylvania road, and 12 miles shorter than via the new road which Vanderbilt is building, the Harrisburg & Western. This is evidently going to be the most ambitious project of the next year. The most considerable roads now building are Vanderbilt's, mentioned above, and the Baltimore & Ohio's new line between Baltimore and Philadelphia, and perhaps we should mention the Pennsylvania's Reading extension to the east, and in the west the extensions of the Rock Island under different names in Minnesota and Dakota, and the connection between the Union Pacific's Oregon Short Line and the Oregon Railway & Navigation roads. The Northern Pacific is building its Cascade section, and several companies are extending in Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin; but nearly all these extensions are completions of existing projects and involve nothing new. The road which we first mentioned amounts practically to a new competing line between New York city and the Missouri River. It is not probable that a great deal of building will be done next year; if this year's record, say 2,500 miles thus far, is equaled, it will be as fair an exhibit as can now be anticipated.—New Orleans Picayune.

The Value of our Crops.

While the politicians were holding conventions and fighting the campaigns in Maine and Ohio, the crops were growing. And now, when the merchant and manufacturer are complaining of dull times, and everybody is awaiting the result of the election, to see if we are likely to have unwise legislation that will still further increase the business depression, the farmer drives his team afield with a light heart, for nature has been bountiful and the harvests abundant. Whatever the result at the polls, we need not, as a nation, fear going to bed hungry because of an empty larder, nor doubt that we shall be able to raise a little spending money by selling part of our surplus crops to the neighbors. We have raised, it is estimated, about 520,000,000 bushels of wheat and 1,800,000,000 bushels of corn, with oats, barley, potatoes, beans, hay, etc., in proportion. The politicians may wrangle and the voters imagine vain things, but the honest tiller of the soil will be undisturbed by any of them, secure in having well performed his part, and in his bounteous reward by nature. Considered in the abstract the sum totals of these crops do not convey a very definite idea to the mind. But it is more easily comprehended on saying that the 520,000,000 bushels of wheat would give every one of the 57,000,000 of people now in the United States a little over nine bushels apiece. Four years ago the yield was almost ten bushels per capita, so that the present wheat crop is smaller in proportion than in 1880 while the price per bushel is lower and will remain lower, probably. But there will be some advantages in the lower price; more of it will be consumed at home, more people being able to substitute wheat flower for corn-meal; our own country will get the benefit of the lower prices before the wheat is called out of it by foreign demand, while this increased home demand will after a while tend to raise the price. Although the crop of 1884 is smaller in ratio than that of 1880, yet the gain in production is greater than the increase of population. The increase in population since 1870 has been about 48 per cent., but the increase in the wheat crop has been over 120 per cent., which is really too high, as the wheat crop of 1870 was very light. This increase is almost wholly due to the use of machinery in the fields. The corn crop of 1884 is the largest ever raised by our farmers. A yield of 1,800,000,000 bushels would have covered over 69,000,000 acres, if the statistician of the Department of Agriculture is right in placing the average yield per acre at twenty-six bushels. That means that if in one great field the size of it would be nearly as great as that of the States of Missouri and Arkansas combined, almost the area of Italy, or about as big as England, Scotland and Ireland. The greatness of our country and the bigness of its crops may be comprehended when the possibilities of such a field as to the plowing, hoeing and husking of its yield are considered. Fancy the "tending of a crop" where the plowing of a single row of corn involved a journey of about 475 miles north and south, without a single turn! We have increased our production of corn about 67 per cent. since 1870, outrunning the increase in population about 19 per cent. The price will not be high, but the farmer has raised his crop at less cost per bushel than he did fifteen years ago, and he can add to his savings quite as much from the sale of his surplus now as he did then. If the farmer gets only 30 cents per bushel for corn this fall, our whole crop will be worth $540,000,000; if wheat brings only 60 cents, we have raised $312,000,000 worth. The cotton crop is worth about $256,000,000. So that through these three staple crops alone, by uniting his labor to the operations of nature, the farmer has added $1,108,000,000 to the nominal resources of the nation, to say nothing about all the other resources of agricultural wealth, which would include all other cereal crops, the live stock, the dairy products and the wool, tobacco, sorghum, sugar, fruits, etc., all of which would swell the grand total to very nearly as much as those named, or, in round numbers, say $2,000,000,000. That is not all profit, not the amount that we can put into the bank or hoard at home—for from it must come enough to feed the farmer and the farmer's stock and enough for seed and a little to spare for possible need or a higher price. But it shows that however slow business may be the country is not poverty-stricken. The crops will be sent to the market and the farmer will have his usual quantity of supplies in exchange for them; the railroads will have them to carry both ways; the manufacturers will have had something to do, and the merchant will be bettered by both transactions. The farmer must give the first push to the pendulum that will swing back into good times again. The prices for his products are at ebb tide now; they will begin to rise as their next movement, and when they get to high-water mark we shall all be able to rejoice together.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

Ocean Gas Pipes.

At a meeting of pilots, held in this city last week, for the purpose of conferring upon the question of compulsory pilotage, Captain Bedford Pim, of the British Navy, in the course of a spirited address, made some interesting remarks upon the present style of naval architecture and the manning of British ships which are worthy of attention. Captain Pim, being a sailor, brought up in the nautical school of twenty years ago, condemns, most emphatically, the present style of building ocean steamers, which he designates as mere "gas pipes." "Does any man in this room," says the gallant captain, "look with anything but contempt upon a vessel ten times her beam in length? Any sailor knows that to touch one of these long, narrow vessels amidships is certain destruction within a few minutes." It is not surprising to find a gallant old tar of the old school thus vigorous in his denunciation of modern ocean craft; from the old standpoint they are, no doubt, unsightly; they unquestionably reverse the old ideas of what constituted a staunch and seaworthy vessel; but let us see if the demands of the present day have not in some degree called for an important modification of the ancient style of marine architecture? The first requisite for an ocean steamer of the present day, whether for passenger or freight traffic, is speed. Passengers, wherever bound, will patronize the fleetest steamer, the merchant is equally anxious to have his merchandise go by the freighter that makes the best time. The anxiety to obtain the first teas from China results in a race at the opening of each season between the steamers that bring the first cargoes both to this port and London, and heretofore the winner of the race—for it is in reality a race—has always obtained a prize in the way of a gratuity of some description. If, then, speed is so important a requisite in the construction of ocean-going steamers, and as great length and proportionately narrow beam are among the most important considerations in the construction of a fleet steamer, it is not easy to see how the continued construction of these "gas pipes" is to be avoided. Of the prominent steamers now crossing the Atlantic every few weeks the Alaska, City of Rome, Servia, Oregon, Umbria and Etruria are all over 500 feet in length and about 50 feet beam, with a depth averaging about 35 feet, and it cannot be denied that Captain Pim's similie as to their appearance is true and appropriate, but the fact is the fashions with respect to building ocean steamers as well as men-of-war have changed, and while it is no doubt correct that when struck amidships there is little hope of keeping these long and thin machines afloat, yet it is likewise true that they are navigated with greater care, vigilance and precision than has been ever exercised before upon the ocean, which has now become a great highway filled with travelers in every direction. All things considered, there is perhaps as much safety in these "gas pipes" as there formerly was in the old liners that crossed the Atlantic in fifteen days, and were then thought to be accomplishing a great feat. The comparison between a seventy-four of thirty years ago and an armored and turreted man-of-war of to-day is quite as great as that between merchant vessels now and then, and yet who to-day would advocate going back to wooden ships of war and unprotected batteries? So long as the public demand that the passage between here and Liverpool shall be made in less than seven days, so long will ships go on increasing in length, but at the same time the methods of navigation must be improved, precautions must be increased, some improvement must be made in the rules of the road, dangers and coast line must be more thoroughly lighted, while the men who command these fleet ships must be men of unquestioned ability, coolness and resource. Speed is always obtained at greater hazard, but the chances of safety must also be relatively increased. See that the "gas pipes" keep out of the way of each other, and the danger that Capt. Pim points out will be removed.—Shipping Courier.

The London Underground.

The District Railway Line—running from the west, eastwardly along the Thames embankment to the Mansion House Station—is now connected with the Metropolitan Railway, whose most easterly station is at the Tower of London, by a short line belonging jointly to the two companies. This completes the "inner circle," which will enable the companies to run their trains round and round London without a terminus. The short line has been the most expensive ever constructed. All the houses over the tunnel have had to be underpinned and their foundations carried down to the level of the foundations of the tunnel. The link is less than a mile in length, and has cost in round figures £2,000,000 sterling, towards which the Metropolitan Board of Works contributed £800,000 for improvements and new streets. The cost of the link averages £854 a yard, or £24 per inch; but parts have cost far more than this, the portion between King William street and Trinity square running up to 1,000 guineas a yard, or £30 per inch. Enormous as this first cost is, it will all come back, seeing that last year there were carried on the "underground" lines no less than 120,000,000 persons. Taking the population of "Greater London" at 5,000,000 (it was 4,874,006 in 1881), this shows twenty-four journeys per head per year of the entire population. The fact that, with all the differential fares, and first, second and third-class compartments, the average fare per passenger is only 1¾ pence—say 3½ cents—has induced the directors to seriously contemplate an effort to increase the dividend by lowering the fares. Nearly 1,700 trains a day pass through the main stations, or over seventy per hour; but as most of the traffic is between the hours of 8 A. M. and 10 P. M., the actual day traffic is much heavier. The first underground line was opened for traffic in 1863, just ten years after the first act of Parliament for its construction was passed.—Exchange.

Editor Storey's Palace.

Some such man as Armour, with a few spare millions at hand, will be in demand one of these days, when the great palace of Wilbur F. Storey, the demented editor, will be sold, says the Des Moines Register. It is of marble, four or five stories high, and contains eighty rooms. If Mr. Storey dreamed of the largest newspaper on earth, Mrs. Storey's visions were of the biggest and costliest house. That the grand mansion, as yet incomplete, after five years of work, was her idea no one who knew Storey in his vigor doubts. Nobody cared less for such things than he. He is said to have been told by the spirits that he should build the house, and as he was at that time completely under the influence of the shadowy visitors he promptly began operations. After a little he lost faith in the spirits, but he kept right on with his palace. When finished it will have cost about $500,000, and the question which agitates some sections of Chicago society is, Who will live in it? It is not probable that Mrs. Storey ever will, though that has been the cherished hope of her life. The proceedings already had in the Storey case indicate that a prodigious will contest is coming as soon as the breath leaves the old man's body. When he married his present wife she entered into a contract with him to surrender her dower rights in consideration of a sum of money, to be proportionate to his estate. He then made a will confirming his ante-nuptial agreement, and providing that in addition she should have $10,000 a year from the estate. Since his mind failed she claims that he has prepared another will, giving her all his property with the exception of a few bequests to relatives. This will is in her possession and the other one is in the vaults at the office. Mrs. Storey is a woman of commanding presence, ultra-fashionable in dress, and of high ambition. It is said to be her aim to be the owner and personal manager of her husband's newspaper, and to live in the great palace on the Boulevard. In this she is backed by some shrewd newspaper men, who wou'd expect, in the event of her success, to be given positions of trust and profit under her. She has never had any experience in business, and is probably as little calculated to manage a great property as any person in the world. She has set her mark very high, however, and it is believed that the struggle recently witnessed here in the courts is only a preliminary to a much larger one that is bound to come when the various wills are entered for probate.—Rochester Herald.

Obituary.

We regret to announce the decease on Thursday morning of Isaac Honig, one of the oldest and most respected real estate brokers in the city. Mr. Honig was born at Mayence-on-the-Rhine, April 10, 1828. He came to New York in 1850, and after a successful mercantile career retired to Frankfort in 1865. A year afterward he returned to the United States, and commenced business in this city as a real estate agent in the fall of 1866. His ability, energy and integrity insured him a vast circle of friends. He was a directer of the Real Estate Exchange and Auction Room (Limited) and a prominent member of the Liederkranz. His funeral will take place to-morrow morning at nine o'clock from the residence of his brother, Henry Honig, at No. 128 West Forty-eighth street.

At a special meeting of the Board of Directors of the Real Estate Exchange and Auction Room (Limited), held pursuant to call of the president, at the offices of the company, No. 11 Pine street, yesterday, the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That the Directors of the Real Estate Exchange and Auction Room (Limited), having heard with great regret of the decease of their late colleague, Mr. Isaac Honig, desire to record their testimony to his unblemished reputation as a real estate broker throughout a long career. Mr. Honig was one of the original commissioners of this Exchange, and was appointed a member of the Board at the meeting of stockholders held on the 20th of December, 1883. He took great interest in the progress of the Company, and punctually fulfilled his duties until struck down with the illness which ended in his death.

Resolved, That this Board expresses its sincere condolence with the family of the deceased in the loss they have sustained, and it is hereby advised that these resolutions be entered on the minutes and a copy forwarded to his relatives and published in a suitable manner.

GEO. H. SCOTT, Secretary.

A Good Suggestion.

NEW YORK, October 25, 1884.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

In your issue of this week you make mention of the fact that the Department of Arrears has received notice to leave the County Court House as that building is to be entirely occupied by the courts. Like many others I have for years undergone great inconvenience, owing to the separation of the several city departments. As you have remarked, a building is urgently needed in which these now scattered departments could be placed. In view of this I would suggest the tearing down of the old City Hall building and the erection on its site of a building of such dimensions as to afford accommodation for all the city departments for the present and a reasonable number of years to come. In such a building provisions could be made to meet any increased requirements of the future. The Register's office and the other buildings in the Park in which are placed any of the city departments could, with the exception of the County Court House, be then done away with.

CYRILLE CARREAU.

There is a storm gathering over Western Union; indeed its price shows there is something wrong. It is rumored that Robert Garrett has found backers who will give him all the money he wants to build lines which will compete with Western Union at every point. Jay Gould is having a hard time of it just now and is probably more unhappy than at any time since he brought his famous patent mouse-trap to New York. Combinations have been made on the street which should depress the market, and all of Gould's specialties are likely to sell lower.

The city of New York sadly needs a newspaper edited ably and intelligently, and alive to the interests, the facilities and capacities of New York, to arouse local patriotism, and educate and direct the same to speedy and intelligent effort. THE RECORD AND GUIDE is the only local journal that is broadly and intelligently a New York city journal, but its restricted scope as a real estate organ prevents due exposition in its columns by its able editor of the many-sided local interests and needs of New York.—Mercantile Law Journal.

Among the good nominations is that of Judge Daly by Tammany, who is a candidate for re-election as Judge of the Court of Common Pleas. He has the merit of having had fourteen years' experience in that capacity.

Real Estate Department.

The political agitation has brought business in the real estate market to a standstill. There was very little doing during the past week, and the announcements for next week are few and far between. In a presidential year the real estate business due in October is held over till the last three weeks in November. Sagacious stock market men are of opinion that there will be a revival of activity and advancing prices some time in November, and the real estate market will profit if such is the case, as a matter of course. The only notable sale of last week was some twenty-eight lots on One Hundred and Thirteenth and One Hundred and Fourteenth streets and Madison avenue. The lots brought very low figures. They were offered a year ago and withdrawn, as the bids were deemed insufficient; but this year the sales were at still lower prices. At the sale held in November, 1883, one lot on One Hundred and Thirteenth street, 100 feet east of Fifth avenue, brought $4,050, the lot adjoining sold on Wednesday for $3,500; two lots on One Hundred and Fourteenth street, east of Madison avenue, were knocked down a year ago at $6,250, on Wednesday they went for $4,625; four lots adjoining sold for $2,200 each, and four full lots on Madison avenue were disposed of for from $4,175 to $4,350 each.

The country seat of the late Peter V. King at Sparkill, Rockland Co., N. Y., with three-story mansion and fifty-two acres of land, was sold on Wednesday, to Austin Abbott, for $17,000. It is said that the house cost over $100,000 to build.

Gossip of the Week.

Randolph Guggenheimer and Sol. Marks have sold the two four-story high stoop brown stone residences Nos. 11 and 13 East Sixty-seventh street, 23x60x92x100.5 each, to William R. Martin, for $160,000. These houses sold under foreclosure two weeks ago for $141,200. The latter has sold to them in exchange the five lots on the north side of Seventy-first street, commencing 500 feet west of Eighth avenue, for $67,500. These were taken in trade on August 30, for $60,000. Messrs. Guggenheimer & Marx have also sold two lots on the north side of Sixty-third street, 250 feet east of Tenth avenue, to Owen W. Donohue, for $15,000, for improvement.

F. Zittel has sold for John C. Work the four-story high stoop brown stone residence No. 12 West Thirty-third street, 25x100, to Mr. Graham for $55,000 cash. The purchaser of No. 18 East Sixty-second street, reported last week, was J. B. Simpson, and the price $65,000.

Wm. S. Anderson has sold for Amos R. Eno the two five-story marble front buildings, Nos. 117 and 119 Liberty street, to Mr. Hill, for $97,500 cash.

A. G. Nason has sold to Mrs. Susannah Kress the four-story high stoop brown stone residence, No. 24 East Eighty-first street, 20.5x—x102.2, for $43,000 cash.

Charles Graham & Sons have sold the last [of their new four-story and basement brick and Nova Scotia stone front dwellings, No. 461 Lexington avenue, 20x58x73, for $22,500.

Mrs. Gerry has leased the old First Precinct Station House, Nos. 52 and 54 New street, 50x65.10x50.8x87.3, for twenty years, at an annual rental of $7,000.

L. Froehlich has sold for Anthony McQuade one of his new brown stone front houses, No. 1068 Lexington avenue, between Seventy-fifth and Seventy-sixth streets, 17x56x80, for $21,500, to W. E. Ward, and for A. J. Kerwin, one of the new brown stone houses on Park avenue, west side 76.8 feet south of Ninety-second street, 17.3x50x71, to Morris Goodhardt', for $17,500.

M. B. Baer & Co. have sold for E. Kilpatrick, the four-story high stoop brown stone dwelling, No. 69 East Eightieth street, 21x58, with dining-room extension; lot, 102.2.

Mrs. Newman has sold the four-story high stoop brown stone dwelling, No. 239 West Thirty-ninth street, 16.8x55x100, to Mrs. Crossman, for $15,000.

At a meeting of the Board of Armory Commissioners on Monday, a communication was received from the Corporation Counsel certifying to correctness of bill for $1,305.08 for professional services in making abstract of title, search, &c., in transfer of title to the city of plot on Ninth avenue between Sixty-first and Sixty-second streets, for an armory site. A resolution was passed approving the bill. The members of the Board visited several plots of ground on the west side of the city, which had been submitted as suitable for a site for the Ninth Regiment Armory, including the one applied for by Col. Seward on Eighth avenue, between Eighty-third and Eighty-fourth streets.

Walter W. Montague has sold for the Doremus estate the five-story double tenement, No. 516 West Thirty-ninth street, 25x60x100, for $11,500, to Sydney Fisher.

Phineas Seldner has sold to Jacob Hoffman the four-story brick tenement and store, No. 911 Third avenue, 25x60x100, for $35,000 cash.

P. A. Lalor has sold for John D. Crimmins the three-story and basement brown stone dwelling, No. 240 East Sixty-eighth street, 16.8x45x100, to a Mr. Levy, for $12,000, and has also sold for the Foulke estate a lot on Second avenue, between Sixty-third and Sixty-fourth streets, to M. Norton.

W. L. Jukes has sold No. 116 East One Hundred and Twenty-first street, not No. 116 East One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, as reported last week.

Jasper E. Corning has sold for B. D. Bradley two five-story stores and apartment houses on the southeast corner of Third avenue and One Hundred and Twelfth street, to Enoch Ketcham.

J. S. McQuillen has sold for John Ward two gores, one on Tenth avenue, west side, 50 feet south of One Hundred and Forty-first street, and on the south side of One Hundred and Forty-first street, 100 feet west of Tenth avenue, to Abraham Heartt.

Erastus Wiman, of the Staten Island Rapid Transit Company, has secured, for the sum of $10,000, the option of the property of the Law estate, New Brighton, S. I., which includes the cricket and baseball grounds, comprising eight acres of water front and several lots adjoining, and extending out to the pile line from the Tompkinsville lighthouse to the New Brighton Pavilion Hotel, a distance of nearly one mile.

Brooklyn.

Paul C. Grening has sold the two new two-story brown stone houses Nos. 498 and 500 Van Buren street, to A. F. Seal for $12,000; the two-story brick house No. 789 Greene avenue to Mrs. Babcock for $5,000, and the three-story brick house No. 314 Madison street for $6,000.

Bulkley & Horton have sold for Anna M. Donohue the three story frame house No. 193 Washington avenue, 20x45x100, to Lizzie B. Constantine for $6,500; for A. Lazansky the two-story frame dwelling No. 386 Clifton place, 30x100, for $4,300; for Wm. L. Spencer the two-and-a-half-story brown stone house No. 312 Clifton place, 20x45x100, for $6,700 to Mr. Morris, and for M. E. Rapelje a plot, 48x283, on Troy avenue, between Prospect and Park places, to Mr. Warring.

W. F. Corwith has sold a lot on the northwest corner of Nassau avenue and Lorimer street, 20x75, to Margaret Newman for $2,100.

Out Among the Builders.

D. & J. Jardine have drawn the plans for ten two-story stores, with apartments above, on the east side of Ninth avenue, extending from Seventy-second to Seventy-third street. They will be constructed of brick, iron and terra cotta, and will average 20x46 each. They will be built so as to permit of the erection of two or three additional stories, should they be required. The owners, Lespinasse & Friedman, have not yet decided what they will expend on this improvement. The blasting will commence next week.

Charles Graham & Sons have the plans under way for five four-story and basement brown stone dwellings, to be erected on four lots on the south side of Seventieth street, commencing 125 feet east of Madison avenue. They will be of different sizes, and will be built by day's work. The estimated cost is $90,000. The owner is Charles Duggin, and the houses will be for investment.

O. B. Ogden has the plans on the boards for a five-story brick, brown stone and terra cotta flat, 25x82, to be erected on the north side of One Hundred and Sixth street, 150 feet west of Ninth avenue, for W. B. Pettit, at an estimated cost of $24,000. It will contain all the improvements, hardwood, etc.

John Brandt has the plans under way for two five-story brown stone tenements and stores, 25.7 and 25x86, to be erected on the southeast corner of Third avenue and One Hundredth street, for P. H. McManus, at a cost of about $33,000.

W. Graul has the sketches under way for a five-story brown stone flat and store, 25x81, to be erected at No. 33½ Stanton street, for Rudolph Bohm, at a cost of $18,000, and for a five story brick and brown stone tenement and store, 25x60, to be built at No. 38 East Broadway, for Esther Simon, at a cost of $14,000.

Owen W. Donohue will erect two five-story brown stone flats, 25x75 each, on the north side of Sixty-third street, 250 feet east of Tenth avenue, at a cost of $32,000.

C. F. Ridder, Jr., has the plans under way for two five-story brown stone tenements, 25x85 each, to be built on East Eighty-first street, for J. Fallon, to cost $36,000; one five-story brick building, 25x47, to be erected at No. 49 Oak street, for Blake & Co., to cost $9,500, and one five-story brick dwelling to be built on West Sixty-first street, for Mrs. Kelly, to cost $10,500.

Fifteen architects are engaged on the plans in competition for armories for the Eighth, Twelfth and Twenty-second Regiments. The five on the former are Messrs. McKim, Mead & White, Weston, Smyth, Ware and Hatch. Messrs. Post, Kafka & Co., and other architects are also engaged on plans. General Shaler states that the commission has decided not to disclose the names of the competitors.

Special Notices.

The Sawyer-Man Illuminating Co. have been as successful in receiving orders for their light as their system has been in solving the problem of lighting by electricity. The system is the fruit of the labors of the late W. E. Sawyer, of Boston, assisted by Albon Man, and over $288,000 has been expended in perfecting improvements covered by the numerous patents. The Sawyer-Man system has been applied in all the offices of the Mutual Life Insurance Company's building on Nassau street, the superintendent of which states that it is "perfect in every way." Officers of the United Bank building, the New York Steam Heating Company and the New York Wood Turning Company speak highly of it. It has been placed in the Williamsburg, Va., Lunatic Asylum, the only institution of the kind where it is in use, and the Navy Department has recently awarded the contract to the Sawyer-Man Company for lighting the United States ship of war "Omaha." The system can be seen in full operation at the offices of the company No. 32 Nassau street, where full explanations are readily given by the officers.

Fred. T. Camp, architect, has removed from 1242 Third avenue to No. 60 Liberty street.

Breen & Bellamy, successors to Donaldson & Breen, have altered and renovated their office at 1242 Third avenue, which now presents a very handsome appearance. Messrs. Breen & Bellamy are both energetic young men and have an extensive experience in real estate matters. Some large sales up-town have been transacted through this office.

Owners of property, architects, builders and others are referred to a cut in another column of the new patent Baxter Portable Engine, owned and manufactured by J. C. Todd. It is made in from one to five-horse power, and to those who require a small engine which is perfectly safe, simple in construction, economical in fuel and easily repaired, it is of the greatest service. Mr. Todd's New York office is at 36 Dey street.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

BRICKS.—We must again confess to a lack of persuasive power to extract from operators anything that is really new respecting the general condition of the market for Common Hards. There has been about the average demand, sometimes full enough to quickly exhaust the offering, and again dragging a little and compelling a wait and search for customers, with slight variations in cost accordingly. During the week there was a somewhat increased feeling of strength over the finest grades of Haverstraws as they formed a small proportion of the supply through temporary influences, but on the other hand the poorer qualities have weakened some 12½@25c. per M in instances where holders made an effort to close out. Work has been somewhat interfered with by unfavorable weather, but it is generally claimed that about all the sales are to actual consumers, and receivers say they see no indication of cargoes going into yard. Indeed some of the dealers have again drawn upon their accumulations slightly instead of making fresh purchases. Up to within a day or two a few yards along the Hudson were still at work, but production has virtually ceased for the season. Storage capacity is said to be nearly or quite full at all points, and manufacturers anxious to keep up shipments for some time in order to reduce the quantity for carrying over after the close of navigation. Pales have sold to some extent, but the outlet does not appear to be quite so free or general, and it is a matter of greater difficulty to obtain former outside rates, except on an extra good quality.

LATH.—It has been a pretty even market during the week in a wholesale way. The supply came to hand in somewhat larger quantity but an outlet was found for it without much apparent difficulty and the sales as reported would seem to indicate $2.15 per M as a good general quotation. We know of business at higher figures, but they were obtained mainly on small lots and where cost of delivery covered all the difference in price. Receivers exhibit a fair degree of confidence in the general prospect, but still it is evident they do not care to see stock arrive with any great degree of freedom.

LIME.—Cost remains unchanged and the market had a pretty firm position during the week, moderate arrivals adding to the advantage of sellers. There does not, however, appear to be any want of confidence among receivers and a steady market is predicted for some time to come.

LUMBER.—There has certainly been no general improvement and the exceptional cases on the market where matters appear to have somewhat better form are looked upon as only temporary in character. The fact is buyers do not make the business at all, and pretty much everything accomplished in a wholesale way is the result of hard work and careful management on the part of sellers. The hopes entertained of fuller and more satisfactory trade, as noted at the close of last month, are still expressed in a few instances, but in others have been abandoned and as usual in cases where operaters make a change of front, those who have lost faith are the most bitter in denunciation of the unsatisfactory condition of the lumber trade. Yard dealers distribute fairly, but in pretty much all cases have an ample supply of stock to satisfy the call made upon them and find no occasion to enter the market for additional amounts even on the attraction of low prices ruling. Curtailed production and lighter shipments are reported from many primary points, but such reports fail entirely as a stimulus to values or to stir up any extra demand.

Eastern Spruce continues to afford only a very unsatisfactory return to the manufacturer and shipments are kept as low as possible. There is, however, no unanimity of action in the matter, supplies are not kept under close control and the moderate offerings coming out here and there appear fully adequate to fill the requirements of the market and especially on local account. Country dealers occasionally appear in a little hurry to obtain stock, but do not increase their bids The general range of prices remains nominally at $11.50@16.00 per M., according to specification, with a probability that the inside rate would only be accepted under pressure.

White Pine meets with no increase of demand on the general total. Occasionally a little is wanted for shipment, and then again there will be a demand on home account of slightly increased magnitude, but the calls are rarely simultaneous and on the least intimation of an addition to cost buyers step down and out. Many yards are already well stocked, and where they are not dealers appear to be in no hurry about purchasing, the indifference on this score being in marked contrast to what is usually the case at this season of the year. A great many lots, however, will come in on early-made contracts. We quote at $16@17 for West India shipping boards; $18@27 for South American do.; $13@14 for box boards, and $16@18 for extra do.

Yellow Pine develops little in the way of an improving tendency. Some orders are floating around all the time, now and then get into such form as to result in sales, and about former prices remain current, but there is nothing in the character of the present business to afford encouragement. Accounts from the South also indicate continued production, even without margin, but with many of the mills it is simply "make or break" as the only apparent action they can follow. The f. o. b. business does not amount to much. We quote as follows: Randoms, $17@19.50 per M; Specials, $19.50@21 do.; Green Flooring Boards, $2 @22; Dry, do., do., $22@23; Siding, $20@22 do.; Cargoes f. o. b. at Atlantic ports, $13@15 for rough, and $18@20 for dressed. Cargoes f. o. b. at Gulf ports, $12@14 for rough, and $20@21 for dressed.

Hardwoods still meeting with rather an uncertain demand, and values nominal for bulk of stock, though it is not likely that choice goods could be bought at any concession. Indeed, sellers are working on an altogether too close a margin to expect reductions, and it is just as well to carry stocks and await the chances. We quote at wholesale rates by car load as follows: Walnut, $65@100 per M.; ash, $35@40 do.; oak, $30@55 do.; maple, $20@32.50 do.; chestnut, $26@30 do.; cherry, $50@80 do.; whitewood, $27@35 do., do.; elm, $22@25; hickory, $45@50 do.

The exports of lumber from the port of New York during the month of October last, and since January 1, were as follows:

	Feet.
To West Indies	1,912,000
To South America	1,844,000
To East Indies	1,054,000
To Europe	6,000
Total feet	4,816,000
Previously reported this year	59,939,000
Total since Jan. 1, 1884, feet	59,755,000
Total, same time 1883, feet	57,830,000

STATE.

ALBANY MARKET.

The Argus reports for week ending October 27 as follows:

The shipments for the week show that a considerable quanity has been sold, although the attendance of buyers has not been large. Several barges carrying from 300 to 500 each, many of 200 M, and sailing vessels generally of a fair capacity, have loaded. The receipts of pine are still considerable, particularly from Michigan, and a very full stock of all sizes and qualities will be found in the yards. The rivers in northeren New York are so short of water that but little spruce and hemlock has lately been sawn. Rains are very much needed. The steam mills are, however, running, and keep up a good supply. Hard woods are fair demand, and all kinds, well seasoned, are in good stock. Lath are in full supply, and shingles of all qualities are in fair stock.

THE WEST.

SAGINAW VALLEY.

LUMBERMAN'S GAZETTE,
BAY CITY, MICH.

The Saginaw River lumber market is in a state of such uncertainty that buyers are absolutely deterred from making their appearance, except it is to satisfy a pressing present demand. The few who do come here touch things very gingerly, and there is little or nothing being bought to hold over. The current belief is that lumber will be as cheap three months from now as at present, and hence there is no necessity for purchases for the future, and this has a direct tendency to deaden the market. There is no change worthy of note in the conditions surrounding the lumber trade a week ago. Shipments average about 25,000,000 feet per week, but the mills are mostly being run to their full capacity, and the lumber moved each week is fully replaced by that coming from the saws. Operations by the Tittabawassee boom company are nearing the end and will shortly cease. The output of logs by the company, it is estimated, will reach about 58,000,000 feet for the season, being about 30,000,000 feet less than that of 1882, and the same as that of 1880. So soon as the work ceases by that company, it is probable that some of the mills will shut down, a few of them having already done so. But there are several mills which will continue the slaughter as long as the elements don't put an embargo on their operations. It is undoubtedly true that lumber can be bought on the river virtually at prices and terms to suit purchasers. It is currently reported that the lower grades of lumber have been recently disposed of at $6.50 and $13, but such sales are invariably reported at p. t., manufacturers still maintaining a stubborn refusal to give prices unless they are sufficiently satisfactory to appear well on paper. This policy on their part has an undoubted tendency to keep buyers out of the market and injure the same, because the limited number coming are enabled to dictate terms and prices, by the manner in which they are sought after and the evident anxiety of holders to sell.

The Northwestern Lumberman as follows:

CHICAGO.

The diminishment of shipments and the prospect for an early shutting down of the mills and cessation of receipts has had the effect to make the market a little more active and a trifle stronger at the prices that have lately prevailed. Piece stuff, green, is still quoted at $8 a thousand, dry dimension selling at $8.30 to $8.75. We hear of three cargoes of dry sold to arrive at $9, showing that the purchaser was willing to bid up a little in order to secure what he wanted, since it appeared to him doubtful about his having any further chance this season to make selections on the market. In fact, the time for hanging about the docks and looking out for "soft snaps" in the line of desirable cargoes at very low figures appears to have passed for the season. It is likely that desirable lots of lumber will hereafter sell to arrive at prices a little stronger, and probably higher than have hitherto preveiled.

A cargo of Thos. Nester's Baraga, Lake Superior, lumber came in on Thursday morning, and was worked off at a figure somewhat below the asking price, $12. Probably it sold for $11, though the transaction was "p t." It was No. 2 stock of the better quality. It is understood that this lumber, considerable of which has been sold here this season, has gone at figures unsatisfactory to the owner. In a more prosperous season it might have sold better.

Piece stuff, green	$ —@ 8 00
Long timbers and joists, green	10 00@12 00
Coarse common	9 00@ 9 50
Boards and strips, No. 2, green	9 50@11 00
" medium, green	11 00@15 00
" No. 1, green	15 00@18 00
High grade	18 00@22 00

To one who visits the hardwood lumber yards of Chicago often enough to be conversant with their ordinary rate of doing business it is very evident that just at present they are not troubled with too much trade.

Arrivals are moderate in amount, but fully equal to the needs of the market—this in spite of the fact that desirable dry stocks are not abundant at the mills. Prices remain unchanged, or rather without any quotable change, the actual sales being made at prices which are governed by the necessities of the seller, and the condition of the buyer, as to stocks on hand and the urgency of his demand.

LUMBERMAN AND MANUFACTURER,
MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

The chief difficulty continues to be the want of cars to ship lumber upon to the South and West. The Omaha, with the largest freight equipment of any Western road, is now powerless to answer the demands upon it for cass. The Milwaukee and St. Louis lines are also being taxed to the limit of their carrying capacity. The Northwest is sending forward her wheat, and a vast number of cars have to go back empty, and of course there is plenty of cars in that direction. Uppers are now being shipped from Lake Superior, Crookston, Wisconsin River and all the railway mills of Wisconsin into Minneapolis and St. Paul to make up deficiencies, and local demand is taking up all the better grades which can be bought on local yards.

The logging prospects have not changed materially in the last week. We set down as a prediction that the old and new logs on hand on May 1st, 1884, will exceed the stocks of last spring.

ENGLAND.

The London Timber Trade's Journal reports:

Cedar—This trade is also clearly looking up; prices of late have shown improvement, and as there is by no means a large stock in first hands, we think it is evident that the turn of prices is likely to be in sellers' favor.

American black walnut—There is a satisfactory amount of business doing, and no special excess of stock, particularly of prime logs, which are now, as is generally the case, much more sought for than the poorer kinds, and we should fancy that shippers' experience must prove this pretty conclusively.

American whitewood—The demand seems to improve, and the use of this wood will, we predict, become more and more general as its merits are recognised. We notice there is a good assortment of stock, both in logs and cut stuff in the docks.

LIVERPOOL.

There is no change whatever to report in the state of the market; the demand still continues to be limited to a hand-to-mouth sort of order, whilst on every side the complaints of the stagnation of business are dinned into one's ears with a repetition that becomes positively wearying.

METALS.—COPPER—Ingot has found a moderate and at times quite uncertain sale, with the general tone of the market slow and dragging. Supplies appear under close enough management to prevent any open or direct pressure to realize, but there is always enough stock for the outlet, and prices generally rule easy. Quoted at 13c. on Lake down to 12@12¼c. for the less popular brands. Manufactured Copper has an average trade demand but shows no animation and rates remain as before. We quote as follows: Brazier's Copper, ordinary size, over 16 oz. per sq. foot, 22c. per lb.; do. do. do., 16 oz. and over 12 oz. per sq. foot, 24c. per lb.; do. do., 10 and 12 oz. per sq. foot, 27c. per lb.; do., do., lighter than 10 oz. per sq. foot, 29c. per lb.; circles less than 84 inches in diameter, 25c. per lb.; 84 inches in diameter and over, 28c. per lb.; segment and pattern sheets, 25c. per lb.; locomotive fire-box sheets, 23c. per lb.; Sheathing Copper, over 12 oz. per sq. foot, 20c. per lb., and Bolt Copper, 23c. per lb. IRON—Scotch Pig is not meeting with much attention outside of what may be considered the general run of trade orders, and the market lacks features of general or positive interest. Supplies remain fairly in hand and are valued as before. We quote $19@22 75, according to brand, quantity, etc. American Pig shows a market largely devoid of "news." Buyers in want of stock call for it and retire, and holders with goods to sell offer enough for all calls, but little if anything in excess, and generally look for about former rates with rather the greatest firmness shown on the best Lehigh brands. In brief all hands appear to be taking matters easy and the position is nominally unchanged. We quote $19@20.50 per ton for No. 1 X foundry, $18.00@19.00 for No. 2 X do. do., and $16.00@17.00 for gray forge. Old Rails have shown some irregularity, but no great amount of animation, buyers complaining that the rates asked are too high for investment, except in small lots for immediate use. Scrap Iron has continued to sell moderately and in small lots to suit the temporary requirements of buyers with prices on the whole rather easy though openly no concessions are offered. We quote at $16 50@18.00 for old tee rails, $18@19 for double heads, $18.00@18.50 for No. 1 wrought scrap ex ship, $19.00@19.50 for selected do., $10.50@12.00 for old car wheels, and $16.00@17.00 for crop ends. Steel Rails have not been quite so active, and the market was unsettled, with some modifications of former extreme views as entertained by manufacturers. We quote at $ @ per ton for heavy section. Manufactured iron still goes out to some extent on contract, but new orders are few and far between, outside the usual store trade. We quote Common Merchant Bar, ordinary sizes, at 1.90@2c. from store and Refined at 2@2.40c.; Rods, round and square 2.10@2.30c.; Bands, 2.40@2.50c.; Norway Nail Rods, 5¼@6c., and domestic sheet on the basis of 2.70@3.00c. for common Nos. 10@16. Other descriptions at corresponding prices, with 1-10c. less on large lots from cars. LEAD—Domestic Pig is steadily held as a rule, and offered sparingly, but the demand too light to afford any great encouragement for holders of stocks. We quote at about 3½@3¾c. per lb., according to brand and the size of invoice handled. The manufactures of lead are steady and quoted: Bar, 4½@4¾c.; pipe, 5¾c.; and sheet, 6¾c., less the usual discount to the trade; and tin-lined pipe, 15c.; block tin pipe, 40c., on same terms. TIN—Pig was advancee in value since our last, but the higher cost checked demand, and with no real speculative feeling extant. Extreme rates are difficult to obtain. We quote at 16¾@17¼c. for Straits, 16¾@17¼c. for Australian, 18½@18⅝c. for English, and 19½@19¾c. for Banca. Tin Plates have met with a light, uncertain sale, and the tone of the market was rather tame for all descriptions of stock, but sellers refrained from urging business. We quote I. C. Charcoal, third class assortment, $5.00@5.10 for Allaway grade, and $5.65@5 70 for Melyn grade; for each additional X add $1.25 and $1.50 respectively; I. C. Coke, $4 65@4.70 for B. V. grade; $4.80@4.82½ for J. B. grade; Charcoal terne, $4 50@4.65 for Allaway and Dean grades 14x20; $9.25@9 60 for do. 20x28; Coke terne, $4.35@4.40 for Glais grade 14x20, and $9.15@9.20 for do. 20x28—all in round lots. Spelter continues somewhat tame in tone, especially on the ordinary grades, of which the offering is slightly urged for sale. We quote at 4½@4⅞c. for domestic and foreign, according to brand, quantity, etc. Sheet Zinc moderately active and steady, with a fair average offering. We quote at 5½@6¼c., according to quality, quantity, etc.

NAILS.—There does not appear to be much change in the situation of affairs. Supplies are pretty well together and under such control as to prevent any direct effort to realize either in small or large quantities, and the demand is showing fair volume and force. Especially is that the case from points in the interior, where cost of supplies are likely soon to be enhanced by an advance in transportation charges. Production has been of an irregular character, but, according to occasional hints, dropped somewhat fuller than intended or desired. We quote at $2.10@2.20 per keg for 10d. to 60d., according to size of invoice.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—Trading is slow and uncertain, with the market generally dull for all kinds of stock and the undertone weak. Holders do not feel much like urging business, but still they make the offering pretty full, and a more liberal outlet could be supplied without difficulty. About old rates are quoted all around, but, as matters stand, the position is really a nominal one throughout. Linseed Oil is in moderately active request, and the present cost shows 53@54c. for domestic and 54@55c. for foreign. Spirits Turpentine in light demand and lower at 30@32c. per gallon, according to quantity, package, etc.

PITCH AND TAR.—A moderately active trade doing, with fair average offerings and prices ruling pretty steady on all grades. Some few export orders come to hand. We quote: Pitch, $2.25@$2.30 per bbl.; Tar, $2.50@$2.00, according to quantity, quality and delivery.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as headings are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

JUDGMENTS.

In these lists of judgments the names alphabetically arranged, and which are first on each line, are those of the judgment debtor. The letter (D) means judgment for deficiency. (*) means not summoned. (†) signifies that the first name is fictitious, real name being unknown. Judgments entered during the week, and satisfied before day of publication, do not appear in this column but in list of Satisfied Judgments.

J. T. LINDSEY, Business Manager.

NOVEMBER 8, 1884.

The issue of the presidential canvass is in doubt as we go to press, and it will probably require the official action of the State Board of Canvassers, of which Governor Cleveland is the head, to finally determine the result. There is a report that the Republican National Committee propose to contest the matter in the courts, but this would be unnecessary if Blaine should have the plurality in this State, and in no case would the courts go behind the official returns of the canvassers. In the meantime it behooves all good citizens to keep cool and in every way to discountenance action likely to lead to disturbances of the public peace.

The New York press has gained no laurels in its manipulation of election returns. After the closing of the polls the sole business of a newspaper should have been to give the news. Who was elected was simply a matter of fact to be determined by the figures. But with one exception the different newspapers kept up their partisanship, and did all they could to deceive their readers. The Herald, World, Times and Telegram made most preposterous claims regarding States, which they declared were carried by Cleveland. On the other hand the Tribune as late as Friday morning was saying that States like Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee and Florida were in doubt. People who kept their heads after the first returns published on Wednesday, saw that everything depended upon New York, with the chances slightly in favor of Mr. Cleveland. There was really a dangerous state of feeling in the city on Thursday evening, and it would have been an easy matter to have gotten up a first-class riot. The Herald and Telegram did what they could to provoke one. The Sun alone of the city papers seems to have kept its head and tried to deal fairly with its readers.

There is no reason to believe that any election fraud was committed. The Associated Press is not, as is generally supposed, in any way controlled by Jay Gould. Indeed, the former has lost its monopoly of news since Gould has been master of the Western Union Telegraph Company. There was a time when the franchise of an Associated Press New York paper was worth from $300,000 to $500,000. To-day it is scarcely worth anything, as news can be freely purchased from other agencies by any outside journal, which is quite as good as that collected by the old press monopoly.

But it is a public calamity that the great telegraph company is under the control of one man, and he one of the most objectionable personages in the country. To this telegraph company is committed all family and business secrets. It is an indispensible agent for communicating information of all kinds, and in no country on earth would its private ownership be tolerated save alone the United States. This is a power which should not be lodged in the very best of men, and yet we tolerate its ownership by the worst speculator and peculator of the age. There should be a unanimous demand from the whole Union that the government should assume control of the telegraph system.

John Kelly and Tammany Hall have met their Waterloo. The "boss" would not listen to any suggestion of a trade. He could have saved his Mayor and one or two other important county offices if he had given Cleveland away; but Tammany would not make a deal, and the result is its possible destruction, for the whole force of the new Democratic administration, if Cleveland is really elected, will be used to crush it. For the first time the patronage of the general government, the State and the city will be united against Tammany. Had Mr. Kelly been able to say that he had defeated Cleveland he would have been a power hereafter, especially if his Mayor had been elected, as he could have been. It is strange, but the fact remains, nevertheless, that John Kelly's honesty and not his treachery has brought him to grief.

The constitutional amendment so earnestly advocated by this publication has been adopted by an overwhelming majority, but the vote was light. Its ultimate effect will be to raise the value of real estate by reducing its burdens. It will not embarrass the prosecution of the construction of the new aqueduct, but it may postpone for a few years the acquisition of the proposed parks in the annexed district. Our bonded debt is now nominally above the limit prescribed by the constitutional amendment, and Mayor Edson, who is opposed to the creation of the new parks, is taking measures to delay the court proceedings condemning the lands in the annexed district designed for these pleasure resorts. Our actual debt, however, is not as large as our nominal debt, due to the existence of the sinking fund. Nominally we owe $135,000,000, but our actual debt is about $96,000,000, while the constitutional amendment permits us to assume obligations as high as $119,000,000, which is 10 per cent. of the present assessed valuation of our real estate. The friends of the new parks will not be pleased at the turn things have taken, but perhaps the Legislature next winter may make matters all right.

Wm. R. Grace, our newly elected Mayor, has now a chance to secure a reputation equal to that of Seth Low of Brooklyn. He is supreme in the municipal government of New York. There are no honors to which he may not aspire if he gives the city good and responsible heads of departments. There is a suspicion that he owes his election to Johnny O'Brien, the Republican boss. It is certain that the Republican votes which should have been cast for Mr. Gibbs went to Mr. Grace. The latter, however, felt no obligation to John Kelly for his first election, and if he is untrammeled by private pledges he can afford to disregard Mr. O'Brien's claims if indeed he has any. New York is already indebted to Mayor Grace for the street cleaning commission. His article in Harper's shows that he thoroughly understands the needs of our city government. If he follows up the suggestions contained in that admirable presentation of the city's needs, he could easily be re-elected two years hence; that is if a grateful people will not insist in the meantime upon elevating him to a still higher office than that of Mayor of New York city.

As the Blaine vote was nearly 90,000 it is very clear that had the Republican local machine so desired it would have been an easy matter for that party to have elected its entire county ticket, including Mayor. But for some reason O'Brien deliberately sacrificed the control of New York by his party for the next two years. Had a first-class Republican ticket been nominated and loyally supported it would have polled more than Blaine, for many of the Times and Evening Post Republicans who voted for Cleveland would have preferred one of their own party to any Democrat. The full Cleveland vote was something over 133,000, and with a first-class Republican local ticket in the field the Democratic vote would be very evenly divided; but the way in which the Republican machine manipulated matters the rank and file of the Republican voters saw that there was no chance for Mr. Gibbs, and voted for Grace and the County Democratic ticket. What could have been O'Brien's motive?

Benjamin F. Butler did not poll a large vote as a presidential candidate, but his canvass had the effect of bringing to light the demagoguery of the rival party organizations. The organs on both sides made particular appeals to the workingmen, and the Democratic candidate especially was attacked for some of his vetoes in which he was clearly right. His refusal to indorse the reduction of the fares to five cents on the "L" roads was a highly creditable one, as was also his approval of the reduction of the outrageous fees charged by the pilot monopoly. It was one of the most cheering signs of the times that so many thousands of workingmen were not influenced by these appeals to their supposed self-interest. The most dangerous symptom of the political situation was the willingness of the leading journals to allow their columns to be used for pandering to this supposed labor interest. A prejudice of this kind was tried to be created against Mr. Grace, but his large vote showed that he lost nothing, but probably gained from the employing and commercial classes; but it was Butler's candidacy which frightened the party organs into appealing to a prejudice which fortunately did not exist or was not active enough to be harmful.

By the time the Metropolitan Bank's accounts are adjusted it is feared that little if anything will be left for the stockholders. In winding up its affairs it is said that many worthless assets have been found. We have always believed that in the depression which followed the panic of 1873 the banks of the country must have made some very bad loans. The shrinkage of the last three years must have added largely to the worthless notes which the banks discounted. The true state of affairs will never be discovered until liquidation is decided upon. When circumstances shall force many banks to wind up, we fear revelations will be made touching the unsoundness of many well-thought-of institutions for which the public are not prepared.

The Real Estate Situation.

The total number of Projected Buildings for October, 1884, is 202 against 189 for the corresponding month last year, but the estimated cost is less by some $334,000. The noticeable feature in the annexed table is the steady increase in the number of new buildings in the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth wards. For the ten months of this year 2,476 buildings were projected against 2,272 last year, and 2,011 in 1882, but the cost was greater by nearly two millions last year, and three millions the year before. We are building more houses but less costly ones. The following is the table:

The number of Conveyances for October, 1884, is largely in excess of last year but the consideration is somewhat less. For the ten months there is quite an excess of conveyances in favor of this year, although the consideration is some twenty-three million more than last year. The mortgage indebtedness shows an increase over last year. From what is occurring about us it is probable that in buildings projected and transfers the past ten months make a better showing than will the coming ten months. The following is the table of the Conveyances and Mortgages:

Why Low Prices.

THE RECORD AND GUIDE of New York, still persists in thinking that under-consumption is the cause of the present depression, and that this lack of consumption is on account of the meager supply of currency. It says that the present dullness of trade is caused by a natural reluctance of manufacturers to produce goods on a falling market. Well, what is the reason there is a falling market? Let us get at the beginning of the matter—the first brick that set the row in motion. First there was a drop in iron as a result of producing too much for the market. Coal followed suit, then woollen, cotton, lumber and grain. The iron makers overdid the thing because a boom in railroad construction was too much for their blood. They got excited and gave too much head to their team. The momentum carried them too far. Just so it was with every industry—all were overdone. There has never been any lack of money to do the business with, but an overfeeding of the markets has resulted in plethora and loss of appetite.—Northwestern Lumberman.

Our Chicago contemporary does not seem to understand that the depression of industry and the steadily lowering prices is a phenomenon common to the whole business world and is as true of Asiatic trade as of the industries of Europe and America. The products of human labor—nearly everything dealt in by merchants or produced by manufacturers—is cheaper than at any time during the past century. The farmer complains of the price of his small grain; the manufacturer is appalled at the ruinously low figures of the cotton and woollen goods which he offers on the market. There must, therefore, be some general cause at work affecting prices the world over. Tariffs have nothing to do with it, for free trade England and protectionist nations like France and the United States are common sufferers. It cannot be traced to the waste of war nor to a wide-spread pestilence, for we have had no international conflict since the close of the Franco-German contest. The cholera of this past season has been confined practically to one of the poorest nations in Europe, Italy. What, then, is the cause of this steady lowering of values? We say that it is due to the natural and artificial decrease in the money metals. The production of gold has been falling off for a decade at a time when there was a prodigious development of modern industry and commerce. This is the natural cause of the depression. The artificial cause of the scarcity of these indispensible agents of business is the demonetizing of silver and the adoption of the gold unit of value by the commercial world. By common agreement among the nations the yardstick which measures prices has been shortened, or, to state it more accurately, gold has been augmented in its purchasing power by being made the sole unit on which prices are based. We appeal to the history of past ages to justify this position. Whenever there were great gold or silver discoveries industry was healthily stimulated and the bulk of the population of every country enjoyed the advantages of good times. On the other hand, when the supply of real money fell off the nations became impoverished. We do no look for any better time or any advance in prices until bi-metallism is re-established among the commercial nations. This would immediately change the aspect of affairs for the better. If in addition to that there should be new gold fields or silver mines that would increase the present product of the world we would again see the prosperity which followed the gold yield from California and Australia thirty-five years ago. Things are cheap enough that is very clear, and if people had money they would buy, but there is an absolute lack of sufficient currency to supply the needs of the commercial world.

An Interesting Table.

The following table from the report of Mr. Blanchard, Superintendent of the Mint, is worthy of careful study by all who wish to understand why some nations are rich and prosperous and others are poor. These figures show the amounts of paper and specie money in every country, together with the amount per capita in circulation. The reader should bear in mind, however, that the amount per capita given is somewhat misleading, and that a table which would discriminate between the active and the actual currency of a country would get a better idea of the influences which make nations prosperous. The following is the table:

From the above it will be seen that France has the largest specie currency of any of the leading nations, that is per capita, as well as in the total amount. It has $38.30 per head against $19.39 for the United States, and $19.25 for Great Britain and Ireland. The prosperous colony of the Cape of Good Hope has as high as $41.54 per capita. The United States has the largest paper issues of money, being $17.41 against $14.55 in France, which is the next highest in the list of specie paying nations. Russia, it will be noticed, has an extremely limited currency, only $1.26 of specie and $5.31 of paper.

In a general way it may be claimed that nations with plenty of currency, provided it is sound currency, that is specie or paper based on specie, are the best off, while nations with little money are poverty-stricken. A glance at the above table will verify this generalization. The people of France undoubtedly enjoy more substantial prosperity than do the inhabitants of any other country. The United States and Great Britain contains more millionaires, but nowhere else is there so large a well-to-do middle class or so many well paid workmen as in France.

The moral of this is that we cannot have too much real money, and that any attempt to curtail the amount of currency afloat is a blow at the well being of the community.

The Architecture of the Church of the Future.

Some of the religious papers are discussing with more earnestness than knowledge the probable architecture of the "Cathedrals of the Future." The Churchman objects to the Gothic style, because of its "perpendicular lines." While admirably suited to bring out the spectacular effects of the mass, it is unfitted for preaching, as the priest's or minister's voice is lost in the spaces above. It is, however, well suited for choral music, for in its "fretted vaults" the sacred strains "lingers on as loth to die." But this noble creation of the Catholicism of the Middle Ages is, in the opinion of its Protestant critics, unequal to the demands of congregational worship. The church of the present should be adapted to a preacher's voice. The ancient temple was designed for throngs of worshippers who came to witness the sacrifices at the altar. It was a spectacle without oratory or music, hence the peculiar construction of the Doric and Corinthian sacred temples. On this account they were entirely unsuited for carrying the voice of the minister. The musical effects also were lost, for these require the cone form of roof, or the conformation of a Gothic cathedral to produce the proper resonant effects. The modern church must be constructed with a view to hearing every word that a minister utters.

The conclusion seems to be that the Byzantine churches are admirably adapted to modern religious requirements. Preaching can be distinctly heard, and ritualistic observances do not lose in dignity or effect from the interior surroundings.

Here it may be remarked that in this country the sects with a noble or striking ritual have been steadily growing in favor. One hundred years ago the Roman Catholics and the Episcopal churches were very few and their following meagre. To-day they are second in numbers only to the Methodists and Baptists. Creeds have not the hold on men's minds they had in times past, but the appeals to the emotions and the senses are growing in favor, as is shown by the steadily increasing numbers of what may be termed the creedless sects, such as the Methodists and Baptists, as well as the ritualistic organizations, that is the Episcopalians and Catholics. Hence, the mere rostrum and lecture-desk while indispensable is not the only consideration to be kept in mind in church architecture.

The modern world, it is true, inclines to Agnosticism; many intelligent people think that we can get along without churches at all; but man in all ages has had a religious bent, and in the future as in the past will continue to offer up his adorations to the Inscrutable Mystery—the "Power that makes for Righteousness," and hence churches will continue to be built, but they must be fitted not merely for ritual and music, but also for the voice of the priest or minister appealing to the reason as well as touching and swaying the feelings of the worshippers.

Depression in the Northwest.

The future of the new Northwestern roads such as the Northern Pacific, Canada Pacific and Manitoba is anything but promising. The following extract from a private business letter dated Buffalo, Dakota, tells its own story:

> Very hard times up here. Wheat of the finest grade realizes only 53 cents, and that of the third grade 23 cents, 19 cents being classed as rejected. To add to this calamity a straight steal of 10 per cent. is being made by the Elevator Company. I know of farmers sending in one grade of wheat to be threshed and receiving in return wheat of three different grades. This would undoubtedly be one of the finest and most prosperous countries on the globe if free from such overbearing monopolies.
> P. T. Peterson.

It should be remembered that these extreme Northwestern regions labor under many disadvantages. Wheat and potatoes are about their only productive crops. They cannot grow corn, nor produce any diversified agricultural industries. Dairying would not pay. Manufactures are out of the question as yet, while the breeding of stock is not so profitable as in the milder regions far to the south. Then the greed of the railroad corporations and the grain dealers is killing the goose which might have laid golden eggs if circumstances favored. It is no wonder that the land speculation has collapsed. We expect to see the Northern Pacific within two years pass into the hands of a receiver. There is literally nothing out of which the road can secure a permanently paying business. Of course in time the country will become settled and the road will eventually pay, but it has probably got to be reorganized as often as the Northwest, in which three corporations were bankrupted before the road paid its expenses.

More attention should be paid to signs. It is indispensable, of course, that business people should be able to indicate their offices, stores and occupations; but it is undesirable that this should be done in a way to disfigure a fine building. This matter is attended to in great structures like the Equitable Life and Mutual Life, but in less imposing edifices architects should be required to indicate the way in which names and business could be given on a sign which would be in harmony with the general architecture of the structure. Public taste is growing in this direction. The artistic decorator has renovated the interior of our houses. The modern mansion, externally and internally, is built to please an educated taste, and is in this respect far superior to the buildings of our forefathers. But this matter of signs has not had the attention paid to it which it deserves. The appearance of many cities is marred by the gaudy and vulgar obtrusiveness of the signs of occupiers of stores and places of business. New York ought to lead in this reform.

Our Prophetic Department.

Citizen—Well, the election is over and the result is before us. You made a remarkably good guess last week in saying that the total vote of this city would be about 226,000 and that Blaine would poll over 90,000 votes; according to the corrected returns it was 90,081. You also said that Kings County would give between 15,000 and 16,000 majority for Cleveland. I judge that the official figures will show that you were within a few hundred of being correct in all your estimates.

Sir Oracle—Yes, but I over-estimated the Butler vote, though I was careful to say that probably at the last moment the Butler people would vote for Blaine. The general result was so close that even a sagacious and unbiased politician would not be discredited in predicting the possible success of either candidate.

Citizen—What general considerations occur to you growing out of the result of the contest?

Sir O.—In the present Congress the Democrats have a majority of about seventy in the House. In the next Congress I doubt if they will have more than thirty, while the Republicans will be stronger in the Senate. It follows then that there will be no tariff legislation for the next two years, and hence that bug-bear raised by Mr. Blaine in the canvass will not prove to be a practical issue between the parties. Attempts will be made to effect reforms in the revenue system of the country, but it is clear that the next Congress will make no vital changes in the present revenue policy of the government. From the more even balance of parties in the legislative chambers I look for some wise legislation on general topics. I think that measures of administrative reform, such as commend themselves to the good sense of both parties, will be indorsed. It is too early as yet, however, to make any prediction as to the larger questions which may come up for legislative action. Perhaps by next week the political situation will be more clearly defined and I can speak with more knowledge, Citizen—How about the stock market?

Sir O.—There are influences at work and revelations to be made which may depress stock values in the immediate future. Indeed we may see the lowest figures of the year. If what I hear is true all the Vanderbilt and all the Gould stocks may be raided to ruinously low quotations. There is an angry quarrel between the powers controlled by the Vanderbilt system and Jay Gould. The former hope, according to report, to embarrass the latter and will try to do so.

Citizen—Suppose Jay Gould should go by the board, what effect would it have upon the "street?"

Sir O.—The first impression would be one of great relief. Thousands of investors would say, "Now the end has come and we can buy with impunity." It would seem to be the logical outcome of a career such as Mr. Gould's has been. Every purely speculative operator in the street finally failed and if Gould escapes that fate he will be regarded as a marvel.

Citizen—Do you think that the crippling of Gould would help the market?

Sir O.—It would, I think, give us a more natural market in time. The prices of stocks would then go up or down more in accordance with the fluctuations in real values; but it should be remembered that Gould has helped to sustain prices for the last three years. His immense interests in the Missouri Pacific, Union Pacific, Western Union, Wabash, Manhattan and other well-known securities has forced him to sustain their market price or at least prevent ruinous depression. His failure would flood the market with unsaleable stocks. Chaos would rule for a time. I should say that all holders of securities would be seriously injured if the worst happened to Mr. Gould.

Citizen—What are the hopeful signs, if any?

Sir O.—There are two important factors at work upon the side of the stock market. An immense corn crop, the greatest ever grown, will soon begin to move. The necessities of the farmers will force them to market much of their corn, and they will get prices which will remunerate them handsomely. Corn is a bulky article which is transported short distances and is subject to local rates, hence is a very valuable crop to all the roads. You will hear no more of railway wars when that crop is being disposed of, for the various railways in the corn regions will have all they can do. We will also export an unusual amount of corn. This will keep up the importations of gold which are now under way. With our railways fully employed at remunerative rates, and gold coming from abroad, the price of all sound securities must advance, but we may, and probably will, have a serious slump in prices before the tide turns.

CITIZEN—Then you are disposed to regard the general situation hopefully?

SIR O.—Not at all. The trade outlook is very bad. Low as general prices are they will go lower. I am now speaking of the business world outside of the stock market. The measuring yard-stick of all prices, that is gold, is getting scarcer and dearer every day; hence the steady shrinkage of values. Production is being checked, and in time millions of workingmen will be thrown out of employment. They are the great consuming class. As their means are cut off, trade will grow duller and duller, and the distress extend to every class in the community, always excepting creditors, bondholders, government officials and all in receipt of certain incomes. These will be benefited by the continually rising value of the gold unit in which their incomes are paid; but the prospect for borrowers—in other words, the whole active business community—is simply frightful. This will prove true, not only of the civilized commercial world, but of trade in all parts of the globe. No wonder that the number of Socialists increase in the German parliament; that the Nihilists are more powerful than ever in Russia, and that the mobs in the English towns are singing the "Marseillaise!" The banking and capitalist class have conspired to plunder the rest of the human race by demonetizing silver to increase their incomes, and I would not be surprised to see an uprising of the exasperated and impoverished debtor and working classes to proclaim Proudhons' doctrine—"that all property was robbery."

"Statistically," said Mr. Salter, of the firm of Alexander Latham & Co., "cotton is in a very strong position. The crop is undoubtedly short. In fact we have had two short crops in succession. All our advices from the South are to the effect that this will be a short year so far as the yield is concerned. True there has been a large marketing of the crop so far, but this has been due to the necessities of the cotton growers, and I am of opinion that the large receipts at the cotton depots will fall off earlier than usual. Under ordinary circumstances this would mean high prices for cotton towards the close of the year; but the depression in trade and the large surplus of cotton goods remaining over unsold are influential factors in depressing the price of raw cotton. If consumption was as large as in times past I would be a bull on cotton, but the idle spindles in the factories of New England and Old England tell the story of the depression in cotton in spite of the short crop and the scant reserve stores which will obtain towards the close of the cotton year."

The processions were quite a feature of the recent political contest. But why should they not be properly organized and made artistic? Masses of men even in ordinary attire could be made impressive if properly grouped, and there is a wealth of scenic effect in uniforms, flags and banners lit up by torches and fireworks; but there should be an ensemble. A painter with imagination, even a good scenic artist, if he had charge of a procession, could make it wonderfully effective; but our political parades lose in picturesqueness because of their voluntary and fragmentary character. There is nothing impressive in their rows of straggling men armed with canes, carrying commonplace and often cheap and tawdry standards. From all accounts the Romans in their triumphal processions far surpassed any displays of modern times. In Europe an out-door procession is made effective by a military parade. The Italian carnivals with their gay and picturesque costumes and colored lights are a gratification to the artistic sense of the lookers-on. Even the Mardi Gras of the Southwest are far finer spectacles than our more costly Northern political parades. Whatever is worth doing at all is worth doing well, and some time or other some wise political organization will spend its money in getting up a procession which will be really effective, a feast of the eye as well as a satisfaction of the artistic sense.

We Americans can felicitate ourselves. Nearly eleven millions of people voted last Tuesday, and yet but little trouble occurred at any of the polls. The contest was spirited, but was carried on with great good humor. Here in New York when the Blaine men paraded the adherents of Cleveland chaffed them from the sidewalks, but there were no fights. When the Democratic processions were under way the Republicans cheered their own candidate and no collisions followed. But in Great Britian a different feeling prevails. There is very little free speech in that country. Political meetings are liable to be dispersed by the opposite party, and riots are constant during a political agitation, while the rowdy has full swing at the polling places. We have shown ourselves better fitted for self government than the people of England.

The tendency of education is taking an industrial direction. The technical and art schools of Continental Europe are being imitated in our own country. The New York City College is now teaching its students the use of tools and how to manipulate wood and metals. Mr. Charles Barnard, the very clever writer on mechanical topics in the Century magazine, delivered last winter before the St. John School six illustrated lectures on art industries, which created so much interest that they are to be repeated at Chickering Hall on Tuesday afternoons at 3:30, commencing November 11 and ending December 16. The titles show the character of the lectures are as follows: "The Wood-workers," "Bricks and Terra Cotta," "The Potter's Wheel," "A Bit of Glass," "Iron, Copper and Brass" and "My Lady's Robe." It is quite time that American master mechanics should try and train up workmen in their own country who would at least be equal to the foreigners in their employ who have been trained in the technical schools of Continental Europe. Mr. Barnard's lectures ought to be largely attended.

It is not at all likely that Mr. Henry Irving and Miss Ellen Terry will be as successful this season as they were last winter. They were a novelty then, and business is not good enough now to warrant people paying double prices and an extra bonus to ticket speculators to see any theatrical representation. Still the advent of these great artists ought to do some good. All our theatres are now given over to the playing of farces, while in the representations of Mr. Irving and Miss Terry there is nothing mean or trivial. Those who can afford it should not fail to see these fine performers.

"I think cotton will advance," said W. P. Taber, "and I would rather buy than sell at present. There is not much spot demand, and there is very little offering. Speculation is almost at a standstill. The manufacturers are only buying from hand to mouth thinking, as they generally do, when things are very low that prices will go lower. Liverpool is firm and quiet."

"I do not think there will be any material change in the price of iron in the immediate future," said Abram S. Hewitt. "The present prospects for an improved demand are not good. I do not think the election of either presidential candidate will make much difference in the iron business."

Wall street rumor predicts a heap of trouble for Jay Gould. When he was in a "hole" last May the banks were forced to sustain him, but he was guilty of some breach of faith at that time which has turned the money lending institution against him, and it is said that it is now very difficult for him to renew his loans on favorable terms. There is a belief that all the Gould properties are destined to see lower figures, and there are very mysterious outgivings as to the kind of thunderbolts which are being forged to smite the mighty inventor of the patent mouse trap.

That the iron nail will very soon be replaced by the steel nail is indeed obvious. The decreased cost at which the latter can be manufactured and their undoubted superiority when required for use in hardwood render them much more profitable and durable to all iron and wood workers than is the iron nail.

NEW YORK, November 11, 1884.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

It is a frequent source of complaint that the Madison avenue cars do not run after 12.30 at night, and further north than Eighty-sixth street. The knowledge of this fact prevents many persons living up-town from patronizing the cars of this line, and is likewise the cause of the present unimproved state of Madison avenue above Eighty-sixth street. A continuance of the line further north would confer an incalculable benefit upon many up-town residents. ABRAHAM L. JACOBS.

Contrary to the general trend of the times, a call for sailing ships comes from Guayaquil, Ecuador. The rates of steam freights are $1.20 per square foot from San Francisco, which precludes general shipments. The voyage by sail can be made in an average of eighty days. The belief prevails in Guayaquil that a quarterly sail line of from four to six hundred ton vessels bringing lumber, flour and taking back railroad ties and fine woods would prove advantageous to all concerned.—Exchange.

The New York Central Railroad has a locomotive with a very important improvement, thus described: Jets of steam play through the flames in the fire-box, producing perfect combustion. In the freight engines is seen the old style of things, a burst of thick, black smoke pouring from the smoke stack. But on No. 238, which flies over the road under 130 pounds of steam or more, the fireman shovels in coal, pokes the fire, and nothing comes from the funnel except a long, thin trail of steam. No smoke, no cinders; and linen dusters and double windows may be abolished so far as coal dust is concerned. All the doors of the cars the regular train No. 238 runs are left open, a practical result that all summer travelers will appreciate; and the engine burns less coal than before the apparatus was put in.—Exchange.

Whims in Building.

Nothing adds so much to the cost of building as indulgence in whims. To set out deliberately to do a "queer," "fanciful," or, as it is sometimes called, "original" thing in building is always to incur unnecessary expense. If we look through the books that contain pictures of the architecture of all ages and nations, we shall find that, without an exception, in the times all men of taste are agreed in calling the good times, the modes of building have been sensible, founded on the needs of the case, and that whatever may seem fanciful—the whole of what we call picturesque—when its charm has proved enduring, is the result of what we may call, in every case, "accepting the situation." Nothing has been done in such instances for the sake of being picturesque. Good building, good ornament never poses. In building, as a rule, every departure from the rectangular form is an added expense. One of the things impressed on the mind of a young man who goes into an architect's office to study the profession is, that if cost is to be considered, which it sometimes is, and sometimes is not, all excrescences and projections must be avoided. A rectangular house is the cheapest. Bay windows, porches, octagonal or circular, external ends to rooms—all these things cost money, and it is by multiplying these features that the expenses of building are often made so great as to deter people from undertaking it, for, the things seem so small in themselves, it is not suspected what drains they are on the purse. If a good reason cannot be given for any so-called ornamental feature in a house, if it cannot be shown that something worth while is to be gained by making it, we may be reasonably sure that it is a fancy which will cost, as the country people say, more than it comes to. And in the greater number of cases, nothing, even in looks, is gained by indulging the fancy.—Studio.

Home Decorative Notes.

—The passion flower and the clematis vine are two of the favorite flower designs for either Kensington stitch or Queen Anne darning.

—Tiny brass candlesticks with a spiral spring are sold for sealing purposes.

—Japanese cloths made of various materials are used for covering screens.

—Each year it grows more in favor to paint or stain the floors of rooms when they are not laid in ornamental fine woods, then rugs instead of carpets, covering the entire floor, are used.

—A screen of peacock feathers set in brass, which represents the body of the bird, is a pretty and brilliant ornament.

—Very tasteful catch-alls for the corner of sitting or bed-rooms can be improvised from the large cretonne fans that have outlived their wafting utility by joining the two sticks together and fastening them to the corner of the wall, then draw out each side and fasten also to the wall: the result will be a triangular-shaped receptacle, which can be improved by decorating the three corners with knots and loops of various colored ribbons; attach also a bow of ribbon to the handle of the fan.

—Waste-baskets are made up with huge bows of soft ribbon, in which are fastened flowers of all kinds, one beatiful sample, which is of split cane and square in shape, has peaches instead of fruit, the fruit and leaves being perfect and as natural as if just plucked from the tree.

—Tussah silk is a new material and much admired for table covers, pillow shams, chair backs, etc., it is shown only in ecru.

—The progress of wealth and taste is marked by increased private acquisitions of antique objects, and those possessed of antiquarian taste and love of art will be fully gratified by an inspection of the choice selection of antique silver, furniture and china displayed by Koopman & Co., of No. 5 East Seventeenth street.

—A dainty bureau set has for the foundation bolting cloth, while here and there are scattered promiscuously white daisies embroidered with filoselle; finish the edges with a wide hem and gold lace.

—The large and oblong baskets that have been used as fruit-carriers by our visiting friends during the past summer, can be further utilized for holding the ordinary silver of a household, that is when such silver is taken from the dining-room to a safer place at night. Line the basket with white felting or flannel, then on the sides gather pockets of the same material for the spoons, forks and smaller pieces, while the centre of the basket can be used for the large pieces of silver; by this method the good housekeeper can see at a glance that each article is or is not within the basket.

—A freak of fashion is to furnish the whole bed-chamber as to walls, draperies and upholstering in French cretonnes of chintz; linings of pale blue or corn-colored silesia and bows of harmonizing satin ribbons are used with charming effect.

—An extremely artistic library waste-paper basket has a lion's head perfectly carved, most lifelike in appearance and mounted upon elks' horns.

—The latest novelty in hanging hat-racks are those made of undressed seal and embellished with fine Hungarian horns.

—Many exquisite pieces of art glass are shown that compare most favorably with the imported English crystal, which is heavier and not so clear.

—Grace and harmony of design are requisite at the present time in furniture, floor, ceiling or wall coverings, and one of the happiest signs of the times is that the growth of taste is gaining steadily in our desire for luxury; so many fabrics of exquisite beauty are now made for decorative purposes that one cannot be at a loss for tasteful and attractive furnishing; satin damask and delicate-colored silk-plushes are used in drawing-rooms, while the wall hangings are of the softest and most delicate and quaintly colored fabrics, such as the Venetian silks, Verona pongee and armure shown by Johnson & Faulkner, of No. 33 East Seventeenth street.

—Extremely pretty lambrequins are made of pressed plush, with the patterns worked in outlines of gold thread.

—The style of sofa pillows has somewhat changed, and the favorite shape at present is like a large old-fashioned work-bag, with the facing turned over and caught down loosely on the right side so that its rich coloring may be seen, a large bow of ribbon should be placed where the shirring ends.

—All fashionable shapes in sofas and lounges are much bepillowed, and certainly nothing can be more tempting than these luxurious pillowed resting places.

—Excellent mats for etchings may be cut out of the tinted blotting papers; a green mat is very effective.

—Rookwood pottery, which has won a most enviable reputation for itself, is now much sought for wedding gifts.

—The application to mantel-borders, door panels, fire-screens, curtain and portiere-borders and other artistic articles of paintings in oil or water colors on silk and satin is an extremely choice mode of decoration; the nasturtium vine and flower carefully treated is an extremely graceful and rich design for curtains and other hangings; painting on earthen ware has of late years become an exceedingly favorite recreation and most marvellous effects are produced in the commonest descriptions of ware; there are many things used to paint upon in mineral colors, tiles, cups and saucers, vases, menu-cards and placques; the latter serve both for ornament and use, framed in velvet or plush they are beautiful upon the wall they can also be used for fruit or cake dishes; two very attractive placque designs are branches of gooseberries or currants; the French china is easier to paint upon than the cheaper wares, and it also gives much better satisfaction after firing.

The World of Business.

A Blue Business Outlook.

No matter which way we turn to make inquiries about business we hear the same answer, and judging from the general expression of opinion we conclude depression in trade reigns supreme. For the once it is not confined to any single trade, district or State, but prevails from Maine to California and from the great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico. We see increasing signs of it every day in the compulsory restriction of production in our manufactures, and the increase in the number of business failures. Indeed the facts are so irresistibly patent to all that there is not a single voice raised to contradict the assumption, and the verdict rendered by unanimous assent is that commerce in general the world over is more or less depressed. In this country we are having our share, the result being innumerable theories of its cause and possible remedy. One section of our political economists lay all the blame upon the restriction of our currency, maintaining that if we would set the government printing presses at work and so create some hundred million or more greenbacks, the change would be magical and the stimulus so needful to the prosperity of the country instantaneous and complete. Another section of our statesmen affirm that the excessive tariff is the sole cause of the present dilemma, while others maintain that the tariff is not sufficiently high; if it was, they argue, we should have no need whatever to draw any of our supplies from foreign countries, and the conclusion they come to is that nothing short of a "Chinese wall" in the shape of a prohibition tariff will restore the commerce of the country. Some lay the blame on over-production and others on under-consumption. The dark side has proven by recent developments the strongest, and to-day it is not any exaggeration to say that the bright ray which was looked upon to disperse the gloom is apparently as far off as ever. The causes of this state of things, which were at that time casually referred to, have been intensified with the natural result. In the first place if we compare the value of this year's wheat crop we shall find that in this one item alone the country has suffered beyond any previous comparison. In 1882 we had a crop of 504,000,000 bushels, and the average price in that year in this city for No. 2 red winter wheat was $1.27⅞ a bushel. But what is the situation to-day, granted that the present wheat crop turns out as large as that year? Wheat selling at 84 cents a bushel, therefore, upon this item alone the farmer will receive $216,720,000, or proportionately that amount less for his wheat at the present prices than he did in 1882. What has led to this reduction in price has been previously treated in these columns, and its effect upon the farmer is plainly put forth in the following clipping from the Chicago Tribune:

It was stated in our commercial columns the other day that a carload of wheat from Nebraska was sold in Chicago for $243. Out of this railroad, elevator and other charges had to be taken to the amount of $132. This left the shipper $111. The railroads and other intermediaries got 34.5 cents a bushel, the shipper 29.2 cents. What did the farmer receive? The country shipper takes 2 cents a bushel for his profit; it costs the farmer at least 4 cents a bushel to have his wheat hauled to the railroad station. This leaves him a fraction over 23 cents a bushel for wheat that was sold in Chicago for 64 cents a bushel. His share is a trifle more than one-third. His receipts per acre on an averge production of 15 bushels—a high estimate—would be at this rate $3.45 for what costs him in actual outlay of cash and labor, to say nothing of interest and the subsistance of his family, not a cent less than $7 an acre.

Another authority writing from St. Paul says of Dakota and Minnesota:

The farmer is not making money this year. With the prevailing range of grain prices the only questions that have practical interest are how narrow is the margin that is left him for actual subsistance, how far he will be able to meet or defer pressing obligations incurred, what are the hopeful circumstance of this time of depression, and what are the remedies by which he will be likely to better his condition?

If we for a moment glance at our exports of wheat and flour, we find a considerable shrinkage in value. In 1881 the value of both of these articles exported amounted to $212,745,742, and for the year ending June 30, 1884, they amounted to $126,166,374, which shows a shrinkage of $86,579,368. If, however, we take bread and breadstuffs, we shall find a greater shrinkage; in 1880 we exported $288,036,835 in value, but for the last statistical year we exported only $162,544,715 which shows a loss of $107,788,120. Cotton also fell from $247,695,746 in 1881 to $197,015,204, a shrinkage of $50,780,542. Provisions also fell away from $156,823,616 to $114,416,547 for last year, or less by $32,407,069. So much for our agricultural products as influencing our present depression. Now let us examine our railroad construction as bearing upon the situation. In 1881 we constructed 12,000 miles of road and this year, under the most favorable circumstances, we shall not construct more than 3,000. If we take the average cost of construction alone at $20,000 per mile, we find that in 1881 there was $240,000,000, mostly foreign capital, expended in construction, against $60,000,000 this year, or a shrinkage of $180,000,000. Another item, which, no doubt, has its effect in increasing the depression, although it may be disputed by some, is the falling off in our immigration. In 1882 there were no less than 778,992 people landed in this country, while last year the total only amounted to 518,592, which shows a shrinkage of 270,000; and calculating that each emigrant, on an average, only brings $100, it gives a loss of the circulating medium of $27,000,000. If we sum up the above-named losses we shall see to what extent our commerce has been restricted in the articles mentioned:

Loss on exports of cotton	50,780,542
Loss on exports of provisions	32,407,069
Total	$190,975,731

Under these three headings alone we have a shrinkage in our foreign commerce of $190,975,731, and this in the face of a rapid increase of the population. But if we take only the loss in value of our wheat crop and the loss caused by the restriction of our railroad construction, we shall find ample cause for depression:

Loss in value of wheat crop	$216,720,000
Loss on construction of railways	180,000,000
Loss on construction of rolling stock, say	20,000,000

Certainly so vast a sum as the latter item directed from its usual circulating channels must have a deleterious effect upon the trade, and until these equilibriums are readjusted there cannot be any permanent improvement in the situation; added to this, the loss of $190,975,731 in our exports in a few years in three articles alone must have a depressing effect upon our trade, no one will, we think, for a moment deny. In the face of the above facts is it any wonder that we have the present stagnation? We think not. But the remedy—that is the most important part of the discussion—what shall it be? One important step, and one that appears the most urgent, is to immediately reduce taxation. But the ultimate remedy depends upon our ability to compete in the markets of the world, and until we regain the supremacy that we held from 1879 to 1882 our markets will be depressed and our commerce restricted.—American Grocer.

Why Cotton is a Purchase.

We have never before in modern (cotton) times had two short crops together. Usually when there is a very short crop it is followed by a large one, and vice versa. Thus the deficiency of one is supplemented by the excess of the other, and the average of the two is pretty regular. It is interesting to compare the averages of periods of two years thus combined since 1879—as follows:

Crops of		Together.	Average crop.
1879-80	5,757
1880-1	6,600	12,357	6,178,000
1880-1	6,600
1881-2	5,436	12,036	6,018,000
1881-2	5,336
1882-3	7,000	12,436	6,218,000
1882-3	7,000
1883-4	5,713	12,713	6,357,000
1883-4	5,713
1884-5	5,800	11,513	5,756,000

It will be observed that coupling 1882-3 and 1883-4 the average crop was 6,357,000 bales, a considerable increase upon any previous two years' supply, so that we have not yet felt any pinch from the short crop of the past year. At the same time, as is well known, the steady increase of European consumption was in a great degree neutralized in its effect upon stocks by the extraordinary reduction of 248,000 bales in the takings of American spinners. It is therefore not surprising that we are getting through the time of lowest stocks in Europe without positive exhaustion. But as the above table shows the average yearly supply of the present two yearly periods to probably amount to 600,000 bales less than that of the immediately previous similar period, and to 460,000 less than the average of the two years preceding the same, and as we as yet see no sign of economy of consumption to any such extent, it is at present difficult to see how the year's supply can be made to hold out. We do not in all this see any cause to anticipate high prices during the present depressed state of the cotton industry, and especially during the period of large receipts hurried forward by the drought and consequent rapid maturing, picking, and transport of the crop, with the roads in their best condition. But there is enough in it to warrant spinners in buying freely during the time when planters must sell freely and while prices are so low as to be almost ruinous to those who have only short crops to sell.—Messrs. Neill Bros. Cotton Circular.

How the Foreign Drummers Hurt New York Trade.

"Who is that distinguished foreigner," asked a Leader reporter the other day of the clerk of one of the hotels, as he pointed reverently on the register to a specimen of chirography, which, in its length and bold contour, was suggestive to the imagination of the reporter of at least a dukedom. "That; Oh, he's a commercial traveler," said the clerk, as he handed a guest seventy-five cents change for the ten dollar bill tended for his board. Foreign drummers have become quite a common thing in this country. Nearly all of these Europeans whose names you find on the register belong to this usetul class of society. The reporter leafed over the pages carefully, and his eyes were greeted with the signatures of quite a number of guests from France and other lands across the sea. On closer inspection he observed that the same dash and eccentricity which characterized the handwriting of the average American drummer was traceable in that of the foreign born. Wishing to ascertain to what extent the foreign drummer was encroaching upon the business of the American in the latter's native heath, the reporter asked a prominent dry-goods merchant of Superior street, in regard to commercial traveling from abroad. "It is of recent growth," was the reply, "but is rapidly increasing, and there is no doubt but it will continue to increase until every prominent manufacturer abroad who trades with this country will have his salesmen in America. They not only have their drummers here, but it is not uncommon for members of the firm to cross the ocean and visit their trade all over the country. They do this so as to be better able to supply the American market. There are many manufacturing establishments in France and other countries in Europe which make a specialty of supplying the American trade. In order to do this best they must know just what the Americans want. And in traveling from one city to another these manufactures ask for suggestions from their customers and very often return home and act on these suggestion." "What effect will this method of doing business have upon the price of goods?" "It reduces the cost of goods about 10 per cent., for it dispenses entirely with the large importing houses in New York, and the expense and profits of the importers are thus saved. These importers in New York are Americans who purchase foreign commodities and then sell them at an advance to the trade throughout the country. But now large foreign houses are beginning to establish their own branch houses in New York to serve as a distributing centre for supplying the American trade which their commercial travelers will work up." "Does this innovation tend to sharpen competition between home and foreign manufactures?" "It undoubtedly does, where the same article is made by both manufactures. But in our line of goods, dry-goods, etc., there is not this competition. The American and foreign fabrics are not at all alike nor are they brought into direct competition with each other. We have a class of customers who refuse to buy anything made in this country. The foreign article is of much finer texture and quality than the American, and of course much more expensive. We have foreign dress goods, for example, which sell for $2 per yard, while a corresponding American article retails for $1.25. With this latter quality the foreign manufacturer is unable to compete so that there is no direct conflict between them. It is the same with manufactures in gloves, hosiery, shawls and other departments. European manufacturers of all these articles are now selling them largely in this country through commercial travelers."—Cleveland Leader.

Restriction of Steam Tonnage in England.

United States Consul Jones, at Newcastle, reports the proceedings of a meeting of British shipbuilders, held in that city, for the discussion of the condition of their industry, and for the best means for its relief. The trade, writes the consul, is in worse shape now than it has been for years. Rates are so low that vessels have been compelled to lay up or run at a loss. There are, at this writing, lying up for want of employment in the ports of the North of England, no less than 137 ocean-going steamships, of 150,000 gross tons, valued at £1,000,000, and employing 1,800 men when voyaging. The meeting was composed of over 150 prominent ship-owners and managers. It was convened by a circular sent to various representative steamship owners throughout the kingdom, which contained the following:

1. That owners of steamships shall combine and agree to form an association in which all their vessels shall be entered.
2. That each owner with four or more vessels shall agree to withdraw from the market, and keep unemployed for a period of four months, one-fourth of the tonnage controlled by him.
3 That owners with a smaller number than four steamers shall withdraw and keep from employment their vessels for such corresponding period of time as the number of vessels may represent.
4 That the owners of vessels so laid up shall be paid the sum of 6d. per gross registered ton per month toward the unavoidable expense of lying up, such sum to be contributed pro rata by the steamers trading.
5. That owners joining the association and breaking their agreement to keep the agreed proportion of tonnage out of the market shall pay to the funds of the association a sum of not less than 2s. per gross registered ton per month on the defaulting vessel.

After the formal organization of the meeting, Henry Nelson, in taking the chair, said they had "now arrived at that point of profound depression, in fact, where ruin was staring them in the face, when they were called upon to make a determined effort toward an improvement in the condition of affairs." They were "going to follow the lead of other great and important industries, such as iron, chemicals, and at times coal, by restricting, as it were, the output; and if they were unanimous in this movement no doubt it must have a beneficial effect." It was moved—

That in the opinion of this meeting the objects aimed at be approved, and that the association should commence operations on the 20th of May, 1884, provided that there shall then have been entered by the owners not less than 1,500 steamers.

In support of this motion the mover said:

Times of unexampled depression have fallen athwart our industry. From liners to steamers dividends are as rare as precious stones, and from what good is being done in the way of dividends we might as well be sailing "painted ships upon a painted ocean." Shipping has outstripped the world, and either it must wait until the world overtake it, or it must be used with discrimination. Instead of giving merchants, and through them the population of the world, more carrying power than they want, we must give them as much as they will pay for, and this can be accomplished by organization. Taking the net registered tonnage of British steamers at 4,000,000, to which should be added for dead-weight capacity 2,000,000, the dead-weight tonnage of the British Empire would be 6,000,000. There are about 4,700 British steamers under the British flag (allowing for small coasters not likely to join the association) which are estimated at 1,500 tons dead-weight capacity. Therefore if we succeed in getting entered from 1,500 to 2,000 steamers of 1,800 tons dead-weight capacity, the total strength of the association will be from 2,225,000 to 3,000,000 tons dead-weight, and one-fourth will represent 562,500 to 750,000 tons, which, if withdrawn for four continuous months, cannot fail to operate with great effect and cogency upon the freight market.

Why Erie is Depressed.

When, President King, you glance over the causes which have deprived the Erie road of one-half of its legitimate earnings upon through traffic, you will be confronted with the fact that, outside of your own management, the chief obstacle is to be found in Mr. C. P. Clark, the receiver of he New York & New England road. You will find that the most direct, and, for the interest of your stockholders, the best, road for the conveyance of through traffic is from Buffalo to Newburg, thence to Boston and the East by the New York & New England road from Fishkill Landing via Hartford. But you will learn, also, that it is to the interest of the New York, New Haven & Hartford road to cripple the New England road, and that is the reason why it was arranged that Vice-President Clark of the former road should become president of the latter; and it explains why Mr. Clark, after a month's control as president, had him self appointed receiver of the New England road at a midnight sitting of the court. How was the policy carried out? Receiver Clark quarrelled with the Erie road, and refused to continue the interchange of through traffic with that road, so depriving Erie of the benefit of traffic over a great portion of its road, and robbing—a strong but justifiable expression—the New England road of most profitable freight between Fishkill Landing and Hartford. Thus, from Binghamton to Jersey City, the Erie road is confined to local business, a distance of 205 out of 420 miles, and New York & New England is placed in the same condition with regard to 111 miles out of its total length of 228 miles. Not only are the stockholders of Erie and of the New England road, therefore, deprived of earnings to which they are justly entitled, but the munificent grant of $5,000,000 made in 1869 by the State of Massachusetts to the New England road (laws of Massachusetts, 1869, chapter 450) is practically diverted from its purpose for the ultimate benefit of the New Haven & Hartford road. For you will find Mr. King, that it is Mr. Clark's intention to depreciate the value of the New England road until it becomes necessary to dispose of it by auction, when the New Haven & Hartford will step in, and thus acquiring a short line to the East, materially enhance the value of the latter road, in which he has so large a pecuniary interest. At a recent meeting of the stockholders, Receiver Clark very emphatically denied the intimation that a scheme was on foot to operate against the stockholders. But he did not attempt to explain, nor does anybody appear to have been in possession of the facts upon which to inquire, why this extraordinary diversion of natural traffic has been made. The road's physical condition, he declared, was admirable and well fitted for the development of business. Then why shut it off by a contumacious policy? You cannot, of course, Mr. King, compel the New England road to so interchange through traffic with you that the resources of both your roads shall be utilized to the best advantage, but you can, by a vigorous demonstration of the unwisdom of the policy and the true inwardness of the motive of those who unfortunately now manipulate the naturally co-operating road, bring about such a change in the conditions as shall inure both to the benefit of the New Englanders and of the long suffering stockholders of Erie. —Boston Herald.

Why Banks Should be More Liberal.

There are very general indications that the restrictive policy of the banks has been carried about far enough in respect to regular commerce, and that a due regard as well for their own interests as for the welfare of industry and commerce dictate some extension in lines of discount. There must be certain criteria to govern the conclusions of sagacious men in such matters superior to such influences as sentiment, tone or temper. The latter in many, if not most, situations can justify their presence on no better plea than that they exist by virtue of habit, and that they are because they are. Contraction in money must have definite objects, and it should cease when its objects are accomplished. Whether to justify the currency, or to correct the basis of credit, bankers should recognize when the work is done, and gradually relax their policy. The principal test of the soundness of commerce is the pitch of valuations. Excessive credit leads to speculation and overtrading, producing inevitably an expansion of prices as well as of volume. The time for extra caution is when these conditions are present, and not their opposites, unless, indeed, there should be some general calamity, such as war, pestilence or crop failures. The steady adherence to a policy of contraction for a period of one or two years, forcing out the gas from valuations, pushing insolvent firms into bankruptcy, revealing the unseen frauds which fatten unsuspected in flush times, and lopping off from business usages many abuses and improper expedients which had grown up under an excessive confidence and laxity—such corrections, when the natural resources of trade are good, should prepare the way for a return of confidence, a revival of credit and a renewal of commercial activity. Prices are generally on a basis as low as the Western world has known in the present era of currency and exchange, and in a number of lines they are lower than have ever been known in that era. The strongest tests have been applied to business in all departments, and a most searching liquidation has taken place. The whole situation is dominated by the banking policy of New York, which, in looking up through the summer a reserve sufficient for that city, Boston and Philadelphia combined, has started interior banks to shortening accommodations, and has established a corresponding general hoarding. The amount of money withdrawn from its proper use by the New York banks has been multiplied in the boards of banks elsewhere and of nervous and foolish people who have taken their money into their private keeping. The Treasury of the United States is carrying a nominal fund of about $450,000,000, against which there are liabilities, partly in the form of money in circulation, amounting to about $320,000,000. Altogether it is doubtful if one-third of the volume of currency is in the ordinary channels of circulation. It is true that the volume of business is so restricted that it cannot employ an average amount of money at present, and it is true that the preceding contraction and liquidation have been wholesome correctives, but it is also true that business will remain in straight jackets until a freer policy in accommodating commerce shall be adopted. Until then the distribution of merchandise will be restricted, collections will be disappointing and money will be hoarded by individuals. The centralization of monetary control has obvious objectionable features, but it also has an advantage unfortunately not possessed by a system like that of the United States. Here each banker and each city is timid about taking the initiative, while doubtful of others and of the general policy. Each considers that its own influence on the general result will be insignificant, but that its own risk must be very positive and pertinent to itself. The result is a general waiting for others to lead off. Other great commercial nations control the whole system of banks in a very great measure by means of a central bank, which is the common depository, and, in emergencies, at least, is under the direct supervision of the government. This system gives each joint stock and private bank an assurance in respect to the general policy, or an assurance of a co-operation towards a certain tendency, which approximates an assurance of general results. While this centralization has features which would render it objectionable in this government, it evidently possesses at least one important advantage over the system of the United States. Without this American banks generally feel that they are compelled to find their way out of a period of liquidation with excessive caution.—Louisville Courier Journal.

History Teaching by Example.

At no period of French history has the bi-metallic system placed that people at a disadvantage in their transactions with other nations, whether in war or peace; on the contrary, under their monetary system, they have been notably prosperous, industrially and commercially, and have acquired the largest stock of gold of any people in the world, namely, $850,000,000, at the same time with $530,000,000 in legal tender silver five-franc pieces. And in despite of great wars as well as of so much political instability, the French have grown marvellously rich in the aggregate. Besides their enormous accumulation of specie, they possess at the present writing a paper circulation in the notes of the Bank of France of $577,385,000. That is to say, under the bi-metallic system, the French people have acquired the extraordinary money circulation of $22.37½ per head of the population in gold, $13.95 in silver and $15.20 in paper money.—Mining Record.

Real Estate Department.

There has been no market during the past week. The Conveyances recorded make a good showing, but these represent transactions a month old. The presidential excitement killed business in the real estate market, and many of the sales reported were really trades in which houses were sold for vacant lots or vice versa.

The coming week will undoubtedly show a revival of business, and we ought to have a reasonably active market until the holidays. On Thursday, November 13, Fairchild & De Walltearss will sell, under order of assignees and trustees, some very desirable lots on Sixth and Seventh avenues, at One Hundred and Forty-first and One Hundred and Forty-second streets. As the location shows, this unoccupied property is in the line of immediate improvement, and is very desirable for builders and capitalists who wish to secure choice sites. This location is within three quarters of an hour of Wall street by the west side "L" roads.

On Tuesday, November 18th, Richard V. Harnett will sell, under order of a trustee, several very choice west side lots, two of which are on Riverside Drive, 76.2 feet north of Ninety-fourth street, one on Twelfth avenue, 25 feet south of Ninety-fourth street, three on Ninety-fourth street, between West End avenue and Riverside Drive, and three on Riverside Drive, south of One Hundred and Twenty-second street. In time these will be among the choicest unimproved lots on New York island.

On Thursday, November 20, E. H. Ludlow will sell, by order of the state of commission of the land office, several well-located lots on West Fifty-third street, West One Hundred and Thirty-eighth street, West One Hundred and Forty-third street and East Seventy-first street. Investors will see that this is good land to secure by consulting the advertisement elsewhere.

John F. B. Smyth will sell on Wednesday, November 12, the three-story brick house No. 153 Broome street, near Attorney street.

The Conveyances for the past week make a good showing, both in the number and amount involved. But it should be remembered that the table here represents transactions nearly a month old:

Gossip of the Week.

V. K. Stevenson, Jr., has sold for McK. Jones the four-story brown stone dwelling No. 42 East Fifty-seventh street, 21x65x100.5, to Robert Brown, for $51,250.

G. Bramson has sold for Charles H. Bliss the apartment house No. 107 East Seventy-third street, for $29,500, and has sold to Mr. Bliss in exchange five lots on the south side of Fifty-fifth street, 225 feet east of Eleventh avenue, 125x168, for $40,000, with a building loan.

Walter W. Montague has sold for G. Scott the five-story double tenement, No. 235 West Nineteenth street, 25x70x94, to Frank Demuth, for $23,000, and for Frank L. Eldridge the three-story frame house, with full lot, on the north side of Eighty-fourth street, commencing 550 feet east of Ninth avenue, to David Campbell, for $9,000.

John Gorman has sold for Guggenheimer & Marx the three-story brown stone dwelling No. 177 East Eightieth street, 16.8x100, to Mrs. M. E. Walton, for $13,000.

Charles Seitz has bought the five-story front and four-story rear brick tenements on the northeast corner of First avenue and Nineteenth street, 24x100, for $21,000.

C. Thorburn, it is reported, has sold the three-story and basement Ohio stone front house No. 126 East Seventy-fourth street, to Mr. Bernstein, for about $18,000.

John W. Stevens has sold for Gillie & Walker two lots on Seventy-eighth street, between Ninth and Tenth avenues, to Wm. G. Lathrop.

J. W. Stevens has sold one lot on the south side of One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street, 125 feet east of Seventh avenue, to J. B. Kaiser, for $7,000, and for S. B. Brownell a lot on the south side of Fifty-third street, 100 feet west of Sixth avenue, to Gillie & Walker, for $12,000.

John Livingston has sold the three-story stone front dwelling, No. 327 West Forty-sixth street, to G. or J. Zucker, for $19,000.

M. B. Baer & Co. have sold for C. W. Bucklin the three-story and basement Ohio stone front dwelling, No. 61 West Forty-fifth street, 18.9x50x100, to Wm. H. White, for $24,000.

It is reported that the State has purchased from the Seagirt Land Company, through J. C. Lucas, the president, a tract of land which will be used permanently for the annual encampment and target practice. It comprises 100 acres, and the price paid is said to be $50,000. Permanent buildings are to be erected.

The two four-story and basement brown stone houses, Nos. 48 and 50 East Sixty-fourth street, are reported to have been sold for $65,000.

J. E. Corning has sold three lots on the south side of One Hundred and Fifth street, 200 feet east of Fifth avenue, to B. D. Bradley.

Jacob Campbell, it is reported, has sold the dwelling No. 1281 Fifth avenue, and purchased a four-story stone front dwelling on Eighty-first street, between Madison and Fifth avenues.

The receiver's sale of the Atlantic State Bank building, Nos. 49 and 51 Fulton street, will take place on Friday, November 14, at the Commercial Exchange, No. 389 Fulton street, J. Cole being the auctioneer. The property consists of a four-story, basement and sub-cellar brick and granite front building, and is one of the most desirable parcels of realty in the city of Brooklyn. See advertisement.

Out Among the Builders.

J. C. Burne has the plans on the boards for two five-story brick and brown stone tenements, 25x84 each, to be erected on the south side of One Hundred and Eighteenth street, 90 feet east of Fourth avenue, for Harry Chenoweth.

Montrose W. Morris has the plans under way for a five-story brown stone flat, 25x84, to be erected on the north side of Sixty-second street, 225 feet east of Tenth avenue, for Annie Kelly at a cost of from $18,000 to $20,000.

Robert Elliott proposes to erect five or six four-story high stoop brown stone residences on the southwest corner of Fifth avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-eighth street.

Charles Seitz will convert into a store building and make other alterations to the tenements on the northeast corner of First avenue and Nineteenth street.

Thom & Wilson have the sketches on the boards for five five-story brick, stone and terra cotta improved double tenements, 25x84 each, to be erected on the south side of Fifty-fifth street, 225 feet east of Eleventh avenue, for C. H. Bliss, at an estimated cost of $100,000.

M. L. Ungrich has drawn the sketches for a five-story brown stone improved flat, 25x88, to be built by Gillie & Walker, on the south side of Fifty-third street, 100 feet west of Sixth avenue, at an estimated cost of $18,000 to $20,000.

The architects engaged in competition on the Eighth Regiment Armory are understood to be Messrs. C. W. Clinton, Hugo Kafka & Co., J. R. Thomas, Lamb & Rich and A. B. Jones. Messrs. Geo. B. Post, Renwick, Aspinwall & Russell and three other architects are engaged on the plans for the Twenty-second Regiment.

Contractors' Notes.

Sealed proposals will be received by the School Trustees of the Ninth Ward, at the Hall of the Board of Education, corner of Grand and Elm streets, until Tuesday, the 18th day of November, 1884, at 4 o'clock P. M., for the erection of a new school house on the south side of West 10th street, between Greenwich and Washington streets.

Michael Magrath, of 74 Irving place, has been awarded the contract for the erection of a skate building in the Central Park, under the direction of the Department of Public Parks.

Special Notices.

Ogden & Co. are the oldest firm of lumber dealers in the city, having been established in 1817. Their reputation is widespread and they are well-known among builders, architects and others. They do a wholesale as well as retail trade in mahogany and lumber. Their yards are at No. 392 Washington street and Thirteenth avenue and Twenty-second street. Telephone calls No. 127 Spring and No. 108 Twenty-first street.

Scott & Myers, of No. 8 Pine street, have opened a branch office at Madison avenue and Fifty-ninth street for the accommodation of their up-town customers, where they are prepared to take charge of estates and transact a general real estate business.

Geo. H. Toop has, owing to his increasing business, removed from Eighty-eighth street near Fourth avenue to larger and more commodious quarters at Ninety-first street and First avenue. It would repay any builder to call at his works, the Lexington Iron Foundry, where all kinds of light and heavy castings, columns, girders, lintels, iron railings, &c., can be seen. Mr. Toop also repairs stonebreakers, castings and other machinery.

A visit to the American Institute, Third avenue and Sixty-third street, will repay architects, builders and owners of property who have not yet taken the opportunity of going there. Among the exhibitors is Erskine W. Fisher, who has a room fitted up showing his Patent Soapstone Finish in its natural color and in tints on the walls and ceilings. Mr. Fisher claims that it improves in color with age, that it does not crack, that it can be washed without injury and costs only about the same as hard finish. It is a non-absorbent and non-conductor, and presents a very fine surface for papering and painting in either oil or water colors. The material is manufactured by the American Soapstone Finish Company, of Providence, R. I. In the above room Potter's colored mortar can also be seen in red, black and buff.

Louis K. Zitz has been the agent for the David Jones estate since 1867. His office is in Temple Court, room 29, where he transacts a general real estate and insurance business. He gives a number of owners and trustees as references.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

BRICKS.—It has been a broken week, with business disturbed by political excitement, and a generally unsatisfactory sort of market prevailing. On the average run of cost the changes were not of a particularly noticeable character, but occasionally variations took place with the turn principally in buyers' favor. This feeling has been further increased of late by the accumulation of stock on hand, some dealers having about all they cared to attend to under the indifferent tone displayed by the majority of buyers. Not only do dealers continue to stand off and assert a disinclination to lay away stock even at the low figures current on many cargoes of very nice goods, but consumers have shown unexpected indifference in many quarters, and handled a much smaller quantity than it was thought they could get along with. Whether the latter be the result of temporary or permanent influences remains to be proven, but it is a source of some apprehension to a portion of the trade. Values seem to run at $4.75@5.50 for Jerseys, with some of the best brands 25c. higher; $5.00@5.50 for "Up Rivers," and $5.75@6.25 for Haverstraws. There has also been a considerable quantity of washed and otherwise inferior lots of Hudson River, Jersey and Staten Island stock, which would rarely average better than $4.50 per M, and difficult to sell at that. Manufacturers are understood to still feel quite willing to ship stock, but will be somewhat hampered in view of the number of boats and barges at this end of the route. Pale have commenced to drag somewhat on sale and are also rather easier in tone, with $3 25 about an average top rate and sales making at $3.00 per M. Fronts are not much called for, but the supply is well in hand and firmly supported in price.

CEMENT.—For domestic or Rosendale there is a slow and apparently tame market. Shipping orders have been few and far between of late, the local demand is gradually shrinking, and it is not an altogether easy matter to work stock off promptly. It is, however, expected that manufacturers will so arrange as to carry over no more than the usual quantity. On leading or favorite brands $1.00 continues to be the rate, and stock is selling as low as 80@90c. per bbl. Foreign cement is firm and in active demand. Some of our local commercial journals are amusing their readers by reporting "the usual slow tone." "a light jobbing trade," etc., when the facts of the case are there is not enough stock to satisfy the outlet. The imports to date are in excess of last year, with some 20,000 bbls. received this week, and yet there is not an agent for leading standard brands who could meet a demand for even small invoices, as receipts have gone out promptly to meet standing contracts and orders remain on hand awaiting additional arrivals Interior customers in particular are anxious, in view of probable additional transportation charges. There was quite a full export of cement from this port last month, mostly to South America and the West Indies.

HARDWARE.—Such demand as prevails is confined entirely to seasonable goods and based upon immediate wants, with general tone of market slow' Business is certainly lacking in satisfactory features, and as the year draws toward a close dealers complain more positively than during the period when they were under constant hope of an improvement. In the meantime values remain nominally unchanged, but really favoring buyers, and there is little hesitation about "cutting" when it will secure a desirable order.

LATH.—There was not much of special interest shown on the general market during the past week. Indeed for some time scarcely any business at all took place, but when the point of sale was reached about former rates developed, say $2.15@2.20 per M, or a little more when cargoes were broken up or were delivered at difficult points. The apparent indifference of buyers does not act as a disturbing element upon the minds of receivers to any extent and some of them speak cheerfully. The amounts afloat are said to be small, and in view of the lateness of the season, coupled with the closing of many mills, it is thought quite unlikely that manufacturers will have many additional cargoes to send forward.

LIME.—Arrivals have again been slow and light in volume with a demand quite equal to the offering and buyers promptly submitting to full former rates. Receivers in fact feel quite firm and confident in their position as the production has been brought under such management as to prevent free shipments and thus admit of a close adjustment of supply to demand. A fair average accumulation is in dealers' hands.

LUMBER.—Business has been moderate and irregular, and naturally so considering the excitement to which the entire community has been subject during the current week. So far as any indications were given, however, the tendency is still slightly toward improvement under natural seasonable influence. This will apply more directly to the better class of goods, specials, etc., as on the ordinary run and random offering of stock sellers really gain no advantage. Many customers who have been standing off until the last moment now bring in orders for the assortment peculiarly adapted to their wants, and on this form of demand cannot and do not expect many favors, but when the attempt to do business comes from the other side, and there is a great deal of it in one way or another, the basis for valuation must be kept easy, though not necessarily undergoing further shading. In brief, it looks as though the line of hardpan had been passed with a fair chance for some recovery on desirable grades.

Eastern Spruce is spoken of in somewhat more cheerful strain. Should it become necessary to urge the sale of anything in the way of ordinary random it is likely that quite as low rates as ever would have to be accepted, but with supplies kept fairly in hand and every probability of a diminution receivers manage to find an outlet without much difficulty as many of the yards can add a little to accumulation on the approach of winter, and apparently see their way clear. The call for specials is also increasing, and with the reduced number of mills to take care of them, bids must be comparatively full to secure attention. About $12.00@15.00 per M will still cover randoms, and from that up to $16 50 or possibly $17.00 for specials.

White Pine remains in much the same general channel as last week. More or less stock is handled on the distribution outlet, but both the home and shipping calls are easily and readily met, and make no actual reduction in stock. Indeed, the accumulation tends to growth, if anything, and dealers can get more if they want it at low price and prompt delivery, especially of common grades, though some pretty cheap offerings of uppers are understood to have been made. Shrewd buyers are taking the latter whenever they can find them and have facilities for carrying, and the majority are still giving their favors to the direct representatives from the mills whenever it is possible to do so. We quote at $16@17 for West India shipping boards; $18@27 for South American do.; $13@14 for box boards, and $16@18 for extra do.

Yellow Pine remans nominally unchanged also. There is not much demand and whenever a buyer talks business he becomes a centre of attraction, and anywhere within the bounds of reason can almost name his own price. Many of the mills continue the struggle of existence, but matters make no improvement. A few additional f. o. b. sales have been made at old rates. We quote as follows: Randoms, $17@19.50 per M; Specials, $19.50@21 do.; Green Flooring Boards, $21@22; Dry, do., do., $22@23; Siding, $20@22 do.; Cargoes f. o. b. at Atlantic ports, $18@15 for rough. and $18@20 for dressed Cargoes f. o. b. at Gulf ports, $12@14 for rough, and $20@21 for dressed.

Hardwoods of leading descriptions have very fair sale and retain a steady market, with a tendency to harden, if anything, but the position is not stimulating. We quote at wholesale rates by car load as follows: Walnut, $65@100 per M.; ash, $33@40 do.; oak, $30@55 do.; maple, $20@32.50 do.; chestnut, $25@30 do.; cherry, $50@80 do.; whitewood, $27@35 do., do.; elm, $22@25; hickory, $45@50 do.

Shingles are only moderately active, with the movement depending mainly on foreign orders, and values about as before. We quote Cypress at $8.00@8.50 per M. for 5x20 and $11.00 @ 12.00 do. for 6x20 regularly assorted shipping. Pine shipping stock $2.00@2.50 for 18 inch, and Eastern saw grades at $2.00@2.50 for 16 inch, as to quality and to quantity. Eastern shaved cedar $4.00 @4.50 per M. Machine dressed cedar shingles quoted as follows: for 30 inch, $15.00@20.00 for A, and $23@28.50 for No. 1; for 24 inch, $13.00@15 for A and $18.50@20.50 for No. 1; for 20 inch, $8@9.50 for A and $11.00@12.50 for No. 1.

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES

STATE.

ALBANY MARKET.

The Argus reports for week ending November 4 as follows:

The sales and shipments show considerable improvement over those of last month. Pine has been in good demand and several large barges have loaded for Eastern ports besides the usual shipments to New York and New Jersey. A considerable quantity has also been sent by rail to inland points in the Eastern states. Prices have been steady at our quotation. Receipts of spruce and hemlock continue light from the low state of water in Northern New York. Fortunately there was a good stock in the market, which is kept up by sawing at the steam mills. Hardwoods are also in fair supply, and open-air-seasoned lumber can readily be found on the yards. Shingles are in sufficient supply for the light demand. Lath are also in good stock.

THE WEST.

SAGINAW VALLEY.

LUMBERMAN'S GAZETTE,
BAY CITY, MICH.

The Saginaw valley market at present can very justly be compared to the political situation as it appears to-day—considerably mixed. In fact, politics appears to have completely superseded business, no person seeming to be interested in anything else but the great—disgusting political campaign. It overshadows every other consideration, no person seeming to care particularly whether there is any business transacted until the presidential question is settled. An occasional sale of lumber is made, but generally in small lots for immediate shipment. We have learned of one commission dealer, C. H. Bradley, selling 1,500,000 feet within a few days to hold over, but such transactions are few and far between. E. H. Scott sold last week to Potsdam, N. Y., parties 800,000 feet at $9, $18 and $38; J. H. Hill & Sons sold to eastern parties 300,000 feet at $8 50, $17 and $37. Other lots have been sold, but as the prices were refused we refrain from mentioning them. As to prices little can be said, every manufacturer being apparently a law unto himself, selling just as his interests seem to dictate. Prices are supposed to range from $6.50 to $9 for shipping culls, $13 to $18 for common and $35 to $38 and in a few instances $40 for extra uppers.

Freights have advanced $2 to Buffalo and Tonawanda and $1.50 to Ohio since our last report.

Considerable activity, comparatively speaking, has been noticeable within a few days past, but it is thought to be a temporary flurry. In fact, it is generally conceded that the shipping and manufacturing season is about drawing to a close. Several vessels have gone into winter quarters and many more are contemplating a similar course.

CARGO QUOTATIONS.

Shipping culls	$6 50@ 9 00
Common	13 00@18 00
3-uppers	35 00@38 00
Bill stuff	7 00@ 8 00

Special lots extra.

The Chicago Northwestern Lumberman as follows:

Though the market has been meagerly supplied with cargoes during the week, considerable lumber has arrived in port and gone to the yards. As was intimated last week, the season appears to be drawing to a close. Vessels are being stripped and laid up. The steam barges are yet in commission, and no doubt will continue to run until the close of navigation. There will be a large amount of lumber purchased to arrive, and this together with the stock belonging to the manufacturers and the yard men who have had logs sawed at the different mill points, or have bought in blocks, will keep the steam barges busy through November. But the cargo market is tapering off, and is likely to be drawn down to a thin point toward the close. The yard men are having poor picking these days. If they want any lumber hereafter they will mostly have to buy it to arrive. They say that they want but little, yet the commission men report a number of sales, and considerable inquiry.

Under meagre offerings the market for piece stuff has stiffened some, of late. One commission firm reports sales at $8.15 and $8.25 for green. Good dry stuff is said to be selling at $9. Other dealers say that $8 is all that green dimension is worth, or is bringing. Without a doubt piece stuff is tending to firmness and prices a little higher.

So little of inch lumber is arriving that there is scarcely a market. There is but little inquiry for it, and no appreciable change in prices is noticeable. Some Lake Huron cargoes coming have been spoken for at prices made in former sales for the same kind of lumber.

Lake freights are a shilling higher from east shore points, and also Cheboygan. The business of chartering is light, as vessels are being laid up, and owners are not anxious for loads at the advance.

Piece stuff, green	$8 00@ 8 25
Long timbers and joists, green	10 00@12 00
Coarse common	9 00@ 9 50
Boards and strips, No. 2, green	9 50@11 00
" medium, green	11 00@15 00
" No. 1, green	15 00@18 00
High grade	18 00@22 00

We raise our quotations on first and second cherry $5 per thousand. In doing so we will undoubtedly go contrary to the opinions of many of the dealers in this city, and to experiences of many of the manufacturers who ship to this market, but until evidence appears to show conclusively that $75 is more than a fair price for good wide three-inch firsts and seconds, we shall keep it at the upper limit of the quotations. As has been often stated before prices are subject to great variations, due to the character of the lumber itself, to the need of the purchaser and the urgency of the seller. Now considerable quantities of alleged firsts and seconds are bought at $60, but they are generally below the Chicago standard and contain a good many common boards, and besides that are of narrow widths and short lengths. They are the output of the small logs that constiture the great proportion of the cherry cut in the West. But good inch lumber, of good lengths and fair average widths, can seldom be bought for less than $65, while inch and one-half up to three inches, with a good proportion of wide, well manufactured, bring easily $75. There are much higher prices, as well as some lower ones, but for the present we make $65@75 our range. A satisfactory grade is hard to get, and most of the best of it comes from Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Oak and ash move slowly, the best demand for oak being from the city, for finishing purposes.

ENGLAND.

The London Timber Trade's Journal reports:

Cedar—This market shows continued firmeness, as there is, we are told, a good demand for both the cabinet and the cigar-box trades, with but a limited unsold stock in the docks to select from.

American Black Walnut—Supplies have somewhat fallen off of late, and as the consumption continues brisk, the stock in the docks is unmistakably diminishing. Consequently we think consumers will do well to see that their stocks are kept up, as the indication of prices is certainly more in sellers' favor than in that of buyers. We notice the arrival of some good planks, also a useful parcel of squares; referring to the latter, if instead of the short awkward lengths of which we have seen so many parcels, shippers would send long lengths, say about 12 feet, we feel quite sure they would sell much more readily and at better prices.

American Whitewood—Still we believe the consumption of this wood is increasing; we see some very handsome logs have just been landed; besides these there is now a good stock in logs, planks and boards. Judging by the deliveries, there must be a good business doing by private contract, and the rapidity with which the wood has found favor in so many branches of the trade shows very clearly that its intrinsic merits are beginning to be fully appreciated here.

NAILS.—Demand has much irregularity and apparently rather disappointing volume, with more or less complaint regarding offerings which appear to crop out unexpectedly from many sources. There is, however, an effort to keep the position in hand if possible, and considerable assistance is afforded by operators who a short time ago invested with greater freedom than usual, and are carrying in a semi-speculative way. Most of the distribution is on home account, but occasionally some pretty good sized export orders are obtained We quote at $2.10@2.25 per keg for 10d. to 6d., according to size of invoice.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—Demand does not amount to much at the moment outside of what may be called regular orders for standard goods, and the market is dull all around. Offerings not urged, but can be increased on call, and possibly for large orders some shading would be made, though on the general range former quotations are allowed to stand. Linseed oil in fair average demand and about steady at 53@54c. for domestic, and 54@56c for foreign. Spirits turpentine selling slowly, and ruling about steady at 30@32c. per gallon, according to size of invoice.

PITCH AND TAR.—Supplies are equal to the general call at present prevailing, and the position about steady. We quote: Pitch, $2.25@2.30 per bbl.; Tar, $2.50@$2.00, according to quantity, quality and delivery.
